Aftermath Of Big Rains Floods Homes In Village

Power to about 400 Elk Grove Village area homes was knocked out, and flooding was reported in several parts of the village yesterday as a result of a storm that poured three inches of rain on the Northwest suburbs Monday night.

Village Mgr. Charles Willis said although the village suffered the heaviest accumulation of rain this year, damage to property was minimal. He said Salt Creek overflowed its banks at several points, and the worst flooding was in the low Shadywood Lane area south of Oakton Road and west of Arlington Heights Road.

Fire Chief Allen Hullett said the department answered some 10 alarms due to the storm, ranging from downed electrical wires to flooded basements. He said lightning struck two homes, knocking off some shingles. No other damage was done.

Finance Dir. George Coney said he had heard complaints of as much as six inches of water standing in some residents' homes.

YESTERDAY afternoon water reportedly was still rising at the Elk Grove Mobile Home Park, 941 W. Higgins Rd.

"The trailer park is a lake, only a muddy one," complained one resident. She said parts of the park were knee-deep in water, and water was seeping into some of the cars.

Eric Train, a resident at the Eagles on Tonne apartments, said raw sewage was backed up in his bathtub and was flooding the laundry room and hallways of the buildings.

Willis said he has talked to the apartment development's engineer and attorney about the flooding problem and steps were being taken to alleviate it.

Power failures were common in the Northwest suburbs and some 400 homes in the Elk Grove Village area were without electricity yesterday morning.

Andreas To Serve As Scout Adviser

A Prospect Heights resident, Ralph Andreas of 18 Marberry Dr., will serve as an adviser to the transportation division of the 1972 Girl Scouts of Chicago Finance Campaign.

Andreas, who served as co-chairman for the division in 1971, is the director of purchasing and traffic for American Oil Co. in Chicago.

Goal for the finance drive is $330,000. Proceeds are used to maintain a scouting program for about 12,000 girls in Chicago.

Active in the Metropolitan Crusade of Mercy, the American Heart Association, the United Settlement Appeal, and civil rights programs, Andreas is past president of the Traffic Club of Chicago and is a member of the Rotary and Union League clubs.

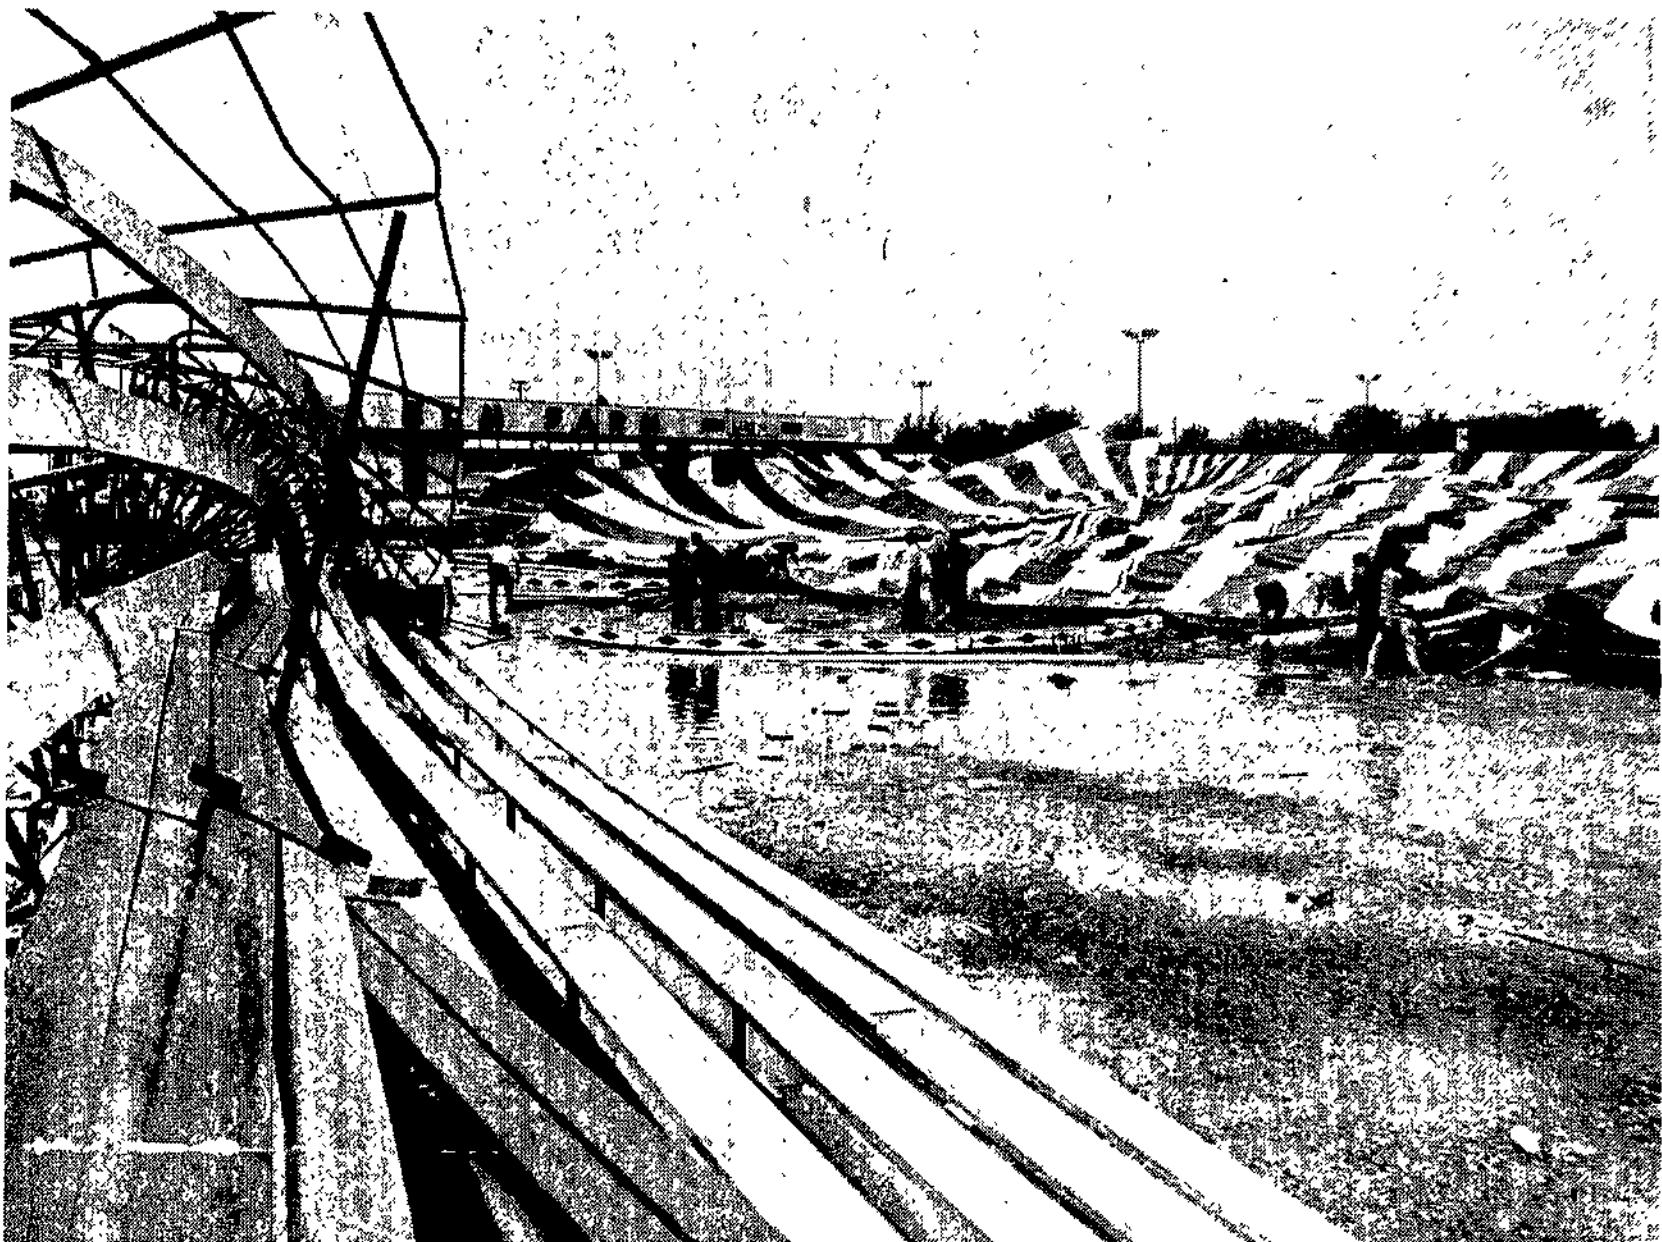

School Board In The Dark!

The Elk Grove Township Elementary Dist. 59 School Board was literally groping in the dark Monday when the lights went out during the board's meeting in the administration building in Arlington Heights.

Board Member Erwin Poklacki was addressing the board when lightning struck a power line outside the building at 9:15 p.m., and the room turned to darkness.

After an executive session by candlelight to discuss personnel and the new teachers' contract, Board Pres. Harry Peterson adjourned the meeting until 8 p.m. next Monday at Brentwood School, 280 W. Dulles Rd., Des Plaines.

Ironically, the blackout forced postponement of action on proposed life safety modifications designed to alleviate danger during a total power failure.

HIGH WINDS during Monday night's storm toppled the Circus Internationale tent and damaged part of the grandstands. No one was reported injured, though damage was estimated at almost $80,000. The performance that had been scheduled for later that night was cancelled. The circus opened last Friday on Rte. 83 just south of Golf Road in Mount Prospect. Despite the mishap, the show was scheduled to go on last night.

Unincorporated Forest View Subdivision

Annexation Always A Possibility For Residents

by HARRY WEINER

Second of Two Parts

Although the Forest View Subdivision has existed for about 17 years as an unincorporated area in Elk Grove Township, the thought of being annexed to Elk Grove Village has never entirely escaped the minds of the nearly 500 subdivision residents.

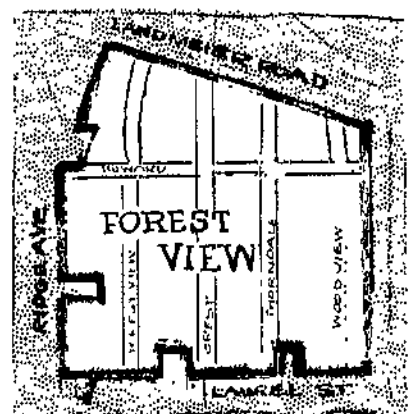

Besides bringing an end to the nagging fire protection issue, advocates of annexation to the village say it would give residents of the 90-acre subdivision better police protection, higher property values and other village services.

But despite repeated attempts at annexation during the last 12 years, the attempts have never gotten any closer than unofficial agreements between the village and homeowners' representatives.

One reason accounts for the lack of agreement: money.

Before the village will agree to annex the subdivision, a number of improvements would be required to bring the subdivision into line with village standards. And the required improvements would cost each homeowner at least $5,000, according to conservative estimates.

Among improvements considered in annexation discussions are construction of water lines, sidewalks, street curbs and street lights and improvements of streets to bring them up to village standards.

THESE IMPROVEMENTS have been among items discussed during annexation talks between the village and homeowners during the last 13 years. In 1969 the discussion progressed as far as the drawing up of a proposed annexation agreement between the groups.

The agreement reportedly would not have required the homeowners to use the village water supply nor construct sidewalks and the village would have installed eight intersection street lights.

However after several years of discussions, the annexation plans were terminated in April, 1970. Since then the only attempt at resuming discussions was a half-hearted one in the fall of 1970.

But though annexation talks have formally ceased — for the time being, at least — there is apparently still some feeling among many homeowners that the subdivision will eventually be annexed.

Teacher Pact OK'd; 6.8% Increase

The Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 Board of Education unanimously approved a new contract for teachers Monday which would mean an average 6.8 per cent salary increase next year for the more than 525 teachers.

Harry Peterson, board president, said the new agreement called for a 2.8 per cent increase in the base pay. According to the current pay scale formula, teachers also will receive an average 4 per cent increment based on education and years of experience.

Last week the Dist. 59 Teachers' Council overwhelmingly accepted the contract with 290 teachers voting to approve the agreement, six voting no and one abstaining.

In a joint statement by the Teachers' Council and the school board issued previously, the increase in the base teacher pay was labeled a cost-of-living increase.

The contract for next fall pegs top teacher pay at $16,942 with experience and education that includes a master's degree plus 30 additional hours of graduate work and 15 years of experience.

Starting teacher pay with a bachelor's degree and no experience was set at $8,047.

This year starting pay for a teacher with a bachelor's degree and no experience was $7,828. The top pay was set at $16,480.

OTHER BENEFITS of the contract include a duty-free lunch period and changes in maternity and insurance benefits.

Tom Dresser, chief negotiator for the teachers, said last week the settlement was reasonable, but he was not overjoyed with it. "Considering the economic times, I'm pleased with it (contract)," he said. "The nonmoney portion of the agreement is very good to excellent. Concerning the money, it is difficult to expect much more considering the financial difficulties of the district."

Seven members from each negotiating team arrived at a tentative agreement June 9 after working four months on the contract.

The only other area elementary district with a new contract for next year is Mount Prospect Dist. 57 with a 3.9 per cent average pay increase for teachers.

TV Satellite Test

by Ed Landwehr

Within the next year or so, a satellite-to-receiver telecasting system will soar over the nation. The experiment will include educational transmission to about 500 communities, school receivers, TV stations and cable systems. The tests will go on for at least a year, and future plans for this system depend on the results.

Of course, we hope that we'll be one of the communities that receives these programs. However, there would be nothing to prevent any individual from acquiring the right type antenna to pick-up these signals. Maybe Landwehr's Home Appliances, 1000 W. Northwest Hwy., Arlington Heights will try it when the time comes. We have been serving TV and antenna systems in this area and have been very successful with our experience. So phone 255-0700 for prompt service. 8 out of 10 times right in your own home. You will like our maintenance work.

STREETS WITHOUT curbs or sidewalks represent one difference between the Forest View Subdivision and Elk Grove Village, a municipality which completely encircles the 90-acre area. The difference also represents major stumbling block to annexation, since the village would require a number of improvements to be paid by subdivision homeowners before the area could be annexed.

Will Home Owners Ever Annex?

Many residents of the subdivision would apparently like to be annexed by the village, but the high cost of improvements continues to be a stumbling block.

"A LOT OF people — including myself — would like to be part of the village," says John Jackson, president of the Forest View Homeowners Association. "But when you're talking about a $6,000 to $9,000 home improvement cost, you're hitting the heart of the matter."

Other residents agree with Jackson, noting that the village "wants too many improvements — curbs, streets, sidewalks, water." Still, they admit, annexation to the village would undoubtedly be beneficial in the long run.

"We would be glad to be part of the village," says Mrs. Phyllis Gilszmer, 613 Thorndale Ave. Mrs. Gilszmer and her husband have lived in the subdivision nearly 17 years moving into the fifth house built in the subdivision in 1955.

But the longtime subdivision resident notes that the village's terms are still too harsh, although "they're getting to be a little more reasonable than they used to be."

Since the Gilszmers live on the edge of the subdivision, they could annex to the village by themselves. But, Mrs. Gilsz-mer says, "we would prefer to wait for the whole area."

FOR THE AREA to be annexed voluntarily signatures of more than 50 per cent of the property owners must be gathered. After that, it would once again be a matter of homeowners and village officials coming to a mutually agreeable annexation pact.

The village could take the initiative annex the area. There are two methods available to bring the area into the village.

Under one method, the village could institute a simple agreement with officials of the Natural Gas Pipeline Co. to officially annex the company's easement, which runs through the middle of Forest View. The area would then be divided into two sections each less than 60 acres, thereby legally giving the village the right to forcibly annex the areas.

The second method would be to "encourage" annexation along the perimeter of the subdivision, to bring the remainder within the 60-acre requirement.

BUT THE VILLAGE has never forcibly annexed an area and has no plans to change the policy, says Village Mgr. Charles Willis. "The village's public position has not changed. It is not engaged in involuntary annexation," Willis says.

Thus, it remains for homeowners of the subdivision to take the initiative if the area is to ever be part of the village. And though an attempt will undoubtedly be made sometime to begin discussions once again, whether or not they will ever succeed remains very much an open question.

Edwin Frank Will Oppose Crane In Congressional Race

Democrats in the 12th Congressional District have named Edwin L. Frank, 42, of Hoffman Estates, to carry the fight against the reelection of Republican U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane.

Frank was selected from among six applicants for the job by the 12th Congressional District Democratic Committee composed of township committeemen in Cook County and Herbert L. (Hub) Stern of Waukegan, Lake County Democratic chairman.

State Rep. Daniel Pierce, D-Highland Park, state central committeeman and chairman of the district committee, said the committee selected Frank largely on the basis of his past political experience.

Frank has been active in Schaumburg Township party affairs and is currently treasurer and parliamentarian of the township Democratic organization.

He has played an active part in campaigns for state Rep. Eugenia S. Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, and in the two campaigns by former state Rep. Ed Warman if Skokie against Crane.

PIERCE SAID Frank demonstrated a wide acquaintance among Democratic committeemen and "appeared quite knowledgeable" about issues in the coming election.

Others who sought the job of running against Crane included Mrs. Betty Spence of Buffalo Grove, Mrs. Irene Pitke of Hoffman Estates, Julian Kahn of Highland Park, James Frankel of Highland Park, and Marshall Rothman of Barrington, an unsuccessful candidate for the Democratic nomination for the state senate in the March primary.

All but Mrs. Pitke and Frankel appeared before the committee to present their credentials, Pierce said. Mrs. Pitke is currently in Europe. Frankel's qualifications were presented by Stern.

The committee began its search for a candidate following the withdrawal last month of Charles W. Houchins, who attracted some 18,000 votes as an unopposed candidate for the Democratic nomination in March.

Frank is a former Hoffman Estates park commissioner and is executive vice president of an Aurora advertising agency. He holds a marketing degree from Rutgers University and formerly taught at the State University of New York in Orange County and worked as a part-time reporter for Pioneer Press.

Cook County Criminal Court Judge Richard J. Fitzgerald continued the trial of three men indicted for the murder of Inverness Horseman George Jayne until July 12.

The judge continued the case yesterday morning when a hearing to suppress evidence found in the home of Joseph LaPlaca of Elgin was to have been held.

LaPlaca, Silas Jayne of Elgin and Julius Barnes of Chicago are all being held on charges of murder and conspiracy to commit murder in the 1970 death of George Jayne.

New School 75 Days Behind

Poor weather was blamed for construction delays which may postpone the completion of Friendship Junior High School on Algonquin Road near Elmhurst Road in Des Plaines by about 75 days, according to architect Scott Kelley.

Kelley told members of the Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 school board Monday that the $2.4 million building scheduled for completion in December probably will not be finished until March 1973.

"Construction isn't progressing as fast as we may have wished, but we're not too disappointed," he said. "The weather was a major problem and cost us about 90 days."

Kelley added that unstable soil conditions accounted for another 20 days and problems with a subcontractor delayed work 15 days.

He said that soil compaction on the site is 85 per cent complete and the steel beams were going up every day.

When Friendship School opens in the fall of 1973, it will be the fifth junior high school in Elk Grove Township Dist. 59. The building was approved in a 1971 bond referendum, and construction started early this year.

Elk Grove High Grad Wins $1,000 Scholarship

Gail Greaves, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Greaves of Elk Grove Village, has been named this year's recipient of the annual Dist. 37 PTA $1,000 Golden Jubilee Scholarship.

Miss Greaves, 18, graduated from Elk Grove High School Monday where she received the art department honors award. She plans to study for a teaching degree in art at Northern Illinois University in DeKalb this fall.

She was active in the high school's art and drama clubs and has taught in the Elk Grove Park District's crafts program in past summers. Miss Greaves' accomplishments include designing the cover for the highschool yearbook last year and the cover for this year's school literary magazine.

Alternates for the scholarship are Debra Kematiz, 163 Lafayette Ln., Hoffman Estates, first alternate; and Stephen Scholten, 126 Essex Rd., Hoffman Estates, second alternate.

THE GOLDEN Jubilee Scholarship program was established in 1950 by the Illinois PTA to commemorate its 50th anniversary. The grant is financed by voluntary contributions from PTAs and other interested citizens.

Dist. 37 consists of 88 PTA units in the Northwest suburbs with Mrs. Robert Dailstream, director, and Mrs. Edward Vetterli, scholarship assistant.

The $1,000 scholarship award is payable in four installments of $250 for four years, subject to renewal each year by the scholarship committee. Selection of winners is based on scholastic achievement, teachers' recommendations, personal references and participation in school activities.

Motorcycle Gold Cup Race Is Voted Down

There will be no replay this fall of the Yamaha Gold Cup motorcycle race held last year at Arlington Park that stirred up many Rolling Meadows and Arlington Heights residents.

The Arlington Heights Village Board Monday night voted 6-0 to deny a request by Chicago Thoroughbred Enterprises (CTE) to sponsor the race Sept. 9 at the track.

It was the second time in three weeks that CTE took a beating on the race proposal. The Arlington Heights plan commission, acting only in an advisory capacity, turned the plan down 10-2 on May 31. A representative of the Rolling Meadows City Council opposed the race at that hearing.

CTE officials told the board during a lengthy and detailed presentation Monday that the race track company did not plan to file suit against the village in an attempt to reverse the decision.

About 20 residents appeared before the board to testify for and against the race.

In making the motion to deny the special-use request, Trustee Dwight Walton said he felt this was a "rather extreme request" and one that boiled down to the issue of noise.

CTE SECRETARY Newton Mandel told the board in his opinion a special use permit was not legally required under provisions of the 1969 annexation agreement between the village and the race track.

He likened that agreement to a "marriage contract" in which he said there is "always a lot of give and take."

Tom Rivera, publicity director for the race track, reiterated the race track's willingness to modify the operation of this year's race in an effort to minimize the lights, dust, noise and length that were sources of complaints last year.

Rivera told the board CTE had "absolutely no plans to initiate any other event of this type," or to run the motorcycle race at Arlington Park more than once a year.

In stating he felt Arlington Park had a legal right to the special-use permit, Mandel said that in no way had it been demonstrated that the race would be injurious to the "health, safety, morals or general welfare" of residents.

Push On For Flood Appropriations

State Rep. Eugene Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, said yesterday after touring flooded areas in Prospect Heights and Wheeling that he would push harder for a state flood improvements appropriations bill now in the Illinois General Assembly.

Schlickman, along with John Guillou, chief engineer of the Illinois Division of Waterways, toured the area yesterday afternoon following Monday night's rain which left areas along McDonald Creek flooded.

Much of the flooding was blamed on the Soo Line Rwy. culvert at McDonald Creek. Funds from the bill would pay for a new culvert system that would increase the capacity of the creek.

The present culvert consists of a series of S pipes through which runoff from the creek flows into a tributary of the Des Plaines River.

THE FLOODING which completely covered the intersection of Wolf and Euclid roads in Prospect Heights was the apparent result of inadequate drainage at the culvert.

The Schlickman-sponsored bill calls for improvement of the culvert area at a cost of $170,000 including enlargement of the culvert mouth and replacement of the pipes.

"The culvert is obviously inefficient," said Schlickman. "The pipes are too small to do the job and they've got to be replaced."

Money for the bill which passed the legislature last year was received too late for work to start this spring, according to Guillou.

"THE PROJECT is in cooperation with the Soo Line because the culvert runs under their tracks," he said. "But the money was not only received too late, but Soo Line wanted a higher quality structure than we were going to build on their property."

Schlickman said he will work for passage of the appropriations bill when he returns to the General Assembly. Another area of the creek along Ill.

Rte. 83 had risen as high as six feet from the flooding but the waters began to subside early yesterday.

The officials also paid a visit to a flooded residential area surrounding Buffalo Creek in Wheeling.

Schlickman added he will also work for passage of a bill calling for construction of retention basins around Buffalo Creek.

Schlickman could not say whether the troubled area will receive any emergency relief funding, but added that residents may be able to secure federally funded insurance loans through the Small Business Administration (SBA). The area would have to be declared in a state of emergency first, he said.

Des Plaines Man Charged

Randy Bennett of 9020 W. Oak St. of Des Plaines faces an Aug. 9 court date in Schaumburg to answer charges of deceptive practices and possession of stolen property placed against him by Schaumburg police on Monday.

Detective Walter King and Patrolman Michael Bromund arrested Bennett on complaints from Penny's Department Store in the Woodfield Shopping Center in Schaumburg.

Bennett reportedly ran out of Penny's when clerks were checking a credit card he attempted to use. Police said the card was reported stolen from an Elk Grove resident.

Equal Rights Bill Falter

Rep. Chapman's Efforts Fail

by BOB LAHEY

A News Analysis

The Equal Rights Amendment to the U.S. Constitution has been placed in the deep freeze for the waning days of the 77th General Assembly.

Following its defeat at the hands of disgruntled Daley Democrats last week, there appears little hope for revival of the amendment in this session.

"There really isn't any point in bringing up the measure again this week unless some votes are changed," said Rep. Eugene S. Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, who along with Rep. Giddy Dyer, R-Hinsdale, has been the chief advocate of the amendment in Springfield.

The likelihood of changing the votes that count — those of Daley cronies who had earlier supported the measure but now oppose it — is slim.

Mrs. Chapman angered those Daleyites by declaring publicly last week that she would support Sen. Adlai Stevenson for the chairmanship of the Illinois delegation to the Democratic National Convention, in opposition to the mayor.

As it turned out, Mrs. Chapman, along with "independent" Democratic colleagues from the suburbs, wound up voting for Daley as chairman after Stevenson withdrew his name in the wake of some serious arm-twisting on his supporters by the mayor's henchmen.

HER VOTE DID little to mollify the Daley forces, however. She had made her position clear, and as she noted afterwards, "They have long memories."

Mrs. Chapman noted, dryly, that none of the mayor's sidekicks had presented any threat to her or to the ERA in seeking her conversion from Stevenson to Daley.

In fact, Rep. Gerald Shea, D-Riverside, the assistant minority leader, promised to vote for the amendment even after Mrs. Chapman informed him that she was committed to Stevenson if he sought the chairmanship. He did vote for it, and he promised Mrs. Chapman that he would not ask any of the Daley people "to lay off."

Shea simply told Mrs. Chapman, in words to this effect, "You should realize that tempers are high and you are going to lose some votes if you back Stevenson."

A Marathon Session Seen For Assembly

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — The Illinois General Assembly appears headed for another marathon session despite the grumblings of a group of irate senators who say they're anxious to go home.

Tempers flared in the Senate Monday when some senators — in an attempt to cut short the already-extended spring session — tried to kill off a huge stack of "low priority" bills facing upper chamber.

Senate leaders had earlier set June 2 as the adjournment date, then moved it to June 9, then to the 16th and now are refusing to say when the legislature will clear out for the summer.

But a pile of bills still demanding action appears too much for the lawmakers to tackle before the weekend when they must leave town to make room for a Moose convention in the capital city.

SEN. FRANK SAVICKAS, D-Chicago, touched off the furor when he made the motion to strike all bills not falling into the categories of appropriation, administration, revenue or constitutional measures.

After leaders from both parties objected to the motion, Savickas withdrew his motion saying, "I made my point," but not before he gave other senators a chance to blow off some steam.

"This is the first time in my 15 years in the General Assembly that I've come down here not knowing when we were going home," Sen. Jack Walker, R-Lansing, said. "For this I blame the leadership of both houses."

Walker, a former speaker of the House, asked Senate Majority Leader Sen. Cecil Partee, D-Chicago, when he planned to adjourn the session.

"There will always be those who have something to say when they should have had something to say earlier," Partee quipped. He reminded the Senate that he had earlier tried to limit the Senate to considering only bills falling into the priority areas.

No one else attempted to trade a vote for ERA for a vote for Daley, Mrs. Chapman reported. But she "heard" things. A number of friends informed her, she said, that she was losing ground — among others of course — because of her support of Stevenson.

Mrs. Chapman emphasized that there were no threats, however.

There were a couple of influential Democrats who had earlier supported the ERA, who found that they were forced into voting against it because of some sort of groundswell of opposition among their constituency.

FOR INSTANCE, Rep. Clyde L. Choate, D-Anna, House minority leader, declared that sentiment in his district dictated a change of heart. Choate was a protégé of the late Paul Powell and the things for which he is noted do not include a great sensitivity to the wishes of the taxpayers. He declared, however, that the logic of the arguments against ERA had convinced him that he must vote against it.

Even more remarkable was the switch of Rep. Victor Arrigo, a Chicago Democrat, who was persuaded to oppose ERA because of past actions of Mrs. Chapman and Mrs. Dyer.

Arrigo, who must have some remarkable students of the legislature in his district, said he was prevailed upon by constituents to oppose ERA because of the past voting records of the only two women in the House of Representatives.

As explained by Arrigo, a number of voters in his district had taken the trouble to examine the voting records of the two women and discovered that they had been for liberalized abortion laws, opposed parochialism, and failed to vote for legalized bingo.

Therefore, his constituents concluded there must be something evil in their support of ERA and Arrigo decided he had to vote as all his supporters told him.

"I have no reason to believe that they had any other reason for voting against the amendment," said Mrs. Chapman.

GIVEN THE reasoned and conscientious stand of those Daley supporters who shot down the amendment — and their long memories — the fate of the measure is now in the hands of its supporters among the public.

"When there are enough votes to pass it, Giddy and I will ask the speaker to call it for a vote," she said.

It is unlikely that the votes will be there this week, or next week, if the legislature fails to make its Friday adjournment date — or in the fall, if the lawmakers are forced back into session to act on vetoes by the governor.

The hope for ERA now appears to center on a reorganized legislature next January. There will be a lot of new faces in Springfield in the 78th General Assembly.

In the House of Representatives, only 64 of 90 Republicans are seeking reelection, and 64 of 87 Democrats. In the Senate, there will be a maximum 20 of 29 returning senators, and 23 of 29 Democrats.

Current trends indicate that younger and more liberal candidates will dominate the elections, and the prospects of ERA will be much brighter in January than they are today.

Busing's Not Only Problem

Listening to national political candidates this year you'd think the only problem facing educators today is cross-town busing. But this just isn't so.

A virtual revolution is going on in education that may completely transform what we know as school district organization and school finance. It is about time the politicians stop dodging the issues and let us know where they stand.

Granted, long range proposals for reorganization are not as visible or as immediate as busing, but they are just as important.

Do the politicians favor local property tax support of school districts or do they favor a boost in government aid? If they think the tax burden should be taken off the homeowner, where are they going to get the money to replace property taxes? Should school districts separate or combine elementary and high school grades?

Answers to these questions are going to be made by the men we elect to office (indeed, courts and legislatures are considering them now). But the impact is going to be felt right at home. We should know how our prospective leaders would act before we cast our ballot — not when it is too late.

This is not to say we should minimize the problems of desegregation. They are there and have to be dealt with. But they shouldn't be spotlighted as a campaign gambit to drum up an emotional vote at the polls.

The place for resolving the desegregation controversy is in the courts and the legislatures, not on a soapbox.

A Supreme Court showdown is expected later this year on a Denver case. Meanwhile, rulings in lesser courts have produced confusion and emotionalism in cities across the country. A court decision in Richmond, Virginia to consolidate city and suburban districts and implement countywide busing was recently overruled. But another court in Detroit just launched a new city-suburban busing plan.

Congress, however, may have placed a lid on further court-ordered busing until Jan. 1, 1974. A new education bill puts a total freeze on all busing plans and transfer of students for at least 18 months. Permanent restrictions on busing for desegregation has been proposed in a presidential legislative package.

Busing is indeed a controversial issue ripe for political exploitation. But voters should not allow it to overshadow other education issues of just as much import, if not as much color.

Education is a many-sided issue, far more complex than the school bus issue. Let's take another look before we go to the polls.

Socking Cash Away

The following information is for those Americans — all 17 of them — who are socking money away in the bank like crazy and feeling guilty about it.

Despite what you may have heard, the money you put in a savings account does as much for the economy as money spent directly for consumer goods and services, says the United States Savings and Loan League. It "works" just as hard in creating jobs and new business enterprises, while having the additional advantages of building your own future purchasing power as it contributes to your financial stability and independence.

Deposits in savings and loan associations, for instance, go to finance a wide range of loans for housing purposes.

— Money saved at mutual savings banks is used to finance housing and real estate developments and to buy corporate bonds.

— Money saved at commercial banks goes for a wide range of purposes, including the financing of businesses, commercial enterprises and to buy municipal bonds, whose proceeds pay for job-creating government projects.

— Money placed in credit unions is earmarked for consumer loans to purchase all kinds of goods and services.

Now you can smile all the way to the bank.

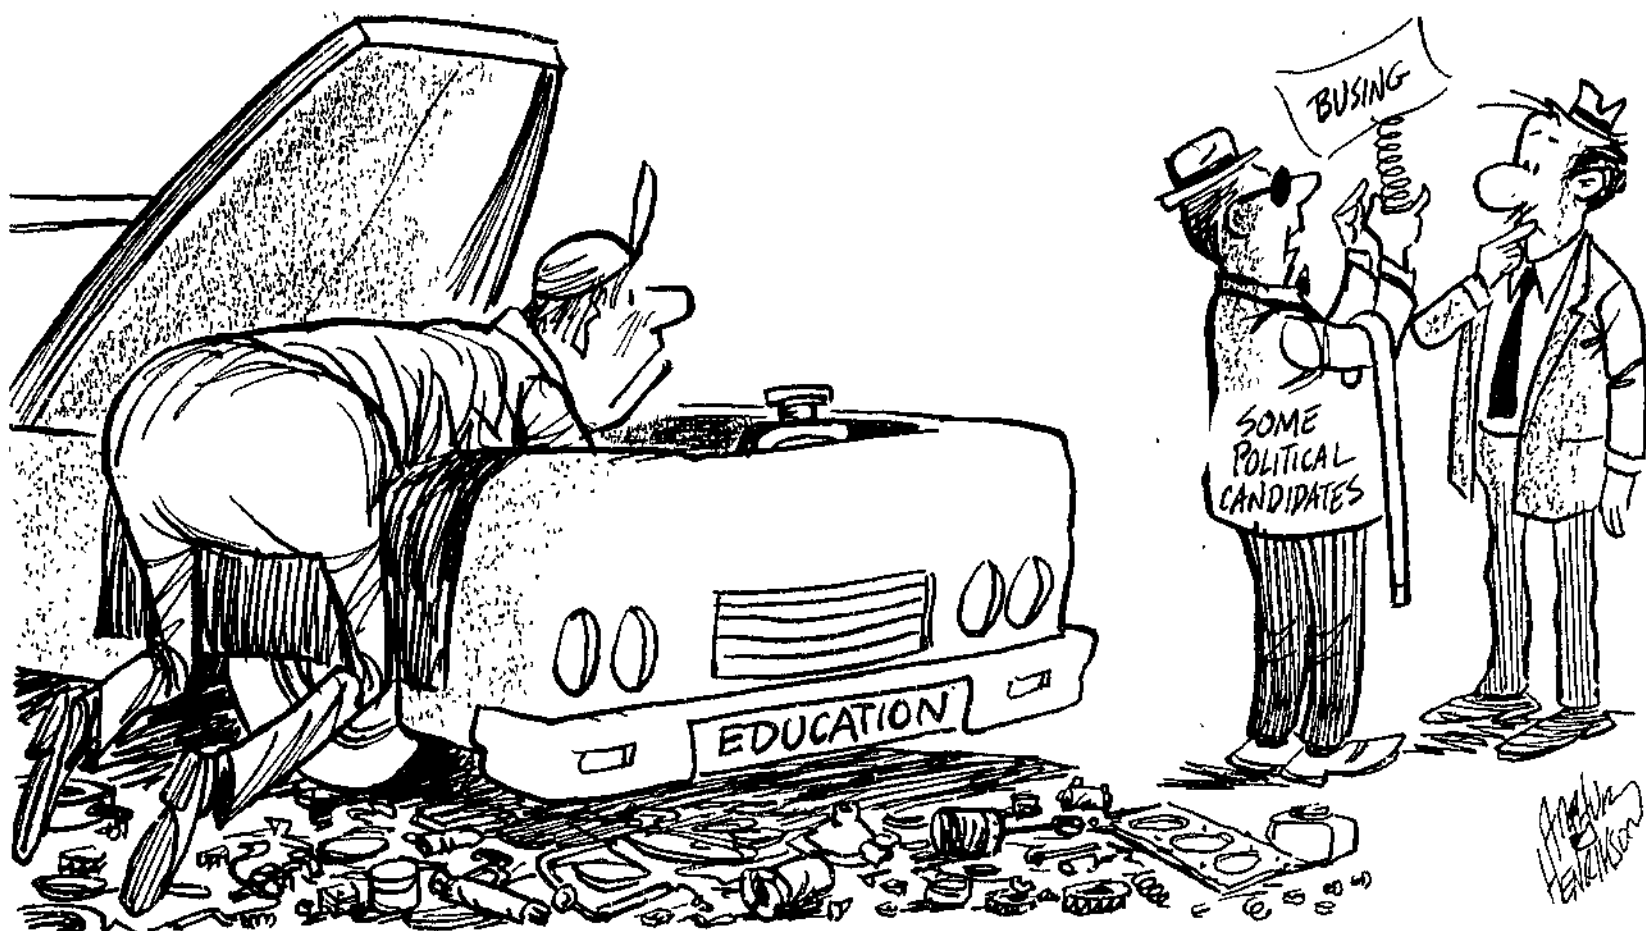

Joke Of A Butt

British cigarette makers are trying for a synthetic. Sounds like the joke of a butt.

One cigarette maker has tried four parts pulpwood and one part tobacco. It figures to be a popular brand.

The wood pulp cigarette "looks, smells, burns and tastes" like regular tobacco, says the maker. Kind of makes you pine to try one.

Simple-Here's What's Wrong

The Public's Issue

ERA Challenged By Legislator

During the early skirmishes which surrounded attempts to ratify the Equal Rights Amendment, the rhetoric of male chauvinism ("brainless brutes broads") dominated opposition to the amendment.

There are, however, good reasons to oppose ERA and State Rep. Eugene Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, presents in this week's "Public's Issue" a cogent argument against a new amendment to the U. S. Constitution.

This week, the Illinois House of Representatives, for the second time, will be voting on the proposed amendment to the U. S. Constitution, which popularly is referred to as the Equal Rights Amendment (ERA). The exact language of the amendment is: "Equality of rights under law shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or any State on account of sex."

On the surface, this amendment is praiseworthy and very much in order. Surely, women are as much human beings as are men and entitled to the same respect and rights.

In the last century, the states ratified the 14th amendment to the U. S. Constitution which provides in part: "no State shall make or enforce any law which shall abridge the privileges or immunities of citizens of the United States . . . nor deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws."

Eugene Schlickman

The drafters of the 14th amendment intended that all persons be treated equally and without discrimination based on prejudice or bigotry. Unfortunately, the courts were not quick to implement the 14th amendment, and we had to wait almost 100 years before blacks were assured their equal rights. As to women and their rights, we had to wait until last fall when the U. S. Supreme Court finally held that women and men should be treated equally when it comes to the selection of an administrator of a decedent's estate.

Some argue that we need ERA, not because it provides any additional rights unprovided by the 14th amendment, but because the interests of women today should be acknowledged by emphasis, through a separate amendment to the U. S. Constitution that's limited to sex alone. It's a needed act of symbolism, according to U. S. Senator Birch Bayh (D-Indiana).

I have too much respect for the U. S. Constitution to use it as a vehicle for promotion of a contemporary phenomenon. Furthermore, I do not ever want to be party to an effort to amend the U. S. Constitution for the sake of symbolism alone.

What particularly bothers me about ERA is that it is not just redundant or symbolic; rather it's substantially contradictory to the 14th amendment and for the first time, to my knowledge, we would have in the U. S. Constitution and its amendments, provisions that are contrary. The 14th amendment prohibits unreasonable classification, ERA prohibits reasonable classification.

Today, we have labor laws that supposedly are intended to protect women from abuse. We have criminal laws that acknowledge the physiological nature of women. Our family laws distinguish between males and females. By the ratification of ERA, all of these apparent reasonable classifications would be in doubt.

Every constitutional law expert, that I am aware of, advises against ERA because of the "mischief" that could result. Rather, they urge wise judicial interpretation of the 14th amendment, and enlightened legislative implementation.

I'm also bothered by the all-encompassing nature of ERA. Do all women want to sacrifice what privileges and protections they now have for the sake of equality? Surveys and polls say no! When considering ERA, we should keep in mind the vast majority of women and particularly those least able to express themselves.

For those who want equality, there's the availability of our existing constitutional provisions (Federal 14th amendment and State's Bill of Rights), Federal Civil Rights Acts and State Fair Employment Practices Act.

As things now stand, those women who want to exert equality may do so; and those women who want to avail themselves of the existing protections of the law may do so.

My personal legislative record in the area of civil rights is a matter of public record. Proponents of ERA acknowledge this record but are appalled that I have not supported ERA. In fact, they are willing to discount everything I have done to date and judge me only by my vote on ERA. I would hope that they would accept the fact that after 13 years of legislative experience, I've developed some consistency in my philosophy and that, perhaps, when in doubt, they should interpret my decision in a particular matter within a context of a total record.

'Our Trees Can Ease Flooding'

As residents of Meadowbrook West in Wheeling and owners of property adjacent to the creek, we would like to emphatically state that the number one reason we wanted to save the creek trees is because we felt their removal would do absolutely nothing to alleviate our flooding problem.

We have looked out our living room window and watched the flood waters come down Wolf Road, flood Meadowbrook Lane, flood our front yard, go through our house, flood our backyard down to the creek, which has not gone over yet. We flood from Wolf Road, not the creek. Granted, this is a simplification of a complicated problem, but removal of the creek trees did not add to its solution.

The creek trees provide shade for our homes, a sanctuary for our birds and a lot of cotton seeds flying through the air like snow in spring. But most important they absorb a lot of water and hold the banks of the creek intact, preventing soil erosion.

We have no argument that a new Jeffrey Avenue bridge is needed. We have no argument that the creek should be thoroughly cleared of garbage, fallen branches and the rats that make a home there.

We did argue that thorough and convincing studies by the proper government agencies, such as the U.S. Soil Conservation Service, be made before the creek is widened. These studies can only be done if the village requests them. During the meeting at the creek, the village trustees and the village manager were asked questions about the project. They said they couldn't answer the questions, instead we should address the questions to the engineer from Harza. They begged off ignorance, said they were not engineers by trade. Wouldn't

The FENCE POST Letters to the Editor

'Circus Didn't Intend To Shock'

On behalf of Double Dydee Mothers of Twins Club we write this letter in response to Jo Ann Becker's letter published on May 31 in the Herald.

Our circus show held Sunday, May 7, at John Hersey High School featuring WGN-TV stars Ned Locke and Cookie the Clown was an enormous success. Our club will be donating all of the proceeds from the circus show to Clearbrook Center for the Mentally Retarded. The purpose of the circus show was to aid Clearbrook, not to frighten children with a magician's ghastly trick. We surely apologize to any offended parents or children.

These same men want the studies done, want to have all possible data on the project, before they give it their okay? But now we find ourselves on a limited timetable with a June 30 deadline for state funds. Is this professionalism in government? No, we do not say we want the trees and will placidly observe our property destroyed by the next flood. We merely say one has nothing to do with the other. And we sincerely trust that our elected officials will endeavor to do all they can, learn all they can about flood control.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Ringelstein
Wheeling

Our membership consists completely of mothers and we would not intentionally shock anyone, especially children. Prior to the magician's disappearing act Ned Locke stressed the fact that this act was an illusion and not to be believed. We can understand how in the excitement of the afternoon perhaps not everyone was fully aware of the introduction.

Again, we are sorry for any sleepless nights and publicly thank all who attended and supported our circus show for Clearbrook Center.

Abortion's 'Immoral'

Here's another member of the majority responding to W. E. Smolley's appeal for voices against abortion.

It's unfortunate that so many equate contraception with abortion. Birth control by means of contraception is a responsible action deemed necessary by many in today's world. Abortion at worst is an immoral attempt to rectify someone's irresponsibility, and at best an unsuccessful attempt of man to play God.

However, I'm afraid abortion is just one more visible sign; no worse than war in Viet Nam or genocide in Bangladesh, of man's eroding attitude toward other human beings. We simply "eliminate" anyone who stands in our way.

Tomorrow . . .

EDITORIAL: Richard J. Daley's "last hurrah."

How early can one "justify" abortion? The baby's heart, hallmark of life, is beating by the time a woman realizes she is pregnant.

I was quite moved some time ago by an account in this paper of the birth of an extremely premature baby girl. Her parents were expending great amounts of concern and money in an effort to secure her life at the same time other mothers were destroying the lives of similar children. It became quite clear that the question is not, "Am I human?" but rather "Does someone want me?" In this light we must call a spade a spade.

Opponents to abortion often seem rather callous to the intense sufferings that bring many women to the brink of abortion. I do not mean to be represented thus. But any woman who has carried life within her or any man who has eagerly taken the doctor's stethoscope to listen to his child's heartbeat "in utero" can tell you that abortion just isn't the answer.

Thanks For Support

The Monroe family wishes to thank our neighbors and the many people of the northwest communities who have provided us with their support, prayers and concern for the recovery of our son John, age 16, from his gym accident March 22nd at Forest View High School.

We wish to inform the many concerned that John regained consciousness after weeks of coma and is now in rehabilitation at St. Alexius Hospital. He has regained his mental abilities but is still bedfast and unable to communicate orally. John does not appear to suffer from paralysis, yet must regain all of his voluntary movements. Some slight progress has been shown in this area.

Our son is well aware of the keen interest shown in his recovery by the community, and we pray that this encouragement together with his good spirit and youth will enable him to work for a complete recovery over the many months ahead.

Dear Customer:
Since the organization of our bank, we have looked for ways to serve our community and our customers. In an effort to acquaint our friends, both new and old, we have looked for a symbol, a mascot, or a legend that would depict our aim of being not only a bank of service to our customers and community but one that would indicate excellence in banking; or shall we say, "A Bank To Look Up To." On an occasion prior to the opening of our Bank, each Director was given a small ceramic giraffe with the statement that he was a person "who could stick his neck out and still keep his feet on the ground." Then why not select this tall, stately animal as our symbol — certainly one needs to look up to it.

Along with the introduction of our new staff member, the giraffe, we would like to introduce several new services. In keeping with our policy of the past, we would like to allow our present customers to take advantage of the new programs instituted by our bank that would save them money prior to the introduction to the general public. Starting June 29 the following new services will be available:

- CHECK 'N SAVE Accounts — free checking account with $400 savings account balance
- FREE minimum $100 checking account
- New low auto loan rates
- Overdraft banking
- Starting the 29th of June we will give out a stuffed giraffe to those customers who open CHECK 'N SAVE Accounts. To qualify for a giraffe, a customer may do one of the following things:
- If you have a checking account, open a matched savings account of $400.00 or more.
- If you have a savings account, bring the account above $400.00 and open a matched checking account. (Minimum deposit of $200.00 or more.)
- If you have $400.00 or more in a savings account and a checking account that is not matched, you may match the accounts and add $200.00 or more to the savings account.
- If you have a checking and savings account that are not matched and the savings balance is less than $400.00, you may match the accounts and bring the savings balance above $400.00 with a deposit of no less than $200.00 to the savings account.

The changes for opening CHECK 'N SAVE Accounts can be accomplished by telephoning our New Accounts Department or stopping in during our many hours of customer service. We are sorry that we will be unable to forward the giraffe to you by mail but we will hold one for you until it is convenient to come in. Our supply is limited, so please one FREE giraffe per family.

We look forward to meeting with you and discussing in detail the changes and sincerely hope that these new services will work to your advantage

by DOROTHY OLIVER

Life can be difficult for the handicapped teenager.

He is too old to receive the special attention doled out to a small child; he is often immobile in his highly mobile society; he is sometimes ignored or mocked by his non-handicapped peers.

A group of teens in the northwest suburbs recognized the plight of the handicapped teen and decided to do something to change it. They formed TASK — Teen Aides For Special Kids — and set their goal.

"We are trying to find teens with handicaps — not to feel sorry for them but to integrate them in a peer group. Handicapped young people are often left out by mobile society; they need friends," said Jo Wood, adult coordinator of the group.

TASK STARTED in 1968 when teens who had attended the Teen-Aides Health Careers Course at their local high schools wanted to continue working with the handicapped.

The course, sponsored by United Cerebral Palsy of Greater Chicago and conducted by Mrs. Wood and other members of the Northwest Suburban League of the UCP Women's Committee, was offered to students in District 207 and 214. The course was given on Saturday mornings and the teens were trained to be companion sitters for handicapped people.

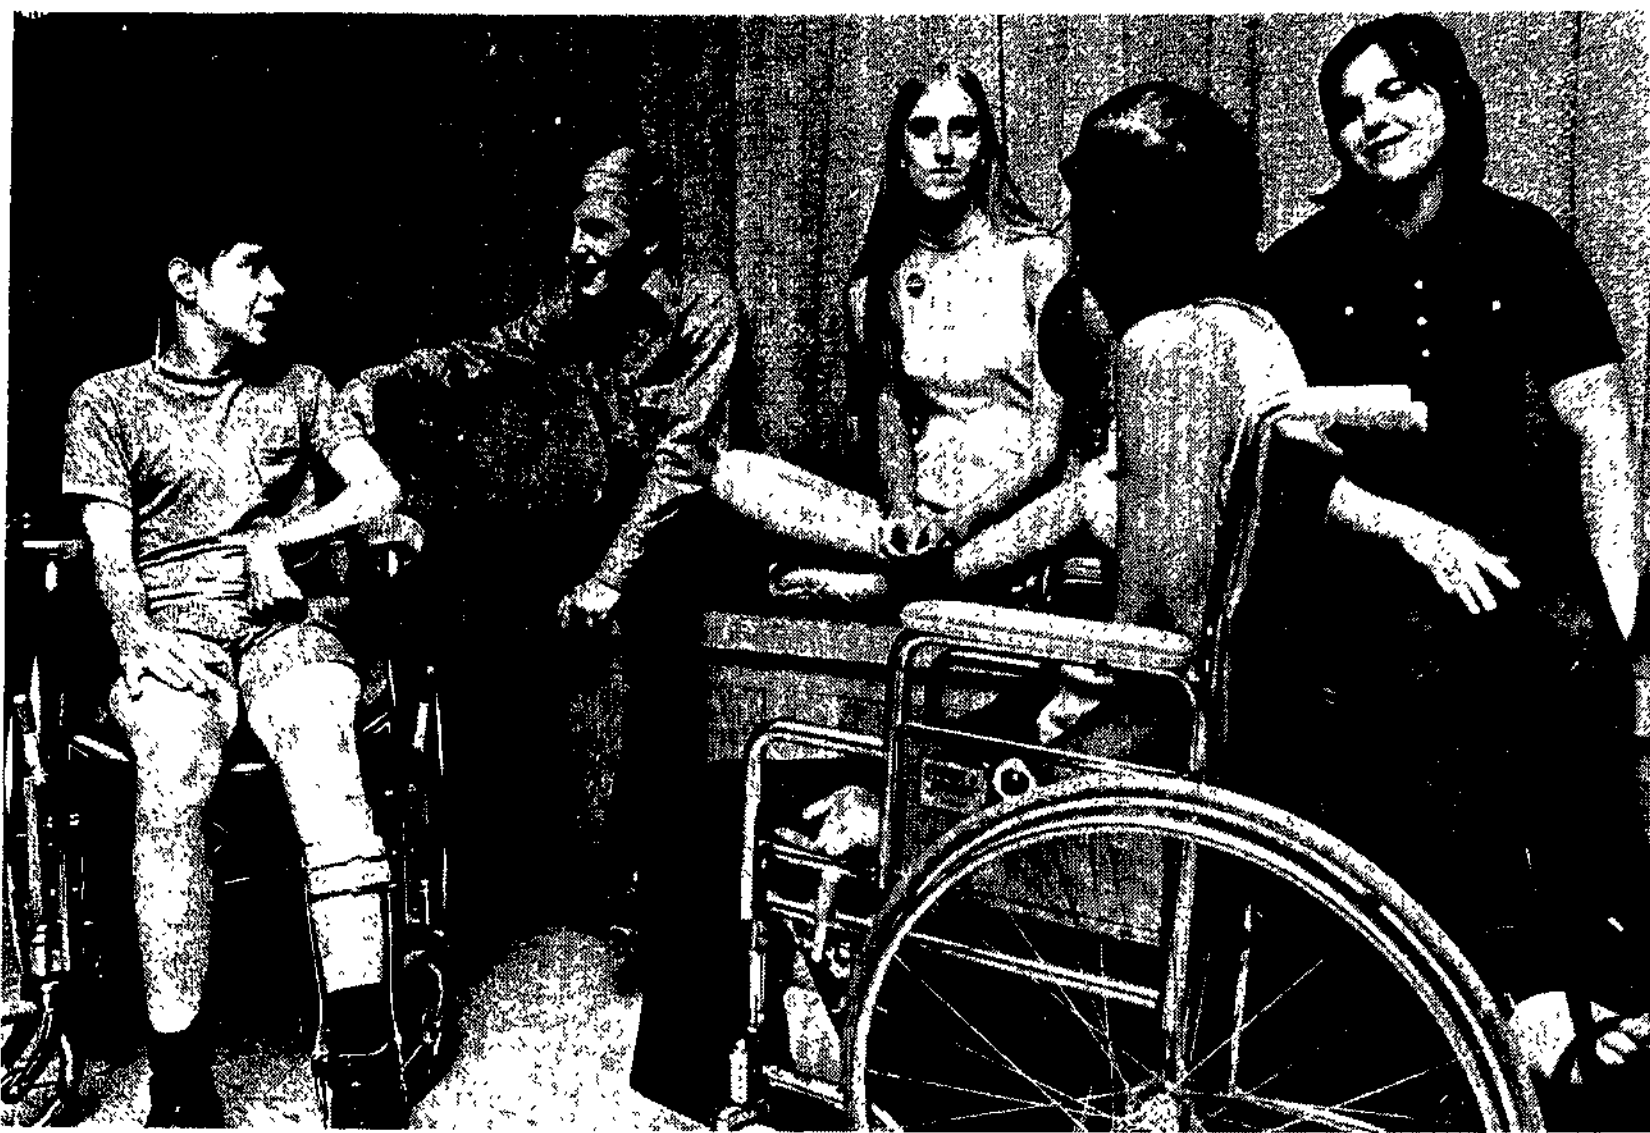

Professionals in the fields of medicine and special education demonstrated their skills in helping handicapped persons reach their fullest potentials for the young people. Cerebral palsied children and adults came to sessions so the teens would better understand the problems and care of the handicapped.

THE GOAL OF THE program was to introduce young people to the career opportunities in the specialized fields of working with the handicapped, to train them as companion sitters so the parents of handicapped children could more fully share in community and social life outside of the home, and to provide the teens with exposure to the world of the handicapped.

The response from young people was enthusiastic. More than 900 completed the course. A number of them, in seeking to continue working with handicapped their own age, formed TASK.

Surprisingly, none of the TASK members come from handicapped-oriented families. For some, their first one-to-one encounter with handicapped people was through the Careers Course.

"TASK is unique — it's the only one in the county," Mrs. Wood said. "There is a network of Concerned Youth for Cerebral THERE'S ALWAYS SOMETHING to talk about when teens get together. Rick Hasselmann, Des Plaines; Joyce Dawidczyk, Park Ridge; and Mary Ann Vacilek, Des Plaines, exchanged plenty of ideas at a recent TASK get-together. Jeff, Nancy and Mary Ann are members of the Northwest suburban group.

Palsy groups springing up around college campuses, but TASK works with handicapped on the high school level. Also, we work with all handicapped, not just CPs."

THE 15 TASK MEMBERS are a composite of young people with a common interest from all the high schools in the area. They meet once a month at Trinity Lutheran Church, Des Plaines, to plan social activities for teens and set up volunteer work with other handicapped kids.

This year TASK members held two socials at Trinity. "Trinity is a church that has really opened their doors. We need a place that has ramps so the kids in wheelchairs can get in and out. Trinity let us use their facilities at no charge."

"But we're not getting as many people out as we could because we are holding things at a church. I'd like to see a service organization in the area offer their facilities to TASK just twice a year for our benefits and dances," Mrs. Wood said.

THE FIRST SOCIAL was a success simply because it paved the way for the second, larger get-together. About 12 handicapped teens joined with 40 non-handicapped teens to listen to music, talk and enjoy being together.

"The kids were a little disappointed in the number of handicapped that turned out for the first social. They had hoped for more. I tried to explain that the parents and the handicapped teens would be a little wary of coming to something until they knew more about it," Mrs. Wood said.

"The second social was more successful in numbers because those who were handicapped had a better trust level. Everyone who was there the first time came back the second time."

Nearly as many non-TASK members worked hard to organize the socials as "formal" TASK members. "There are a number of young people who are interested in helping but are not members. For both socials a band has donated their services. We have a number of 'friends' who help us when we need them," Mrs. Wood said.

THE SOCIALS ARE JUST one area of the TASK members involvement with the handicapped. Many of them will be working this summer at a camp for handicapped youngsters in Arlington Heights; they have been assisting in giving handicapped children swimming lessons at the Northwest Suburban YMCA; they hold Christmas parties each year and take young handicapped children out trick and treating on Halloween.

"When I first started it was hard to adjust to working with handicapped kids but after a few times it wasn't hard at all," said Carol Deger, Arlington Heights, a junior at Sacred Heart of Mary High School. "I've found they are not really different from me except they have a lot more push. They have friends like everyone else, but a lot of times they've been pushed away from crowds at schools. I think they feel good when they're in a group of kids their own age."

Carol and Mary Klein, Arlington Heights, also a junior at Sacred Heart, have been involved with TASK for a year and a half. Both have found their experiences with the groups to be educational and just plain fun.

"BEFORE I CAME TO know handicapped kids I felt sorry for them," Mary said. "I was always aware that there were people in the world less fortunate than I am. Now that I've been with them more often I'm more aware of them and their problems. I'm not a do-gooder at all, but I think everyone should help as much as they can. When we get together we just talk and listen to music. We are just being ourselves and having fun."

"Before I started with TASK I knew very little about handicapped people," Carol added. "I learned a lot in the Careers Course and every time you go and work with the kids you learn something new."

Mary is looking forward to a career as a nurse — a decision that has been reinforced by her involvement with TASK. Carol has no set plans for the future but is considering becoming a physical therapist.

The members are anxious to get the names of more handicapped teens in the northwest suburbs so they can be included in the trips to Ravinia, parties and activities. They relate to their handicapped peers as equals — there is no pity, no looking down.

"We realize that handicapped teens need friends their own age — not to be taken to the zoo and bought balloons," Mrs. Wood smiled. "That's what we're doing."

World War II Lady Pilots

They're Having A Reunion

by MICHAEL O. WESTER

SWEETWATER, Tex. (UPI) — The WASPs of World War II are returning to their West Texas nest this week, and the whole U. S. Air Force is taking notice.

The Women's Airforce Service Pilots (WASP), an elite group of American women pilots who flew alongside their husbands and sweethearts to help end the war, are meeting at their home base in Sweetwater for a three-day reunion beginning Friday (June 23).

The event will mark the 30th anniversary for the organization, begun in 1942 from a group of pioneer-spirited women who first answered the call for ferrying aircraft duty and then served in every capacity as pilots except for combat duty.

Sweetwater's Avenger Field, now that city's Municipal Airport, was home for the WASPs where the majority of the 1,074 graduates trained.

"THIS IS one of those once-only affairs which has been in the planning for months," said Dedie (Mrs. Clifford) Deaton, a Wichita Falls, Tex., housewife and chairman of the reunion. "You can bet there will be plenty of wartime stories relived when we get together."

Thirty-seven WASPs were killed in action during the war, and a special tribute from the U. S. Air Force — a fly-over missing man formation — will be paid during the Saturday festivities. At least 600 former women flyers are expected for the reunion.

The girls coming together this weekend flew a heralded wartime record of 60 million collective flying miles in all types of military aircraft to relieve male pilots.

Jacqueline Cochran (Mrs. Floyd B. Odum), aviatrix and director of the WASP, who now lives in Indio, Calif., will be on hand to welcome each of her girls who made it to the reunion.

DURING THE EARLY stages of the war Miss Cochran enlisted a group of 25 women pilots at the request of military authorities and took them to England for service with the British Air Transport Auxiliary. This group ferried airplanes throughout England between airports and factories.

On Sept. 11, 1942, she was appointed director of women pilots by Henry H. "Iap" Arnold, then commanding general of the U. S. Army Air Forces. Arnold's son, Col. Bruce Arnold, will be on hand Saturday for a special presentation from the WASPs and Miss Cochran to their godfather.

When the WASP program was deactivated Dec. 20, 1944, Miss Cochran continued to serve on the general staff of the U. S. Army Air Forces as a special consultant to the Chief of Staff.

AIR SHOWS, parades, tributes and fun will highlight a full day Saturday. Entertainment — pilot Bob Cummings will emcee a special banquet Saturday night. Cummings, a professional pilot, was a colonel in the Air National Guard.

Maj. Gen. F. M. Rogers, deputy chief of staff, Air Force Technical Training Command, Randolph AFB, Tex., will represent the Air Force officially at the occasion.

The U. S. Air Force, incorporating the event as part of its own anniversary, is sending crack flying units for an air show and the missing man formation tribute.

The initial WASP class of 28 convened in Houston, Tex., in November, 1942. The official headquarters was transferred to Sweetwater the following year.

Speaking Of...

Card-Carrying Travelers

by KAY MARSH

The best advice I ever heard on packing for an enjoyable vacation was very simple: just take half as many clothes — and twice as much money.

Since most of us don't have "twice as much money," what we take instead is credit cards, once called "the poor man's substitute for cash." And handy they can be, if you face a financial crisis too many miles from home. But credit cards can be expensive, too, if yours are lost or stolen.

HOW LIABLE ARE YOU? Not very, really. At least not since January, 1971, when a $50 limit went into effect. Under federal law, no issuer can collect more than $50 from you for misuse of your lost or stolen credit card. But how many credit cards are in your billfold now? Multiply that number by $50, and you'll see that your loss can be substantial.

But even that $50 liability can be avoided if you, the holder, notify the issuing company immediately that the card is missing. Moreover, under a new federal regulation that went into effect in January, 1972, unless a credit card issuer provides a positive means of identification (a signature, picture or fingerprint) on the card, it can't collect anything from a cardholder who loses one that is subsequently used by an unauthorized person. However, many companies recently issued new cards with signature lines to conform to this Federal Regulation Z. Thus, in order to protect yourself, it's still your responsibility to notify the company promptly of a lost or stolen card. To do this, obviously, you must have the necessary addresses and phone numbers handy. Before you go on vacation this year, take these simple steps to make sure your credit cards make your trip more enjoyable.

FIRST, destroy cards you're sure you'll never use, preferably by cutting them into small pieces. Get rid of out-of-date credit cards, too. Then validate the cards you do use by signing each in the signature panel provided.

SECOND, decide which cards you're sure you won't use on your trip. Leave them behind, but in a safe place along with other important papers and valuables.

THIRD, make a list in duplicate of the cards you're taking with you. Copy down exact numbers carefully, as well as addresses and phone numbers to notify in case a card is lost or stolen. (You'll often find these facts in fine print on the back of the cards.)

FOURTH, treat your list as you would a travelers' check record. Do not keep it with your credit cards. You might keep one copy in a bag and another in the glove compartment, so you'll be sure to have one handy in case you need it.

FIFTH, keep up with your credit cards while you're away from home. Lock them in the glove compartment at a beach; treat them as you do your cash and other valuables. And check now and then to be sure you have them all.

Finally, don't let these words of warning keep you from enjoying your credit cards. As mentioned earlier, you can't lose more than $50 if you lose a card, and you won't lose even that much if you notify the issuing company right away.

On the plus side, vacationing-on-credit has several advantages. The bills won't come in until weeks — and sometimes months — after you get back home. If you pay bills promptly when they do arrive, you pay nothing for interest or carrying charges. In effect, then, you pay for your vacation in installments, and without paying extra for the services and privilege.

Just as important, credit cards can be used for a host of goods and services. Most oil company cards, for instance, are good at various motel chains. Some are even good for cash. And many major oil companies have exchange agreements with other oil companies in different parts of the country. Check before you leave home to see what your credit cards cover.

THE QUOTE BOARD. Arnold Glasow once said, "The average vacation is one-tenth playing — nine-tenths paying." Using your credit cards wisely can often make the paying part safer, easier and considerably more convenient for you.

POSTSCRIPT: In case you ever wondered, an article in the Gulf Oil Co. magazine, The Orange Disc, says that Gulf pioneered the gasoline credit card with its "precedent-setting letter of credit" issued to a handful of motorists in the early 1920s. Gulf now has more than 13 million card customers, a number that's increased more than 70 per cent just in the past six years.

New Drivers: What To Do In Case Of An Accident

by PATRICIA McCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI) — Young Americans, male and female, get their driver's license as soon as possible — and their own wheels as soon as possible after that.

They learned to drive safely and think safely but they have a lot of accidents. The Consumers Insurance Information Bureau says the young drivers up to age 25 account for 20 per cent of the driving public but account for almost 33 per cent of all driving fatalities.

The first rule, according to the bureau, is establishing a firm set of good driving habits early. Parents can help by setting some safety guidelines for the new car owner or driver.

What else is needed? Some procedural advice should the new driver be unfortunate enough to be involved in an accident, even a minor one.

"THE UN-NERVING effect of an auto accident, even a fender scraping, can cause panic among the most experienced drivers," the bureau said. "The driver should remain calm."

Some other accident procedural advice from the bureau:

—Stop the car as quickly as safety permits. In a minor accident, where no apparent injuries are involved, pull off the road to avoid further collisions from passing traffic. If the accident seems to be of a serious nature, have somebody wave traffic off and around the collision scene. At night, road flares are particularly helpful.

—Quickly determine if anyone needs medical attention. Call for police and ambulance assistance or send someone for help. Don't, unless circumstances dictate otherwise, such as fire, move any of the injured without the assistance of trained medical personnel. Too often, injuries are aggravated by the actions of well-meaning, but untrained observers.

—TEMPERS CAN easily flare in the stress of an accident. Don't under any circumstances allow yourself to become involved in arguments with the other driver. A short-fuse in this situation won't help you or anyone else at the scene.

—Do not discuss the accident with anyone except the police and your insurance agent. The shock of the accident might cause you to say something you do not mean and may be misinterpreted.

—A pen or pencil and a writing pad should be as much a part of the glove compartment equipment as a road map or sun glasses. Gather all pertinent information: the other driver's name, address, license information, his insurance company, and names and addresses of any witnesses.

They Shared A Box Lunch

Cathy, who was then in high school, was employed in women's sportswear, while John, who was home from college for the summer, was in men's wear. Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore VomBrack 403 N. Cathy's gown was of ivory silk organza fashioned with high neckline and long, sheer sleeves. The Empire bodice, A-line skirt and train were trimmed with re-embroidered Alencon lace, pearls and crystals. Her elbow-length veil was held by a matching lace Camelot cap, and she carried phalaenopsis, stephanotis and Gail Wacławski, Arlington Heights, was maid of honor, and bridesmaids were Marjory Coha and Cathy's sister Laura, both of Arlington Heights, and Karen Roth, Peoria.

York Road, Bensenville. The meeting begins at 8 with professional staff and experienced foster parents on the program.

Mrs. Lois O'Brien, supervisor of Placement Services at the Home points out, "It is important to note that there are fewer pre-schoolers coming into foster care but there is an increasing need for good homes for children 12-16 years old."

The Bensenville Home Society is a licensed child-placing agency affiliated with the United Church of Christ offering services to children, families and the aged.

For A Happy Life

It's Fun in June To:

1. Surprise an old school chum with a phone call or letter.
2. Plan now ways to make this Fourth of July more meaningful for your family.
3. Look at your kitchen through the eyes of a stranger.
4. Begin those special summertime jobs like painting the storm windows.
5. Listen to yourself as you speak. Is your voice too shrill or too loud?
6. Invite friends over for a simple outdoor supper on June 26 or thereabouts when the moon is full.
7. Promise yourself to always freshen up before the evening meal.
8. Note this by Wilson Mizner: "A good listener is not only popular everywhere, but after a while he knows something."

Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Dahlstrom

Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Dahlstrom of Mount Prospect celebrated their golden wedding anniversary May 20 and left the following week for Colorado to retrace their honeymoon trip of 70 years ago. For both the 1922 trip and the 1972 trip the couple drove and camped along the way.

Married in Mrs. Dahlstrom's parents' DeKalb home, the couple has spent most of their married life in Mount Prospect. Mr. Dahlstrom retired in 1968 from Milburn Bros. Inc., Mount Prospect, after 49 years of service with the company.

The couple were honored at an open house in Fellowship Hall of Northwest Covenant Church, Mount Prospect, by 175 relatives and friends. The celebration was given by their sons, Russell and Warren and their wives, Mount Prospect residents, and their daughter and son-in-law, Rev. and Mrs. Ronald Magnuson of Three Oaks, Mich. Seven grandchildren complete the family.

A HIGHLIGHT of the anniversary party was a four-tiered cake, baked by Mrs. Verner Dahlstrom of Elgin, a sister-in-law. The cake was topped with a photo of the Dahlstroms on their wedding day.

Words of congratulations were given by their son, Russell; Dr. Carl Johnson, chairman of the Northwest Covenant Church; Walter Dahlgren, representative of the Adult Fellowship; and by Rev. William Peterson, pastor. Their grandson, Mark Magnuson, played his cornet and their son-in-law Rev. Magnuson, closed the program with prayer.

A Paddock Review

Another Hit For BOB

by GENIE CAMPBELL

"Gypsy," presently being staged at Wheeling High School by a cast of some 40 Best Off Broadway Players, is a smooth, lighthearted and most enjoyable production.

It completes a successful season for BOB which also did well with its fall musical choice, "Oliver."

The stage radiates showmanship. "Gypsy" in total represents a lot of diligent work and dedicated hours by both the cast members and production crew who are responsible for the stage setting and properties. Costuming is excellent.

"Gypsy," of course, is the biography set to music of the famous burlesque queen, Gypsy Rose Lee. It begins with her childhood. She is first depicted as the shy girl she was purported to be, pushed into vaudeville and the entertainment world by a fast talking, domineering mother, who because she had missed out on the chance to be on stage herself decided to make sure that her two daughters didn't miss that chance.

THE CAST, DIRECTED by Tom Ventress, is tailor-made. The principal characters include Charmaine Sayre as Mama Rose; Lauren Lubeck as Dainty June; Laura Conter as Louise, later Gypsy Rose Lee; and Gil Pearson as Herbie, the girls' agent who does his job simply out of love for his mother.

It is Charmaine Sayre, however, who is the real star of the production. She is excellent as Mama Rose, a woman who never admits defeat nor relinquishes the selfish dream of seeing one of her daughters recognized up on stage, no matter for what kind of talent. She is a headstrong woman and Charmaine depicts her personality exactly. Her musical numbers are equally as strong and well done.

Gil Pearson is very comfortable in his role as Herbie and Lauren Lubeck does a good job characterizing the baby-faced turn, it would have been better to have left it out and ended the production with Gypsy's rise to the top. Anything added after that point is tedious and merely draws out the finish.

THE BIG HIGHLIGHT of the second act is the number, "You Gotta Get a Gimmick," a routine by three brazen, yet very comical strippers each "doing her own thing" on stage.

The three, Tessie Tura, Mazeppa and Electra, are played by Marie Petersen, Karen Mason and B. J. Swingle.

Karen Mason, in particular, manages to always please an audience whether she has a lead in a production or just a small supporting role. Her performance never goes unnoticed.

Musical director of the production is Bill Cotsakis and Linda Dwell is choreographer. "Gypsy" will again be staged at Wheeling High School this Friday and Saturday.

The Home Line

by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: String beans are my favorite vegetable but I can't get my family to eat them in any way. Have you run into a good string bean recipe that I can try on them? — Genevieve M.

This string bean casserole that Nancy Senturia produced should go over big not only with your family but as a company dish. It sounds complicated but really isn't.

Saute 1 tablespoon grated onion in 2 tablespoons butter for about 10 minutes. Then add 2 tablespoons flour, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon black pepper and 1 teaspoon sugar. Add 1 cup sour cream slowly to this mixture and bring to the start of a gentle boil but don't boil. Pour into a casserole and fold in 2 packages of cooked, frozen string beans. Grate ¼ pound Swiss cheese and sprinkle on top. Also sprinkle on ¼ cups of finely crushed cornflakes. Last, drizzle on 1 tablespoon melted butter. Bake at 375 degrees for 20 minutes.

Finally got to try a remedy recommended by readers for getting out a ball point ink stain. Waving my hand with a pen in it wasn't the smartest thing in the world, especially as it was right over the gold corduroy bed rest his mibs likes to use when reading. Used hair spray, then rubbed with a piece of toweling. Repeated it several times. Maybe it's because the treatment was done so quickly, but the stain did disappear.

Dear Dorothy: Can coffee grounds be flushed down the kitchen drain? — Amelia M.

It's not a good idea, ordinarily. If there should be any kind of a grease buildup, the coffee grounds will really compound the situation and you're in for trouble.

(Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to Dorothy Ritz in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.)

A Professional Peacenik

by RALPH NOVAK

NEW YORK — Protesting against the Vietnam war is a lot different for Katharine Sojourner these days.

It isn't just a matter any more of sitting down with three or four friends at Florida Southern University to talk over the morality of American bombing. Or putting up a home-made poster to attract a few students to a teach-in.

These days Ms. Sojourner, 27, is a professional peace advocate, one of the seven national coordinators of the National Peace Action Coalition (NPAC). This is the peace movement's equivalent of being one of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, since NPAC has been responsible for organizing most of the nation's recent anti-war protests, including the April 24 demonstration in Washington last year and the nationwide demonstration and moratorium within the last month.

"Since I started working in the movement full-time in December, I've been putting in 12, 14, 16-hour days," says Ms. Sojourner, an intense woman whose speech retains only a trace of her native North Carolina. "There's a lot of traveling and a lot of acid indigestion. A lot of work." She pauses and smiles. "I've never been happier."

THUS HAS Ms. Sojourner progressed from her first interest in the war, which was aroused in 1964 and lasted:

Through personal tribulation — she has divorced her husband, because of issues she says were related to no war other than an inter-personal one;

Through miscellaneous escalations, deescalations and enigmatic revisions of the war;

Through the painful seizures that have characterized America's grudging acceptance of the protesters;

Through the growing institutionalization of the movement itself, which has now reached the point where NPAC has staff public relations specialists who churn out polished publicity material to the press and sell their client to reporters just the way General Motors or Dow Chemical Company do.

"I'VE NEVER really been discouraged," Ms. Sojourner says. "Sentiment against the war has been growing constantly, and I've seen new people come into the movement all the time. It is like a snowball that has been rolling along getting bigger all the time and even in 1968 when things in the war were getting really bad the snowball was still rolling even though it was rolling a little slower."

Riding the snowball has left Ms. Sojourner faintly bitter, perennially exasperated, defiantly hopeful. The peace movement's liturgy falls doggedly from her lips — talk of "President Nixon's lies," "the immorality of the war," "the bombing of women and children."

But she has no doubts that the peace movement has had a positive effect: "We've gone from 1964, when people were calling Vietnam the first 'consensus war,' to now, when polls show a majority of Americans believe the war to be immoral. Magic didn't do that."

And she reacts vehemently to a description of NPAC as "anti-Establishment," insisting that the organization does not care if people are pro- or anti-Establishment as long as they oppose the war, insisting that NPAC is a strictly one-issue group. (She seems to believe what she is saying, though NPAC's New York office is lined with posters espousing, among other things, Puerto Rican independence, and brims with leaflets on socialism.)

SHE SAYS SHE has made no real personal sacrifices because of her involvement in the movement and had no problems with employers when she was working as a nursery school teacher before being elected as an NPAC coordinator last December.

But, she says, "I don't have time for anything else now" and her involvement is such that she hasn't given any thought to what will happen to her when it's over.

What, for instance, would she do if she was told, right now, that President Nixon had announced an immediate, unconditional withdrawal of all Americans from South Vietnam?

There is a long pause. "I would check very, very closely to make it sure it was true," she says finally. "I wouldn't take it at face value."

And if it were, in fact, true, what would she do with herself?

"I don't know," she says, surprised. There is another long pause. "Probably, I would go back to teaching."

The Lighter Side

Less Costs More, More Or Less

by DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Disclosure that the new Soviet-American arms limitation agreement may bring about an increase in the U.S. defense budget has disquieted some members of Congress and non-plussed others.

"If this is what is meant by slowing down the arms race, let me off," said Rep. Thomas W. Rees, D-Calif., who was both disquieted and nonplussed.

It has been my observation that when perturbation and perplexity arise, it usually means somebody doesn't understand the situation.

In an effort to clarify the matter, I submitted a series of questions to Commodore Claus von Frigate ret., author of "The Fighting Dollar," one of the foremost textbooks on military economics.

HIS ANSWERS have helped straighten out my thinking and I hope they will do the same for you.

Q. Isn't there something paradoxical about an arms control agreement resulting in higher military spending?

A. Not a bit. Cutbacks frequently lead to cost increases. It's an old military axiom that "less costs more, more or less."

Q. Can you cite another example of less costing more, more or less?

A. Certainly. In addition to the arms limitation agreement, the United States and the Soviet Union have signed a pact aimed at reducing environmental pollution. Having less pollution obviously is going to cost a lot more money. Nobody questions that. So why should anyone be disquieted to learn that arms control also costs more?

Q. Would you explain that a bit further?

A. GLAD TO. Just as production with pollution is cheaper than nonpolluting production, defense with arms is cheaper than unarmed defense. Consequently, arms limitation adds to the cost of defense. If we had to defend ourselves without arms, the defense budget would go right through the roof.

Q. Is that why international disarmament agreements are so difficult to negotiate?

A. Exactly. Most countries are either unable or unwilling to accept the additional expense.

Q. I take it, then, that total disarmament is completely out of the picture.

A. I'm afraid so. No country could afford it.

Q. Isn't there some way to reduce the spiraling cost of arms limitation?

A. Yes. We are trying to persuade our allies to assume a larger share of the weapons freeze.

The Doctor Says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — Recently a Vietnam veteran told me that the best emergency fluid to use in cleansing a wound is freshly passed urine, and that it need not be your own. He said that any tap water would be more likely to contain harmful materials than would the urine. Would you please comment on this.

Dear Reader — I have heard this before and it seems to be a fairly common belief. It is true that freshly passed urine usually has few if any bacteria in it, in other words, it is sterile. Urine is really water containing natural chemicals filtered directly from the blood. Thus, the Vietnam veteran's statement is at least true to the point that normal urine is sterile unless contaminated. Incidentally, most properly treated tap water is relatively free of harmful bacteria too.

Passing from that point, I am not enthusiastic about washing out wounds with anything unless there is significant dirt or other material in the wound. A clean cut for example is best left alone. The skin surface next to the wound is covered with bacteria. If you flush water over the surface of the wound yourself, you are often washing bacteria directly into it. One of the best ways to wash out a wound is the free flow of blood which normally occurs from a clean cut. Thus my recommendation for a clean cut that doesn't have any obvious dirt or contamination is to leave it alone. Let the free flowing blood flush out the immediate wound, cover it if you must and go to the doctor's office and have him treat it properly.

If the wound is a puncture type wound such as a nail, washing it with water, urine or alcohol is not likely to help very much.

The point then that I would like to make is not so much whether urine is more satisfactory than tap water, but rather that people should leave clean cut wounds alone and if they aren't clean cut, flushing them out won't help anyway.

Dear Dr. Lamb — Can 50 years of living a tense, unhappy marriage create a nervous stomach and diarrhea?

Dear Reader — Any situation that causes chronic frustration and tension over a long period of time, can cause digestive disturbances. One of the psychic factors that is important in causing ulcers is a long-term chronic frustration. The stomach and the bowel are both very sensitive to our emotional reactions. Some people do have nervous diarrhea. In the treatment of ulcers, diarrhea and similar digestive disturbances, the emotional aspects are exceptionally important and the stressful situation should be alleviated.

Seek Outstanding Area Architecture

A state-sponsored search for outstanding architectural buildings in Des Plaines has turned up "nothing outstanding," a state official has reported.

The Illinois Department of Conservation is conducting a survey of "historical structures built prior to 1940 that are important in the progression of architecture in Illinois and America," he said, but buildings in Des Plaines "are not of good architectural quality."

Des Plaines is the lone Northwest suburban community surveyed, although Arlington Heights and other nearby villages will be included in the survey this winter.

The department of conservation is conducting the architectural study in every Illinois community with more than 500 population. The findings will be reported to local historical societies, counties and the state.

Although Des Plaines was found to be lacking in historical buildings, several other Chicago area suburbs have notable architecture, including LaGrange and Park Ridge, according to the preliminary findings.

THE ACCEPTED INFLUENCE IN THE NORTHWEST SUBURBS

Carpenters Plan Selective Strikes

Selective strikes aimed at major Chicago area contractor associations were to start today by members of the Chicago District Council of Carpenters.

The 30,000-member labor organization rejected a proposal offered by five major contractor groups late Monday night, according to a carpenter spokesman. A union meeting was held Tuesday afternoon to select the sites for selective strikes in Cook, Lake and DuPage counties.

This followed a strike called Monday night by Cement Masons Local 502, covering all of Cook County. The cement masons' walkout hobbled progress at many Chicago area construction sites.

The cement masons did not set up picket lines yesterday, although a meeting to decide whether to picket was rumored yesterday morning.

Picketing by members of the striking unions would shut down some $600 million in construction projects in the Chicago metropolitan area.

Spokesmen for both the carpenters and cement masons said a number of independent contractors have signed wage agreements.

The Mid America Regional Bargaining Association (MARBA) serving as the bargaining agent for major contractor groups in the dispute, disclosed the terms of contract offers.

WAGE BENEFITS as well as work rules are at stake in the carpenter negotiations, according to Robert E. Nielsen, chairman of MARBA. The carpenters asked for an additional $1.45 in wages and benefits, a 16.7 per cent hike over the current $8.05 an hour in wages and fringe benefits. MARBA offered a 91-cent an hour increase to the carpenters. Flexible starting time and the use of labor-saving equipment and materials has been sought by the contractor organization. Labor representatives balked at this proposal.

The cement masons did agree to accept a 53 cents an hour increase in wages and benefits from MARBA representatives. This would raise the wage benefits to $10.24 an hour from the present $9.71 an hour, a 5.5 per cent boost.

The cement masons do not agree to the contractor proposal that a lunch break could be taken sometime between 11:30 a.m. and 1 p.m. This contrasts with the union's position in favor of a lunch break between noon and 12:30 p.m.

Area Gas Dealers Oppose Shell Added Credit Charge

Chicago area gasoline dealers oppose the move by Shell Oil Co. to slap them with an added charge for credit card sales of gasoline and auto accessories.

"We're going to put pressure on at local, state and national levels," said Bob Esserman, executive vice president of the Illinois Gasoline Dealers Association, following a Monday night association meeting in Chicago.

"Our membership is militant," Esserman said. "But cooler minds prevailed at the meeting. We have several avenues open for legal redress."

Pressure at the state level came yesterday as the Illinois House of Representatives passed a resolution calling on Shell not to impose a credit surcharge on its customers. Opposition is mounting against Shell's plan to initiate the surcharge July 1, said Rep. Robert Juckett, R., Park Ridge, sponsor of the bill.

"MANY OF MY constituents have told me they have cut up their Shell credit cards and mailed them to the company as a protest," Juckett said. "I imagine this could be a very effective way of letting Shell know how the consumer feels."

He referred to Shell Oil's recent announcement that it will initiate a new revolving credit plan next month, to include the sale of gasoline and automotive accessories. Included in the package is an added 1 per cent charge for Shell credit card purchases and an added 2 1/2 per cent charge levied against dealers for credit cards other than Shell.

Shell's Vice President of Marketing

Frank Staub contends that dealers should not have to pass along the credit charges to customers. The boosted credit limits will bring in extra business and profits to dealers, he said, adding that the new program represents a "sharing" of the credit cost burden.

Representatives of the Illinois Gasoline Dealers Association reply that dealers will not be able to absorb the added credit charge. Robert Jacobs, executive director, said customers will have to pay this added cost. He believes that other majors will follow Shell's move in the revolving credit plan.

JACOBS CONTENDS that major brand dealers are already paying a premium for gasoline in order to participate in the cost of credit, promotional and other programs.

"Then Shell promiscuously sent out thousands of credit cards, a practice that is now illegal," Jacobs said. "Some poor sap who never asked for a credit card is sent one through the mail. Someone steals the card and uses it, and people get sore. Now Shell is talking about their losses."

"Dealers have their losses, too. If one of their attendants doesn't bother to write down a license number, then the customer doesn't pay his bill, Shell makes the dealer pay for it," Jacobs said.

Idea Of Chicagoan

Consider Portable Motel

by ED ROGERS
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Consider the portable motel. It's the brainchild of a former newsman turned commodities trader who hates to see blacktop parking lots among the tall office buildings of U.S. cities.

Because he considers the parking lot an uneconomical and "ugly temporary replacement for a profitable high-rise building, Rodger D. Harris, 41, of Chicago, conceived of the portable motel.

Parking lots and vending stands now almost invariably spring up temporarily wherever older, non-competitive office buildings are torn down, because it takes an average of five years for investors to round up the millions another high rise will cost.

Harris concluded motels would be a better interim venture but realized costs would be prohibitive if they were built the conventional way. Then he thought of a portable motel. He got a drawing board and produced an amateur design. His concept was refined by New Orleans architect A. H. Vandevort.

THE PORTABLE motel would consist of self-contained modules stacked together. Most of the modules would be 12 feet by 24 feet living units, each containing a separate dressing room and bath. Each motel also would have a utilities module.

The standard portable motel would consist of 180 living units, stacked three high and assembled as a boxed "U" around a glassed in, all-weather atrium lobby featuring palm trees, shrubs, rock gardens and a lighted pool.

The entire complex could be disassembled and moved to another location in 30 days after some better use was found for the lot, Harris said. He also said such a venture would be three times as profitable as a parking lot even if it only operated two years.

The present low-yield interim use of vacant lots, Harris said, represents a "staggering waste in terms of lost owner income and tax revenue."

"Take Chicago, for instance," he said. "The loop contains 55 square blocks, 11 of which contain vacant lots."

Harris said that at current Chicago tax rates, his motel would pay about $60,000 a year in property taxes, not including tax on the land.

THE SAME GOES for investment income. That five-year period will produce about $15 million in motel profits. At best, it is now attracting a parking lot and maybe a hotdog stand."

Harris said the motel units would be prefabricated either in Matamoros, Mexico, across the border from Brownsville, Tex., where unskilled labor costs 80 cents an hour, or in the Dominican Republic.

The modules then would be barged to any city accessible to the intercoastal waterway or navigable portions of the Mississippi River system. Harris estimated this would keep production and placement costs down to about $500 per unit.

Harris said his firm, Metro Mobile Hotels Inc. has a contract to deliver the first motel by the end of this year to a New Orleans investment group headed by attorney Walter B. Noble.

The Tollway is well on the road to recovery.

The operation on the Illinois Tollway is past the half-way point today, and thanks to your cooperation, the prognosis for full recovery by August 1st is excellent.

The resurfacing operation extends from the Tri-State and Northwest Tollway intersection, south to a point 1/2 mile north of Ogden Avenue on the Tri-State. On the Northwest Tollway, it extends from Meacham Road near Schaumburg eastward to its juncture with the Kennedy Expressway.

Please continue to allow extra driving time, especially to O'Hare, try to carry exact change, and above all, do drive carefully.

The work crews will continue on a 20-hour-a-day, seven-days-a-week basis, and it seems certain the Tollway will be discharged by August 1st. For up-to-date information on road conditions call 312-654-8990.

St. Viator Collects Three Positions

Herald Honors 10 Boys On All-Area Team

Ticket these 20 youngsters for the mythical high school Hall of Fame.

As a team, they couldn't miss. Hitting... pitching... speed... defense...

Every ingredient essential for a potential unbeaten baseball team is there — and in generous proportions.

The spring hardball season has afforded these young men the opportunity to emerge to prep stardom — not as hitting specialists, or defensive demons or pitching wizards — but for all of these traits combined into versatility.

The cream of the crop in the Herald circulation area as selected by its sportswriters who witnessed their superior play all year, was derived from 11 Mid Suburban League clubs. St. Viator, Maine West, Maine East, Maine North and Notre Dame all of which were eligible.

This team's composite .383 batting average would send opposing pitchers to the showers faster than they could warm up in the bullpen.

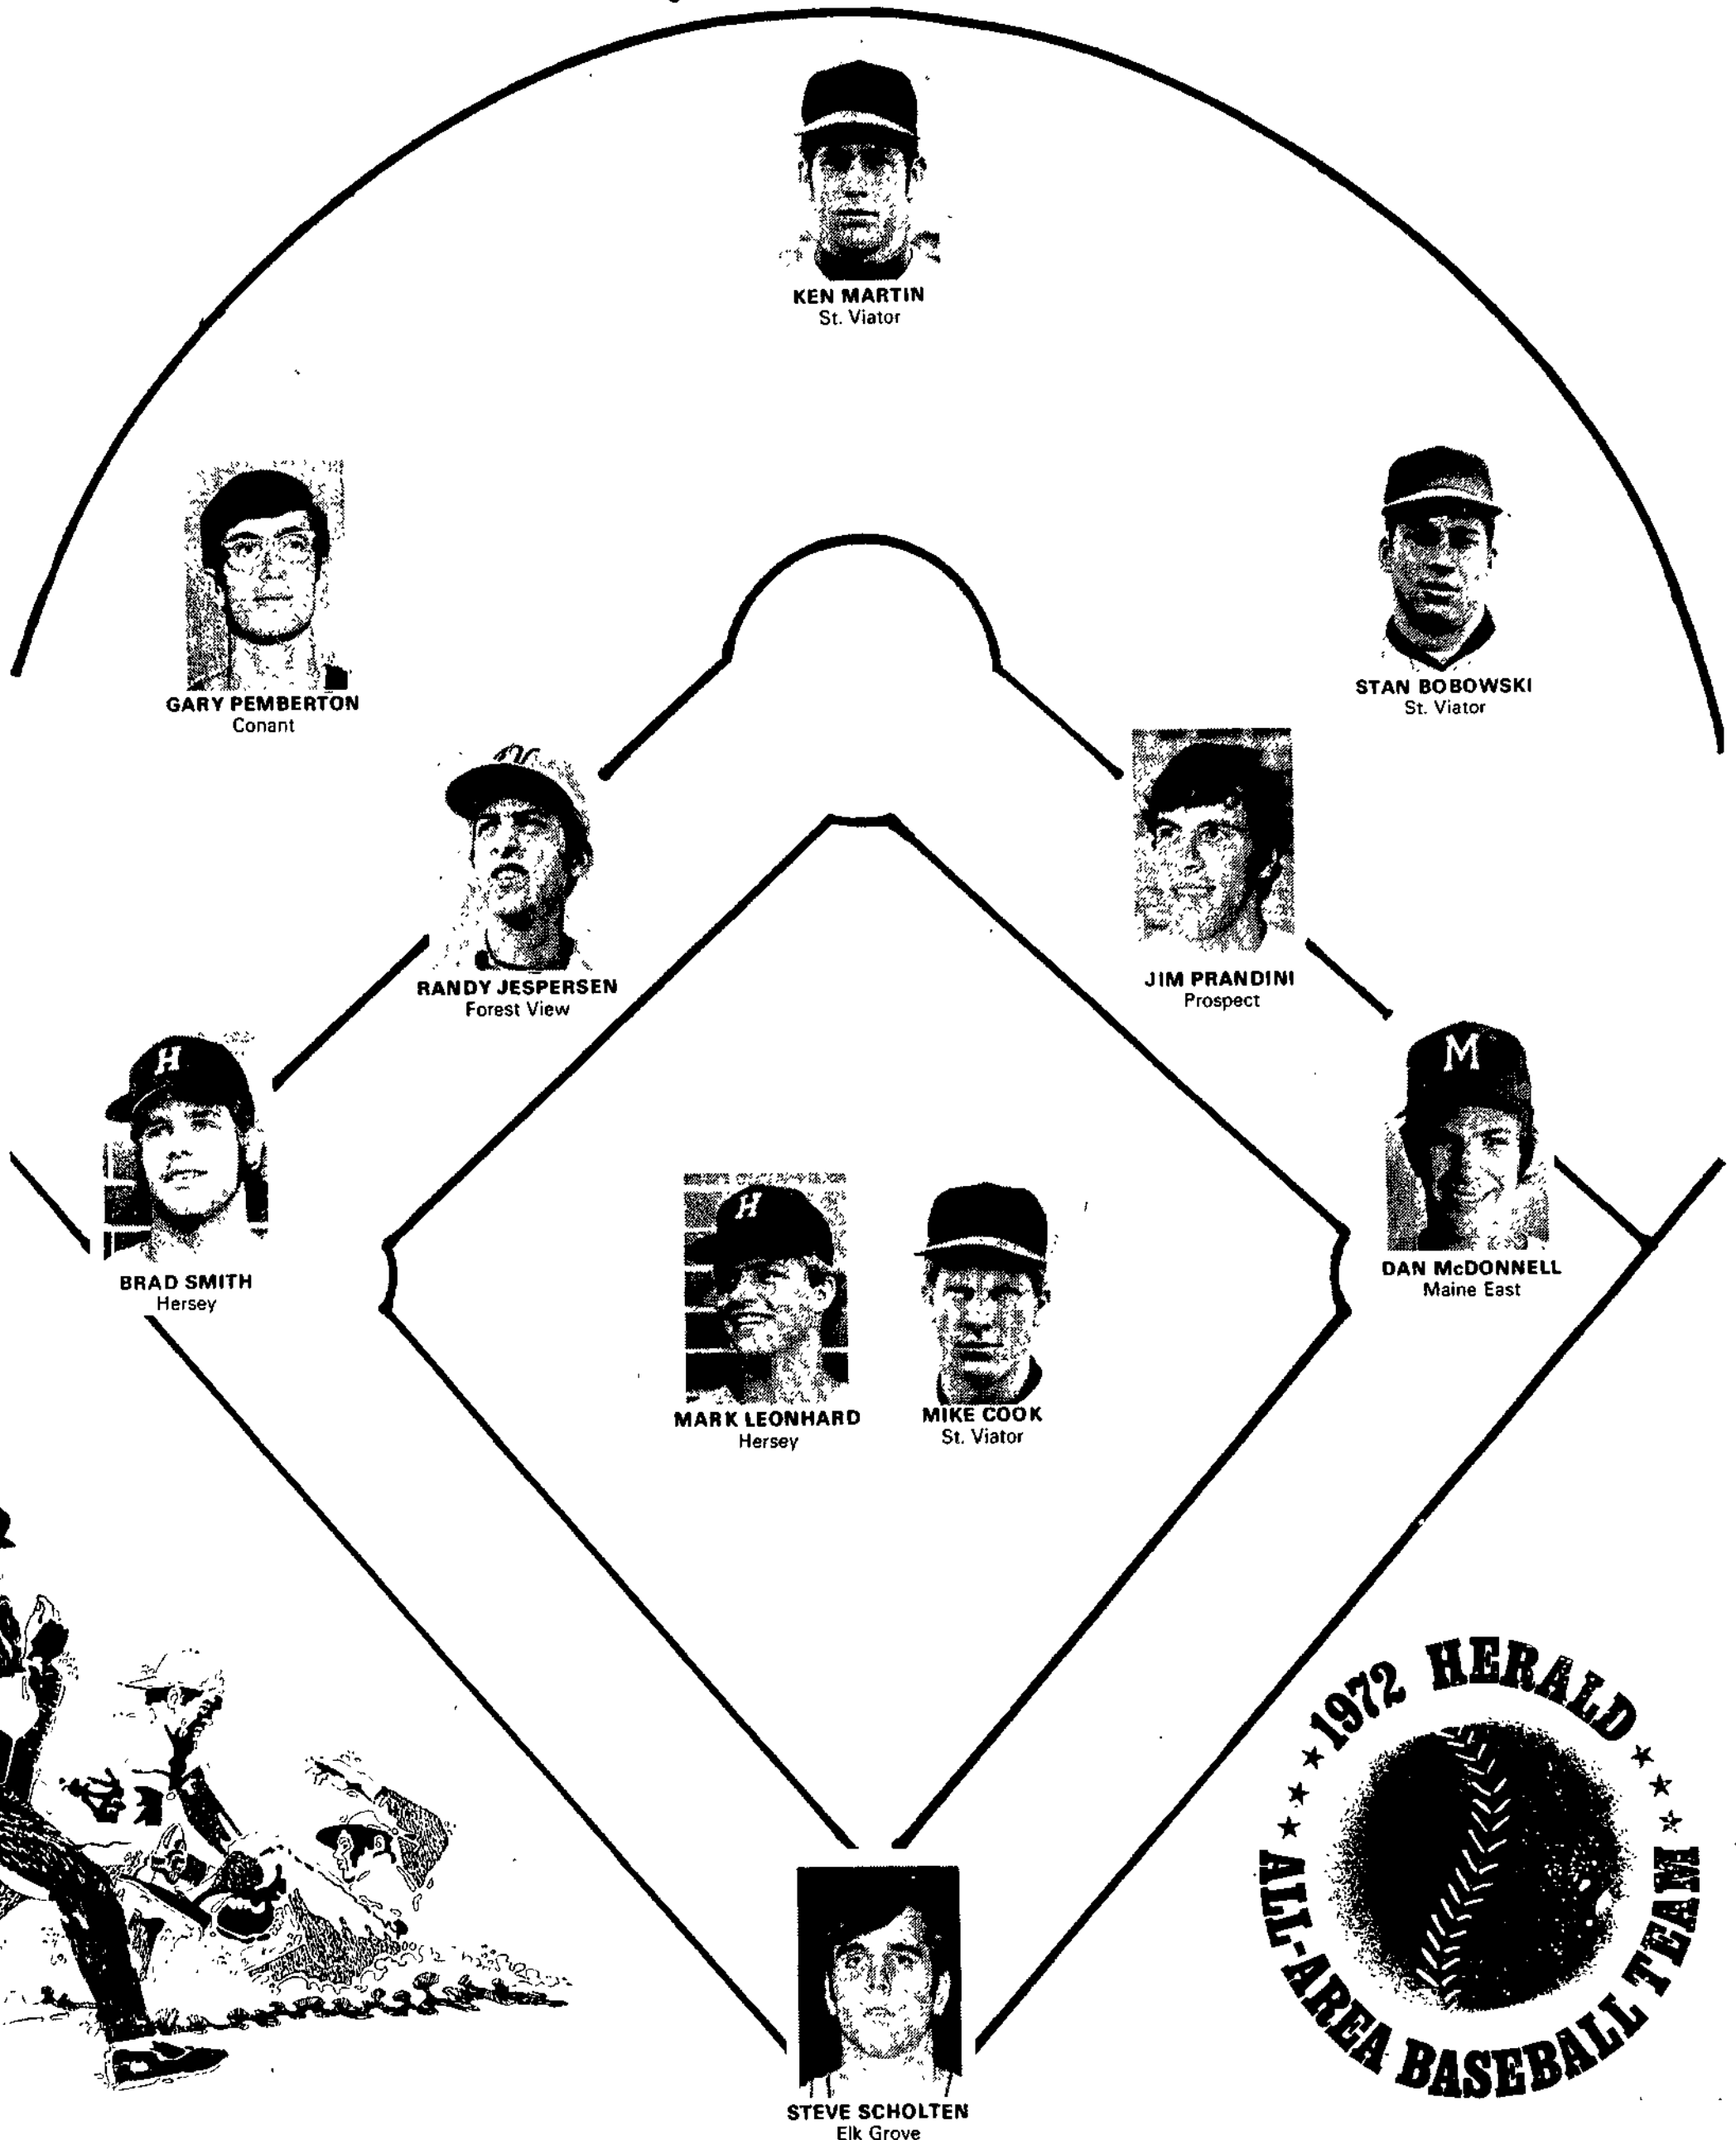

Enemy hitters would only be enemies against the two-man staff that permitted just over one-half run per game.

Unfortunately, this group of gems will never play together — at least not on the prep scene. But don't be surprised if some of them cross paths in the major league.

The five infielders three outfielders and two pitchers were selected for their innate ability and importance to their team.

St. Viator, the most successful squad in our area, landed three players while Mid Suburban League champ Hersey netted two. Elk Grove, Maine East, Prospect, Forest View and Conant all were represented by a choice.

Presenting the Second Annual Herald All-Area Baseball Team:

DAN McDONNELL
First Base

Junior Dan McDonnell's blistering .444 average for Maine East is actually a step down from the over .500 pace he maintained as a freshman and sophomore. An all-conference selection in the grueling West Suburban League, Dan hammered 32 hits in 72 trips, tallied 10 runs and drove another 10 home. His 6-0 frame was a magnet for throws over to first base.

JIM PRANDINI Prospect
Second Base

Labeled as a "good, hard worker" and "intense competitor" by head coach Larry Pohlman, Prandini keyed the right side of Prospect's infield with his sure glove and pivots at second base. The versatile righthander hit .319 while heading his team in hits, runs batted in, stolen bases and runs scored.

RANDY JESPERSEN
Forest View
Shortstop

A repeat selection, Randy, although slipping a little in the average department after a booming .423 plate standard as a junior, still stroked a steady .311 mark and turned in another fine job on defense for the South Division champs. Jespersen finished with a .352 career mark in the Mid Suburban League and 17 runs-batted-in.

BRAD SMITH
Hersey
Third Base

The Herald's Athlete of the Year was a stellar performer at the hot corner for the Mid Suburban League champions. Smith sizzled behind an even .400 average with 16 hits in 40 trips and shared the conference standard for runs batted in with 11. Brad excelled in quick-reaction chances and was adept at pouncing on bunts with cat-like precision.

GARY PEMBERTON
Conant
Outfield

A perfect leadoff man in anyone's lineup, Gary Pemberton fanned but twice all season and avoided a strikeout his last 45 at-bats. Exceptional at making contact and getting on base, Gary led the MSL in runs scored by a wide margin with 16, was second in the loop in hits with 19 and swatted at a .388 clip. His speed and glove produced near-flawless results in the outfield.

KEN MARTIN
St. Viator
Outfield

A two-time all-area selection, Martin was invaluable as either a pitcher or outfielder. His daily lumber in the lineup produced a .395 mark and a team-leading RBI count of 12 as a leadoff man! Referred to as the best swinger in the area by an opposing coach, Ken was a strict pull-hitter and defensive standout. On the mound, his career stats included an 8-2 mark and a stingy 1.7 ERA.

STAN BOBOWSKI
St. Viator
Outfield

Stan Bobowski, the free-swinging lefty that paced St. Viator to the winningest record in the area (18-4), was also atop the Lion batting derby with a robust .424 mark. Only a junior, Bobowski batted 10 runs across from a position in the meat of head coach Pat Mahoney's quick jump on the ball was proven by his incredible range.

STEVE SCHOLTEN
Elk Grove
Catcher

Steve Scholten was a durable three-year regular for head coach Larry Peddy and was relied on heavily for his leadership qualities. As a mainstay in the heart of the Grenadier batting order, Steve pounded opposing pitching at a .324 clip and paced his team in runs batted in. His strong accurate arm spoke discouraging words to enemy baserunners.

MARK LEONHARD
Hersey
Pitcher

The Workhorse of the Hersey staff, Mark hurled 45 innings of B-B's, permitting just five earned runs toward a 6-1 record and a sparkling 0.78 earned run average. His talent didn't stop on the mound, as enemy pitchers inevitably discovered. He swung a power-laden stick that branded a .395 percentage. Nearly half of his 15 hits were for extra bases.

MIKE COOK
St. Viator
Pitcher

Mike is only a junior, but already has two years of varsity work under his belt. He'll have trouble enjoying a better senior semester after posting an unblemished 5-0 standard in the demanding Suburban Catholic Conference and a spectacular 0.21 ERA. Only one earned run tallied against him in 33 innings and offensively, Cook mangled opposing pitching with a .438 batting average.

Lions Return From Road Trip With Three Triumphs

The Logan Square Legion baseball club ventured out of the Ninth District over the weekend and returned with three conquests in as many outings.

Logan Square was slated to host Glenview Friday, then travel to Pekin Saturday and Peoria Sunday, but the schedule was amended at the last minute when Glenview and Peoria cancelled. Instead, the Lions swept a doubleheader from Pekin, 7-3 and 4-2, and pounded lumps on outmanned Chillicothe 16-1.

In the first game at Pekin, Logan Square wasted no time in getting on the board as the Lions tallied twice in the first inning. Stan Bobowski blasted a home run to right field, scoring Ken Martin ahead of him, to start things off.

Pekin counted a run in the bottom of the first on a home run off Martin and two more in the fourth to take a 3-2 lead. But Logan Square secured the victory in the fifth when Martin scored on a fielder's choice and Joe Bombicino crashed a two-run homer. The Lions picked up two more in the sixth as Mike Garbus scored on an error and Tom Chapman singled to drive in Ed Collins.

Martin allowed only three Pekin hits in picking up his second win against no losses.

Pekin took a 2-0 lead after five innings of the nightcap on three hits, two passed balls, and a balk. But Logan Square shoved across four runs in the top of the sixth to post the 4-2 win.

The Lions batted around in the sixth. With one out, Martin delivered a double to score Collins from third. After a base on balls to Steve Bobowski, Bombicino lashed a double, driving in Collins and Bobowski. Bombicino then stole third and scored on a sacrifice fly by Mike Cook.

Cook worked 6 2/3 innings and allowed seven hits en route to his victory.

Logan Square had threatened in the fourth when Steve Bobowski led off with a triple. But Bombicino flied out and the next two batsmen fauned to quickly squelch the threat.

The Logan Square-Chillicothe affair was strictly no contest. Chillicothe is in its first year and still somewhat inexperienced, as evidenced by the beating it took from the Lions.

Logan Square scored in seven of the nine innings, including four in the second, three in the fifth, and five in the ninth.

The Lions' second opened with a walk to Stan Bobowski. Jim Bucaro reached on an error with Bobowski moving up, and then both runners stole bases. With men now on second and third, Collins stroked a two-run single. After another hit and a walk, Martin drove in another pair with a base hit.

In the fifth, Garbus doubled and scored on a passed ball. Bucaro, who had singled and advanced on the passed ball, tallied on a hit by Chapman. Terry Smith then pushed Chapman across.

Logan Square's big ninth inning barrage began with a single by Craig Zander and walks to Marty Burnell and Cook, filling the bases. Then Garbus teed off with a two-run single and Bucaro cleared the sacks with a triple. Collins wrapped up the scoring by singling home Bucaro.

Stan Bobowski had homered in the third for Logan Square.

Drama With Barrington Heights Sweeps Twin-Bill

Barrington's legion team proved a plenty tough adversary for hosting Arlington Heights Sunday at Recreation Park.

Although Coach Lloyd Meyer's team took both ends of a doubleheader, it had to come from behind in the first game, 4-3 and then was forced to play 9 innings before winning 6-3.

Meyer was pleased with the pitching performance of Jim Hopkins. The former Arlington High School star showed that he is fully recovered from last spring's foot injury by going the distance in the opener. Hopkins fanned six and only allowed four hits.

Two of those Barrington safeties came in the third inning as the visitors opened up a 3-0 lead. After an error in the second helped make it 1-0, two more mis-cues and three walks left Hopkins and his teammates way behind. However, Hopkins regained his once lost control and blanked Barrington the rest of the way. His teammates did the rest.

Heading into the fifth still hitless, Arlington used its only two singles of the game to the maximum along with a couple of Barrington errors and three more walks. After Dave Zare and Tony Fricano reached, Hopkins helped his own cause with a single. Bert Newman bunted his way on base and all four eventually scored with the help of a walk to Pat Broderick and a sacrifice fly by Dave Giles. In all, 10 men batted.

Arlington wasted no time in taking command in the second game with a four-run first frame. Contributing keybits were leadoff man Newman, Mark Leonhard and Jim Prandini. Eleven men took their cuts in that opening inning.

Heights upped its margin to 5-0 in the third on a triple by Dan Cunningham and a sacrifice fly by Prandini.

Barrington finally broke both the hitting and scoring ice against starting pitcher Dave Sherrow with a triple in the fourth followed by a single.

Sherrow lost his control and Arlington's defense wilted in the fifth as Barrington scored two more. Several errors, three walks, two sacrifices and no hits chased Sherrow from the mound.

Ed Carpenter, the eventual winning pitcher, finished up. After pitching himself out of a jam in the sixth, he was touched for two runs in the seventh on three hits. Carpenter, who received praise from Meyer for his showing, only allowed one hit the remaining two innings and held Barrington while his teammates rallied behind him.

After failing to capitalize on scoring opportunities in the seventh and the eighth, success came in the ninth. Following a walk to Bob Harth after two were out, Leonhard singled him into scoring position and Zare rapped an RBI single to right to end the game.

The sweep boosted Heights' overall record to 5-2.

Hockey Club Sets Car Wash

The first of hopefully several fund-raising activities to finance the new Rolling Meadows High School hockey club will be a car wash this Saturday, June 24.

It will take place at the Rolling Meadows city garage near the high school on Central Road from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. with members of the hockey club doing the washing. Cost will be $1 per car.

The team definitely plans to take the ice this winter — the main problem now being the raising of enough money for equipment and ice time.

Peggy Ann Goes From Movies To Selling Autos

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The customer shopping for a new car was approached by a pretty blonde woman of 40 who handed him her card and asked if she could help.

The man was surprised to see a female selling automobiles, but his double-take when he looked at her card was worthy of Groucho Marx.

The name on the card was Peggy Ann Garner.

Peggy Ann was the child star of "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn" when she was just a tot. She went on to appear in a number of movies earning more than $1,000 a week.

Now, two marriages and two divorces later, Peggy Ann is selling Buicks for a living and doing rather well. In her first two weeks on the job she sold a half dozen cars.

"I don't earn anywhere near as much as I did as an actress," Peggy said. "But my income will improve as I sell more cars. It takes time and people have to get accustomed to female auto sales persons."

DuBrow On TV

by Rick DuBrow

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — "The Perpetual People Puzzle," an hour special shown on ABC-TV Monday night and offering vignettes on the human condition, was described in advance like this by its executive producer, Al Perlmutter: "Our show is a celebration of the irrepressible, that indomitable portion of the human spirit which triumphs over rainy days, paper work and the wage-price freeze."

Alas — if only the hour had included one more major triumph: Over its scriptwriters. The human spirit, depicted in forms ranging from music to comedy to documentary to animation, was willing, but the all-important words were weak, undermining a project difficult enough to begin with.

As a result, such performers as Lee Grant, Jack Cassidy and Gwen Verdon, as well as sports commentator Howard Cosell, were left in rather difficult straits, despite going all out as individuals.

You can, of course, do just about anything in television if the writing is there. Writers are more important to video than network vice president's, or even Howard Cosell.

BUT SINCE THE writing wasn't there, the huge and essentially vague-sounding subject of the human condition never did seem to register with any particular point, despite Perlmutter's noble-sounding goals.

The first thing Perlmutter might have done was get rid of the title of his Monday hour.

"The Perpetual People Puzzle."

The second thing that Perlmutter might well have done was, put his writers on a champagne diet to get relief from the flatness and frequent abrasiveness of the so-called humor. Yes, there was a good cartoon passage in which a couple in bed discussed their problems while watching Dick Cavett's video show. And there was a pleasant little documentary sequence in which children told silly jokes. And Mr. Havens' singing and music gave the hour some professionally structured strength. And Jones was a pro in a lightweight dramatic sketch about a convict going home, wondering if his wife was waiting.

BUT WHAT CAN ONE say about the running gag in which Cosell narrated the race of three commuters to their jobs? What can one say about Miss Grant's comedic diatribe on women's liberation? What can one say about the ending job? What can one say about comedian Robert Klein's monologues on tension and self-image? Or the sketch starring Cassidy in a third spoof of commercial television situation comedies with some political barbs thrown in?

If you saw the show, you probably don't know what to say either. It was a perpetual puzzle.

Take a walk along the Prairie Path.

The Illinois Prairie Path is 30 miles of hills, trees, butterflies, birds, shrubs, and streams. Starting near Elmhurst, it branches its way northwest towards Elgin, and southwest towards Aurora.

But it wasn't always this way. Just a few years back, the Prairie Path was 30 miles of rusting refrigerators and worn-out tires along the old Chicago, Aurora and Elgin Railway line.

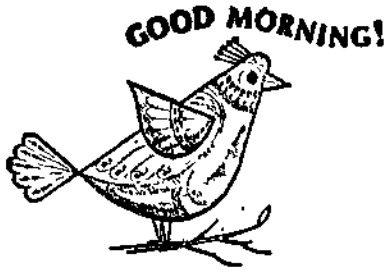

In 1963, naturalist May T. Watts first had the idea to redevelop the land. To clean up an old right-of-way, and let things grow. To make a walking trail that didn't look or sound or smell like the city.

In 1967, things began to happen. The Illinois Prairie Path leased a strip down the middle of the old railroad right-of-way from DuPage County. Sharing rights with Commonwealth Edison throughout the strip, the Illinois Prairie Path was thus assured the use of 30 miles for redevelopment.

We think there are more things to this world than just highways, sidewalks and skyscrapers. Take a walk along the Prairie Path and enjoy them.

Problem At Higgins, Roselle Roads

Plan Legal Action To Make State Stop Road Flooding

by JERRY THOMAS

It takes legal action against the Illinois Division of Highways to correct flooding at Higgins and Roselle roads, Hoffman Estates officials are prepared to take that route they decided Monday. They will first try to make their point by withholding payment of approximately $40,000 to the state for stoplight work at the intersection and by talking over the problem. A meeting has been set for late this week.

Trustee Virginia Hayter Monday received village board support when she took a "lets get tough stance" against the highway department.

Her report as chairman of the public works committee was terse and urged corrective action as she described flooding conditions at the intersection since the state has been working on improvements.

RECENT RAINS have also caused severe flooding in the Parcel she said, adding the "improvements" were grossly misnamed.

Mrs. Hayter said the village may do nothing more than irritate the state highway department by withholding its share of the improvements payment but perhaps the action would make the state notice the situation.

State highway engineers had assured the village improvements along Higgins would not cause any floods, but were to help alleviate flooding, she added.

"However, something is wrong when water starts flowing uphill instead of downhill as it does near the Burger King," said Mrs. Hayter.

The state highways department, still in the midst of construction has agreed to meet with John Hossack, Hoffman Estates superintendent of public works to discuss the problem.

Hossack agreed there is a problem, but urged Mrs. Hayter to take a waiting attitude at least until July when he will report about the meeting between the highways officials and himself.

AS HEAVY RAINS pounded the village hall windows Mrs. Hayter included the neighboring village of Schaumburg in her complaint.

She said the Village-In-The-Park complex near the Hoffman Estates border was responsible for flooding Dorothy Sicher Park on Frederick Lane. She also called for action from Schaumburg officials to assist the Knightsbridge developers in starting a retention area in the Jones Road area to alleviate flooding there.

John Coste, Schaumburg village manager said Tuesday he doesn't understand Mrs. Hayter's attitude. He said a solution to flooding in that area was jointly agreed upon between Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg officials and developers of the area. A portion of the work has been completed and the retention area under construction now. Coste said heavy rains and wet weather have delayed the work now in Knightsbridge but will progress when possible, he added.

FLOODING AT THE Higgins - Roselle roads intersection Monday made sport for boys who tried to rescue a car up to its "nose" in water. Local officials will protest the incident in view of the Higgins Road improvement that was to end flooding in the area.

Edwin Frank Will Oppose Crane In Congressional Race

Democrats in the 12th Congressional District have named Edwin L. Frank, 42, of Hoffman Estates, to carry the fight against the reelection of Republican U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane.

Frank was selected from among six applicants for the job by the 12th Congressional District Democratic Committee composed of township committeemen in Cook County and Herbert L. (Hub) Stern of Waukegan, Lake County Democratic chairman.

State Rep. Daniel Pierce, D-Highland Park, state central committeeman and chairman of the district committee, said the committee selected Frank largely on the basis of his past political experience.

Frank has been active in Schaumburg Township party affairs and is currently treasurer and parliamentarian of the township Democratic organization.

He has played an active part in campaigns for state Rep. Eugenia S. Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, and in the two campaigns by former state Rep. Ed Warman if Skokie against Crane.

PIERCE SAID Frank demonstrated a wide acquaintance among Democratic committeemen and "appeared quite knowledgeable" about issues in the coming election.

Others who sought the job of running against Crane included Mrs. Betty Spence of Buffalo Grove, Mrs. Irene Pitke of Hoffman Estates, Julian Kahn of Highland Park, James Frankel of Highland Park, and Marshall Rothman of Barrington, an unsuccessful candidate for the Democratic nomination for the state senate in the March primary.

All but Mrs. Pitke and Frankel appeared before the committee to present their credentials, Pierce said. Mrs. Pitke is currently in Europe. Frankel's qualifications were presented by Stern.

The committee began its search for a candidate following the withdrawal last month of Charles W. Houchins, who attracted some 18,000 votes as an unopposed candidate for the Democratic nomination in March.

Frank is a former Hoffman Estates park commissioner and is executive vice president of an Aurora advertising agency. He holds a marketing degree from Rutgers University and formerly taught at the State University of New York in Orange County and worked as a part-time reporter for Pioneer Press.

Barring Spread Of Strike

Road Project Starts In July

If the current strike of cement finishers doesn't spread into other construction trades, stretches of Schaumburg Road and Bartlett Road should be widened and paved by mid-October. The project is to start in early July.

At this time, the strike of the "cement finishers" won't affect these particular jobs" because the projects are asphalt, not cement, explained Glenn Fredericks, assistant superintendent of highways for Cook County.

The two projects totaling $359,818.80, are part of 12 highway projects totaling $4,445,000 on which contracts were awarded Monday at the Cook County Board of Commissioners meeting. The projects are being financed from motor fuel tax funds.

The two local stretches to be improved are Schaumburg Road from Roselle Road from Chicago-Elgin Road to Road to Meacham Road and Bartlett Schaumburg Road.

Contractor is Arrow Road Construction Co. located in unincorporated Elk Grove Township.

THE IMPROVEMENTS along Schaumburg Road includes widening the existing pavement plus a four-lane widening of the east approach of Schaumburg Road at Roselle Road and a three-lane widening where Schaumburg and Meacham Roads intersect.

Included will be rumble shoulder areas, mail box turnouts, guard rail, driveway surfacing, drainage adjustments, landscaping, striping and related road work.

The improvements on Bartlett Road consist of the widening on both sides of the existing pavement to 12-foot lanes at the north approach to Chicago-Elgin Road and the widening of Bartlett Road at Schaumburg Road to three lanes.

Included are provisions for rumble shoulders, driveway reconstruction, drainage additions and adjustments, landscaping, striping and other related road work.

Des Plaines Man Charged

Randy Bennett of 9029 W. Oak St. of Des Plaines faces an Aug. 9 court date in Schaumburg to answer charges of deceptive practices and possession of stolen property placed against him by Schaumburg police on Monday.

Detective Walter King and Patrolman Michael Bromund arrested Bennett on complaints from Penny's Department Store in the Woodfield Shopping Center in Schaumburg.

Bennett reportedly ran out of Penny's when clerks were checking a credit card he attempted to use. Police said the card was reported stolen from an Elk Grove resident.

timated at $4,000 to $5,000.

Seven accidents, mostly minor, were reported to the Schaumburg Police Department. A Chicago man was taken to St. Alexis Hospital with arm, leg and head injuries after his car was struck on Rt. 72 by a car turning onto the road from the A&P parking lot near Rt. 58.

A mattress caught fire at 1437 Kingston, Schaumburg, when lightning struck through the window at 8 p.m. Schaumburg firemen contained the fire in the bedroom.

The Schaumburg Fire Department responded to 18 calls between 4 and 8 p.m. but none were serious. Lightning caused structural damage only to a home at 818 S. Roselle.

POWER LINES were down at Golf and Meacham, Roselle and Algonquin and Higgins and Oakmont and Plum Grove and Merline roads for about two hours Monday before service was restored.

About 2,000 customers were affected said Jack Stevens of Commonwealth Edison. In Hoffman Estates, a high voltage wire down at Huntington and Rt. 72 caused a blackout to Moon Lake and Hilldale Villages.

Hoffman Estates firemen reported flooding at the Roselle and Higgins Road intersection, where four feet of water didn't drain off until 11 p.m. One car was reported stranded west of Roselle Road. Jones Road at Highland was still flooded Tuesday morning.

Lightning ignited an attic fire at 413 Apricot Ln., Hoffman Estates but did not damage the rest of the house, the fire department reported.

Mrs. Richard Carnell of 121 Hickory, Schaumburg, reported flooding in the Timbercrest subdivision, though it was not as serious as during last week's rain, which caused several feet of basement flooding and sewage backup at the Carnell's.

Water run-off from a field in back of the homes on Hickory Lane caused backyard flooding during the height of the storm.

Flooding was also reported at the International Village back parking lot where water stood more than a foot deep. Water touched the bottom edge of car doors at Bode Road and Washington Boulevard in Hoffman Estates.

Radio Station Tour

To Kick Off Program

Schaumburg Park District begins its summer of '72 special events June 30 with a trip to WCFL radio station in Chicago.

Children will be conducted on a tour of the station and perhaps will catch a glimpse of some of the WCFL disk jockeys.

Registrations for the trip are being accepted at the Meineke Center, 220 E. Weathersfield Way. Registration hours are from 10 a.m. to noon and 1 to 4 p.m. throughout the week. Registration will close at 4 p.m. Tuesday.

The tour capacity is 50 children so registrants are encouraged to sign up as soon as possible. The cost is $1.25 per child which covers the cost of the tour and bus transportation.

The children will be transported in the Schaumburg Park District bus. The bus will leave the Meineke center at 12:45 p.m. and will return at about 4 p.m.

He commended the trustee who acts as chairman of the villages newly organized environmental committee for her work, the committees work and its help to the youth group.

Rezoning Case

'Grand Canyon Approval Granted

A 21-acre site along Grand Canyon Parkway, between Higgins and Bode roads in Hoffman Estates, was rezoned Monday from a business classification to allow a 200-unit multi-family development.

Trustees approved the rezoning request, accepting Simon and Sons, plans for building a development next to the Bowling Proprietors of America building. Noting that development of the site was delayed for several years as the village and owners sought business development, the board members said they were satisfied with the present proposal. The development earlier received the plan commission's approval.

described by Simon representatives the townhouses will be of brick veneer and set in eight rings of approximately 24 units in each ring.

Trustee Virginia Hayter said she approved the development since the area could not be marketed as total business and the developers had cooperated to decrease the density from first proposals.

SIMON WILL extend a road from Bode road through to Higgins at the west end of the site and plans a 1,500-square-foot swimming pool. In addition to two parking spaces for each unit, the development will offer 14 extra spaces in each cluster for guest parking.

The board also approved Kaufman and Broad unit six preliminary land plan for a portion of the Barrington Square area and granted the developer, permit to build a model unit at Governors Lane.

David Shaw, Kaufman and Broad vice president, said the four-acre site at Higgins and Governors Lane will hold 42 townhouses instead of the 52 units originally proposed.

He added that the homeowners association and developer have agreed about a former misunderstanding concerning development of the property. Shaw said originally there was opposition to the development because some homeowners understood the area was to remain open space.

Kaufman and Broad, to satisfy this claim, have agreed to give up a three-acre site adjoining Lake George to create a larger open area there and the association has withdrawn its objection.

Number Of Liquor Licenses Is Increased

Patrons of the Captain's Cove, a new restaurant proposed next to the Rainbow Inn Tavern at 210 S. Roselle Rd., will be served liquor from a service bar at the Rainbow.

Hoffman Estates trustees Monday agreed to increase the number of liquor licenses in the village to allow the arrangement proposed by Captain's Cove owner Janet McDonald.

According to Mrs. McDonald's attorney, Harold Harris, she will operate the restaurant as a separate business. There will be no bar in the restaurant and Captain's Cove will purchase all liquor and drink orders from Gus Likos, who holds liquor license at the Rainbow Inn.

The board agreed it could work since Likos owns the building Mrs. McDonald resides at 347 Alcoa Ln., Hoffman Estates. Harris appealed to the board for any delay in the request, saying his client at first understood only one license would be required since the bar would remain in the Rainbow Inn.

Explorer Scouts Plan Ranch Trip

Explorer Post 229 Scouts will spend 13 days on the wilderness trail learning mountain camp crafts, including earth science, gold panning, rock climbing, archaeological digging, burro packing and horseback riding. Drive-In Evangelist Will Aid S.D. Flood Victims

by BOB ANDERSEN

An evangelistic desire to spread the gospel plus an unexpected and devastating tragedy propelled the Rev. Jim Berndt and his wife, Marlene, to South Dakota this week.

The tragedy, of course, is the recent flood in Rapid City, S. D., that claimed the lives of more than 200 people, both natives and vacationers.

Rev. Berndt said he will seek to tend to the "spiritual" needs of the survivors as well as helping out however, he can with the physical, human problems such as lack of housing, food shortage, medical attention, etc.

Rev. Berndt also will be conducting a series of six drive-in church services near Spearfish, S. D. The services will be held the last four Sundays in July and the first two Sundays in August, explained the evangelist, who lives at 251 Highland Blvd., Hoffman Estates.

THE DRIVE-IN church services mark a first for the Black Hills region of South Dakota. Though certain other areas of the country, mostly the warmer regions, have drive-in churches, the Black Hills region never has offered the service.

Himself a native of South Dakota, Rev. Berndt noticed during previous visits to churches near the Black Hills that many of the tourists, who attended church "felt out of place" because of their casual, vacation attire. He theorized there must be many vacationers who, though desiring to attend church, didn't because of the formal clothing requirements.

In the drive-in services, the participants can stay in their cars. The sermon will be broadcast via outdoor speakers on poles similar to the speakers used at drive-in meetings, Rev. Berndt said.

Rev. Berndt said participants in the drive-in services also will be allowed to respond to the gospel message. There will be a response by honking horns and blinking car lights, he said.

The services, he emphasized, are inter-denominational.

Rev. Berndt, a graduate of Bob Jones University in South Carolina, describes himself as a "free-lance" evangelist with no denominational affiliations.

"NOBODY supports us," he said. He is assisted in his evangelistic endeavors by his wife. The couple also operate a local music school and much of their financial support comes from music lessons, mostly on the instruments such as the piano, the organ and the guitar, Rev. Berndt said.

Rev. Berndt, who conducts evangelistic services across the nation on request, is not sure how the flooding incident will affect the Rapid City flood survivors in a religious sense.

Some undoubtedly will be "bitter" and turn away from religion, he said. Others will put the pieces of their lives back together, deriving strength from their religious beliefs, he added.

Whatever, he conceded, the spiritual needs of the survivors are secondary now. First the practical, physical and financial problems of the survivors will have to be solved, he said.

Defense Opens In Restaurant Case

Multicon Properties, Inc., planned from before April 1969 through last March 15 to build a clubhouse for the golf course at Hilldale Villages, separate from the Dalehouse Restaurant, according to court testimony presented yesterday.

Defense opened in the suit brought by Twinbrook Investments, Inc., against Multicon with testimony from land use planners from Chicago and from Columbus, Ohio. Also on the stand were an attorney formerly representing Multicon, and a company employee.

In the Cook County Chancery Court suit, Twinbrook is asking to be restored possession of the restaurant, which it claims Multicon repossessed illegally last fall. Multicon owns the restaurant, but Twinbrook holds a lease. The case hinges on whether a lease clause banning restaurant shut-downs of more than 30 days was violated.

JEAN GORDON of Columbus, architect who prepared Multicon's original land plans for the Hilldale Villages site, identified a proposed structure on the property he termed a community center, which was to include areas to serve food and drink and allow direction of golf course use. Salvatore Balsamo, Chicago architect who prepared revisions to the original plans last March, identified the same structure in the revised drawings.

Ted Shapiro, defense attorney, said he was attempting to introduce evidence Multicon intended to build a separate clubhouse facility, and did not seek to repossess the Dalehouse for such a use. He said testimony by prosecution witnesses suggested Multicon wanted the Dalehouse for a clubhouse.

James Soble, an attorney formerly of the firm Siegel, Soble and Stonelifer, testified relating to meetings in which Dalehouse operators Nicholas Calabrese and Dominick Marzullo allegedly offered to sell their lease on the restaurant to Mul-tion. Multicon's St. Louis area manager, David Faestel, also testified regarding the negotiating meetings.

The case is to resume at 2 p.m. today.

Wolf And Highland Area Hardest Hit

Public Works Crews Work All Night Fighting Water

"When the Wickes light tower goes under, we're in real trouble," commented one Wheeling policeman after heavy rains left numerous homes in the village partially under water yesterday.

Hardest hit were the homes in the area of Wolf Road and Highland Avenue, where one woman was trapped until Tuesday morning because she could not shut off electrical power to get out of the house.

Compared to the 1970 flood in the village, Village Mgr. George Passolt said the results of the Monday and Tuesday rainstorms were less in some areas and greater in others.

He explained that Valley Stream Drive and Beverly Drive did not flood as badly this time as in 1970, but the areas of Meadowbrook West and along Wolf Road were worse.

Flooding was serious enough that John Guillou, director of the Illinois Division of Waterways, flew in to tour the area with Rep. Eugene Schlickman.

R-Arlington Heights.

PASSOLT SAID the retention basins in Heritage Park appear to be functioning, but the rain was just beyond their capacity.

Wheeling public works crews worked all night pumping out houses, barricading flooded streets and checking other residents' calls.

Residents of the flooded area at Wolf Road and Highland Avenue tried to stop traffic to prevent waves of muddy water from washing into their homes, but were unsuccessful until police barricaded the road Tuesday morning. Large trucks were able to get through the high water, although few autos made the attempt.

Police aided at least seven motorists whose cars stalled in high water in the village.

At 10 a.m. Tuesday there was about four feet of water at the Jeffrey Avenue bridge entrance to Meadowbrook West, preventing any auto traffic in or out of the subdivision. Anthony Drive also had heavy flooding.

Fasements in homes on Anthony Drive were reportedly filling up with as much as six feet of water when village crews went out to aid in the pumping, and basements on Valley Stream Drive were also filling up early in the evening.

Passolt said he didn't think the Des Plaines river backed up, since the ditch was flowing rapidly and the water was receding by Tuesday afternoon. He said some sewers were not emptying because the ditch was so high.

ALTHOUGH THERE were no official reports of rainfall measurements, Passolt said he had received estimates of up to six inches, with as much as two inches in one hour.

Fire department and Civil Defense volunteers in rowboats went from house to house in the heavily flooded areas to evacuate stranded families or to help where needed. They went around among ecstatic children who ramped and rode bicycles in the deep water.

In addition to flood damage, the home of Donald Klauke of 190 Wheeling Ave. was destroyed by fire when lightning struck it about 5:18 p.m. Monday. Firemen said the interior of the house was gutted. A second house at 181 Sunrise Dr. was struck by lightning, but firemen said there was no major damage.

Village officials received no reports of injuries caused by the storm.

Passolt said actual flooding began about 11 p.m. or midnight.

Cook County Criminal Court Judge Richard J. Fitzgerald continued the trial of three men indicted for the murder of Inverness Horseman George Jayne until July 12.

The judge continued the case yesterday morning when a hearing to suppress evidence found in the home of Joseph LaPlaca of Elgin was to have been held.

LaPlaca, Silas Jayne of Elgin and Julius Barnes of Chicago are all being held on charges of murder and conspiracy to commit murder in the 1970 death of George Jayne.

Board Delays Meeting

The Wheeling Park District Board delayed a meeting originally scheduled for last night until Thursday because of flood water surrounding the district's Heritage Park offices.

The meeting, which is a continuation of last Thursday's regular park board meeting, will be at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow.

Appointment of a new superintendent for the district is to be discussed.

Board Given 'Save Trees' Mandate

A committee of Meadowbrook West residents presented the Wheeling Village Board with a mandate to save the trees along the Wheeling drainage ditch Monday night.

The residents presented results of a questionnaire answered by 315 residents of the area.

A total of 281 residents voted to have the village install a new bridge across the ditch at Jeffery Avenue, to deepen the ditch where possible and to remove stumps from the creek bed only.

There were 14 residents who said they wanted only a new bridge, no work on the ditch.

Three residents voted to have the village scrap the whole project.

Eighteen had no opinion.

IN A SIDE issue 270 voted to have the creek area designated as a wildlife refuge to help preserve the trees permanently.

There were 18 residents who voted against the wildlife refuge and 27 who had no opinion on the question.

The survey was conducted by the residents at the request of the village board following a meeting two weeks ago about removing the trees to widen the ditch for flood control purposes.

The residents asked the board to leave the trees, and said they would take their chances with flooding.

Trustee William Hein, who heads the board's sewer, water and public health committee, said Monday the survey shows that "most people in the area are in favor of keeping the trees."

Hein noted that residents who had attended the earlier meeting had also almost unanimously endorsed saving the trees.

Esther Davis of 15 E. Jeffery told the board that residents had also made various comments about the survey.

SOME HAD asked for better storm sewers in the subdivision, for a second exit from the subdivision, stop signs at various intersections and landscaping the area around the Heritage Park basin.

Other individuals asked that the board not remove any trees except those growing out of the creek bottom, that the old Nancy Lane pumping station be removed and that the new bridge be graded.

Village board members told Mrs. Davis they would meet with officials of the Metropolitan Sanitary District, the U. S. Soil Conservation Service and the Illinois Division of Waterways about plans for the ditch if Mrs. Davis would arrange the meeting.

MRS. DAVIS told the board John Guillou of the Illinois Division of Waterways said the $60,000 the village lost by not doing the creek widening immediately would be available again next year.

"You don't have to make a rush decision, you can wait and get expert advice," she told the trustees.

Schlickman To Push For State Flood Appropriations Bill

State Rep. Eugene Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, said yesterday after touring flooded areas in Prospect Heights and Wheeling that he would push harder for a state flood improvements appropriations bill now in the Illinois General Assembly.

Schlickman, along with John Guillou, chief engineer of the Illinois Division of Waterways, toured the area yesterday afternoon following Monday night's rain which left areas along McDonald Creek flooded.

Much of the flooding was blamed on the Soo Line Rwy. culvert at McDonald Creek. Funds from the bill would pay for a new culvert system that would increase the capacity of the creek.

The present culvert consists of a series of S pipes through which runoff from the creek flows into a tributary of the Des Plaines River.

THE FLOODING which completely covered the intersection of Wolf and Euclid roads in Prospect Heights was the apparent result of inadequate drainage at the culvert.

The Schlickman-sponsored bill calls for improvement of the culvert area at a cost of $170,000 including enlargement of the culvert mouth and replacement of the pipes.

"The culvert is obviously inefficient," said Schlickman. "The pipes are too small to do the job and they've got to be replaced."

Money for the bill which passed the legislature last year was received too late for work to start this spring, according to Guillou.

"THE PROJECT is in cooperation with the Soo Line because the culvert runs under their tracks," he said. "But the money was not only received too late, but Soo Line wanted a higher quality structure than we were going to build on their property."

Schlickman said he will work for passage of the appropriations bill when he returns to the General Assembly.

Another area of the creek along Ill. Rte. 83 had risen as high as six feet from the flooding but the waters began to subside early yesterday.

The officials also paid a visit to a flooded residential area surrounding Buffalo Creek in Wheeling.

Schlickman added he will also work for passage of a bill calling for construction of retention basins around Buffalo Creek.

Schlickman could not say whether the troubled area will receive any emergency relief funding, but added that residents may be able to secure federally funded insurance loans through the Small Business Administration (SBA). The area would have to be declared in a state of emergency first, he said.

IN PROSPECT HEIGHTS, water had risen to five feet in the Country Gardens and Patricia Lanes areas. Area pump pump rental and repair services were reported busy Monday answering calls to pump water out of flooded basements.

Flooding was also reported severe on Edward Road where residents said one family had been evacuated early yesterday morning. Water was reported almost to the first floor in one home. The street and surrounding was under about 2½ feet of water.

Residents there reported similar flooding problems during heavy rains more than a week ago.

'Flood Control' Work Fails Test

by ANNE SLAVICK

The drought couldn't last forever. Wheeling's flood control basins finally got a chance to prove their "worth" Monday night. And as everyone had feared, the best intentions of mere mortals could do little to hold back the flood waters which periodically inundate several sections of the village.

Yet longtime Wheeling residents have a cavalier attitude toward the flooding. Even as the rain was falling Monday night a group of Meadowbrook West residents were in the village municipal building presenting petitions overwhelmingly calling for saving the trees along the Wheeling Drainage Ditch — Saving the trees even though it can mean more floods like the one that hit Meadowbrook West early Tuesday morning as the ditch rose to four feet deep on top of the Jeffery avenue bridge.

Newer village residents — those who haven't seen a Wheeling spring rain — were angry.

ANGRY BECAUSE they bought their homes without finding out about Wheeling flood plains. Angry enough to threaten village public works employees because their efforts weren't stopping the water flowing into the homes. And angry because the streets were impassable, yet cars kept driving by and sending waves of water into their basements and living rooms.

A resident of flooded Valley Stream Drive commented bitterly that there is only one answer to Wheeling's flooding — move out. "If anyone has it happen to them twice, they deserve it," answered the woman, ironically enough, the wife of a real estate salesman who has sold many homes in Wheeling.

Tuesday morning the water was a novel playground for children in the village. They rode their bicycles through two-foot deep lakes which blocked major streets. They paddled boats, both homemade and storebought, on new lakes which had sprung up in their neighborhoods.

Village police and firemen began their floodtime vigils at street barricades, turning back cars. A boat was sought to carry residents in and out of Meadowbrook West.

The village manager and director of public safety waded around town in hip-boots, consulting residents and consulting with village workers about the next move.

AND YESTERDAY afternoon the water began to subside, leaving village residents with waterlogged basements and crawl spaces to clean.

Two years ago when a similar Flood hit the village in early June, residents pitched in and lobbied in the state legislature and got the state to approve funding to help with flood control along the Buffalo Creek-Wheeling Drainage Ditch.

But two weeks ago the village board bowed to the wishes of Meadowbrook West residents and abandoned $60,000 of that money from the state. The money would have meant a wider drainage ditch but no trees in the subdivision.

It must have been a hard decision for some residents who remembered the 1970 rain to opt for the trees.

Are 55 species of birds more important than your family room furniture and carpeting?

But the long range decision this week's rain will force on the residents and the board will be an even more difficult one.

It is hard to believe that some residents won't change their minds as a result of yesterday's flood and tell the board to take out the trees to stop the flooding.

AND YET THERE is always the nagging question of whether the trees could be removed and the homes might still flood.

Residents of the area have asked the village to bring in outside agencies to study the entire flood control program.

Trustee Ronald Bruhn has suggested perhaps the village ought to stop all work for a year to give a new set of engineers a chance to assess the village's problem and propose a new set of solutions.

Whatever the village board decides it seems essential that the entire flood control program not be abandoned just to save the trees along the ditch.

If it is possible to save the trees and find other means to hold the storm water that is dumped on Wheeling in the spring then the board should do so.

But if keeping the trees will mean that several times each spring families will be trapped in a subdivision, families on the west side of the village will have homes heavily damaged by water, and Wheeling streets will be impassable, it's hard to believe that any trees are worth it.

LIGHTNING STARTED the fire which destroyed this house at 190 Wheeling Ave. Monday night. The Donald Klauke family lost the contents of the home as well as the house. Village firemen battled the blaze for 1 1/2 hours after the fire was reported at 5:18 p.m. Firemen spent much of the rest of the evening and yesterday helping with flooding in the rest of the village caused by the storm.

SWIMMING ON SUNRISE DRIVE is one way to beat the summer heat, particularly after a heavy storm like the one that hit Wheeling and Buffalo Grove Monday night. The water had only begun to subside by early Tuesday afternoon.

Edwin Frank Will Oppose Crane In Congressional Race

Democrats in the 12th Congressional District have named Edwin L. Frank, 42, of Hoffman Estates, to carry the fight against the reelection of Republican U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane.

Frank was selected from among six applicants for the job by the 12th Congressional District Democratic Committee composed of township committeemen in Cook County and Herbert L. (Hub) Stern of Waukegan, Lake County Democratic chairman.

State Rep. Daniel Pierce, D-Highland Park, state central committeeman and chairman of the district committee, said the committee selected Frank largely on the basis of his past political experience.

Frank has been active in Schaumburg Township party affairs and is currently treasurer and parliamentarian of the township Democratic organization.

He has played an active part in campaigns for state Rep. Eugenia S. Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, and in the two campaigns by former state Rep. Ed Warman if Skokie against Crane.

PIERCE SAID Frank demonstrated a wide acquaintance among Democratic committeemen and "appeared quite knowledgeable" about issues in the coming election.

Others who sought the job of running against Crane included Mrs. Betty Spence of Buffalo Grove, Mrs. Irene Pitke of Hoffman Estates, Julian Kahn of Highland Park, James Frankel of Highland Park, and Marshall Rothman of Barrington, an unsuccessful candidate for the Democratic nomination for the state senate in the March primary.

All but Mrs. Pitke and Frankel appeared before the committee to present their credentials, Pierce said. Mrs. Pitke is currently in Europe. Frankel's qualifications were presented by Stern.

The committee began its search for a candidate following the withdrawal last month of Charles W. Houchins, who attracted some 18,000 votes as an unopposed candidate for the Democratic nomination in March.

Frank is a former Hoffman Estates park commissioner and is executive vice president of an Aurora advertising agency. He holds a marketing degree from Rutgers University and formerly taught at the State University of New York in Orange County and worked as a part-time reporter for Pioneer Press.

the country, mostly the warmer regions, have drive-in churches, the Black Hills region never has offered the service.

Himself a native of South Dakota, Rev. Berndt noticed during previous visits to churches near the Black Hills that many of the tourists, who attended church "fell out of place" because of their casual, vacation attire. He theorized there must be many vacationers who, though desiring to attend church, didn't because of the formal clothing requirements.

In the drive-in services, the participants can stay in their cars. The sermon will be broadcast via outdoor speakers on poles similar to the speakers used at drive-in meetings, Rev. Berndt said.

Rev. Berndt said participants in the drive-in services also will be allowed to respond to the gospel message. There will be a response by honking horns and blinking car lights, he said.

The services, he emphasized, are inter-denominational.

Rev. Berndt, a graduate of Bob Jones University in South Carolina, describes

Find Teen Guilty Of Having Alcohol

David P. White, 17, of 1831 Cree Ln., Mount Prospect, was found guilty of possession of alcohol by a minor and fined $25 Friday in Mount Prospect Court. A second charge of resisting arrest was dropped by the police department.

White was arrested May 12 behind the Mount Prospect Plaza Shopping Center. When apprehended, White had allegedly struck Patrolman Michael Salatin in an attempt to flee.

himself as a "free-lance" evangelist with no denominational affiliations.

"NOBODY supports us," he said. He is assisted in his evangelistic endeavors by his wife. The couple also operate a local music school and much of their financial support comes from music lessons, mostly on the instruments such as the piano, the organ and the guitar, Rev. Berndt said.

Rev. Berndt, who conducts evangelistic services across the nation on request, is not sure how the flooding incident will affect the Rapid City flood survivors in a religious sense.

Some undoubtedly will be "bitter" and turn away from religion, he said. Others will put the pieces of their lives back together, deriving strength from their religious beliefs, he added.

Whatever, he conceded, the spiritual needs of the survivors are secondary now. First the practical, physical and financial problems of the survivors will have to be solved, he said.

'Drive-In Evangelist' Heads For S.D.

by BOB ANDERSEN

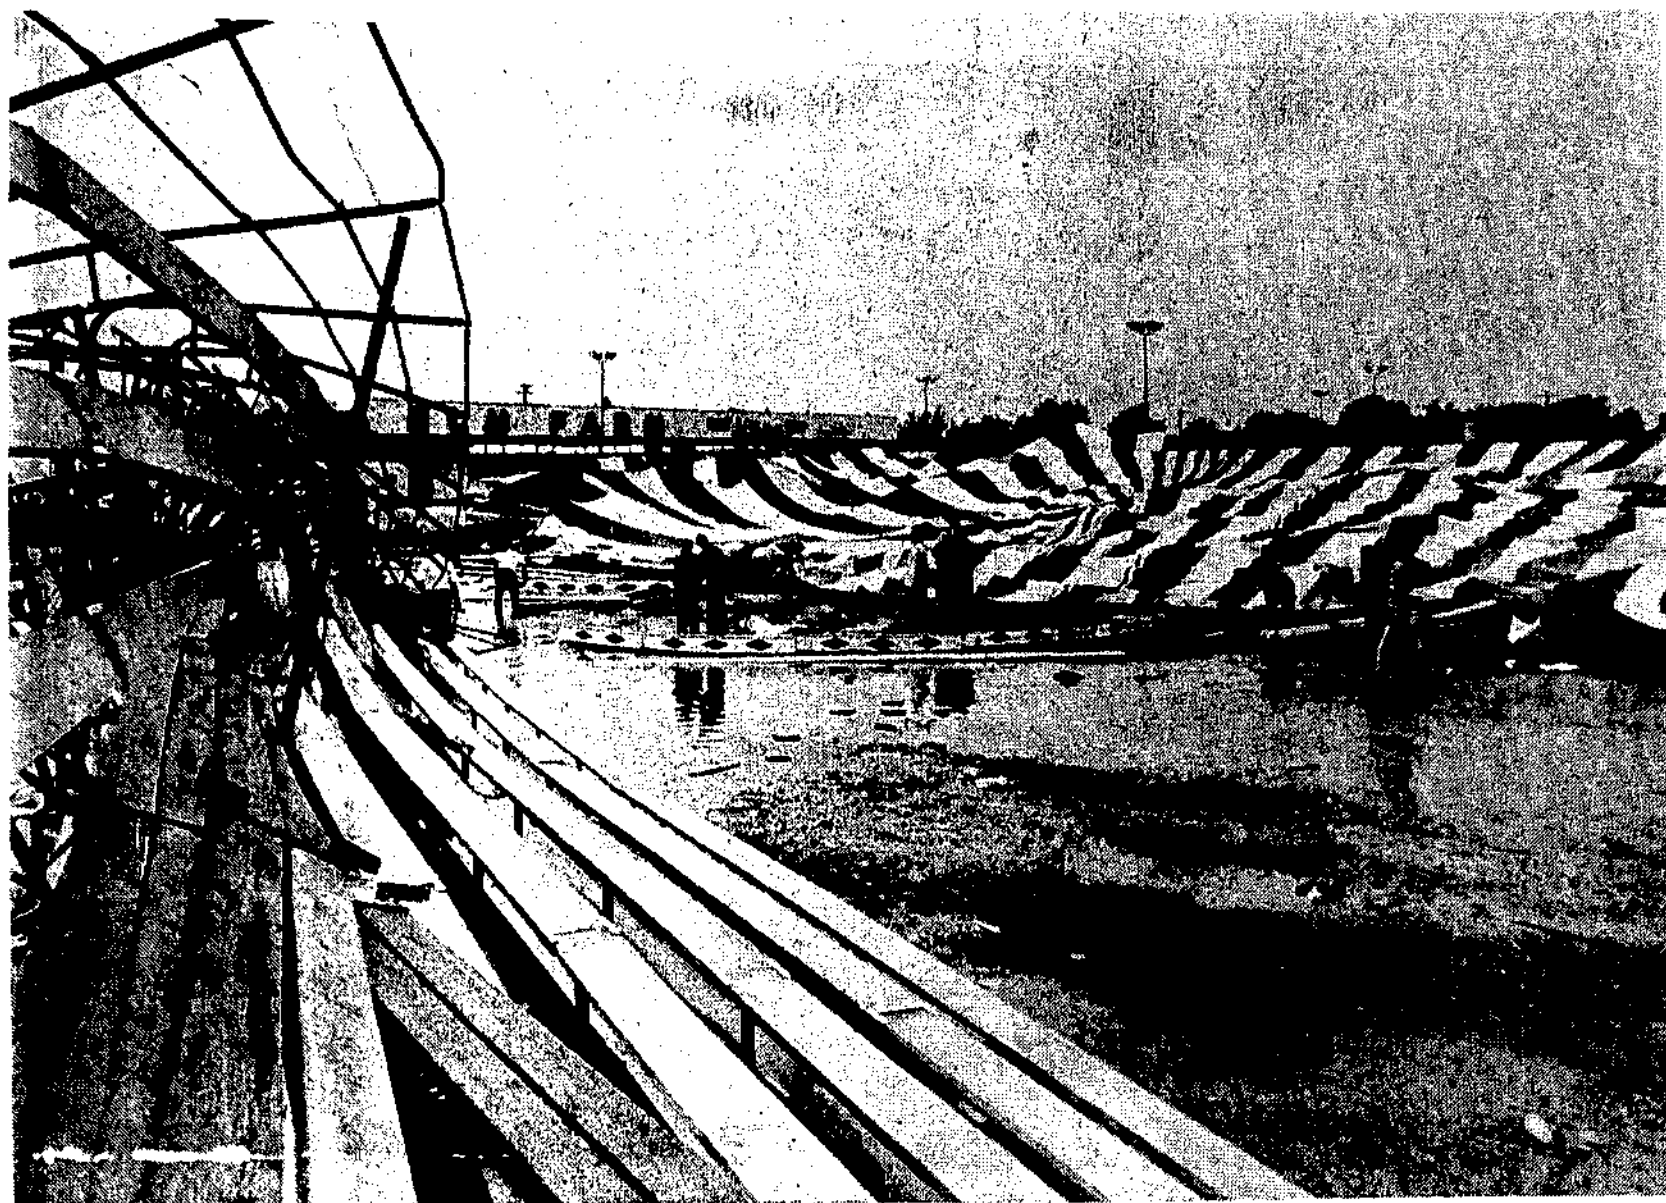

An evangelistic desire to spread the gospel plus an unexpected and devastating tragedy propelled the Rev. Jim Berndt and his wife, Marlene, to South Dakota this week.

The tragedy, of course, is the recent flood in Rapid City, S. D., that claimed the lives of more than 200 people, both natives and vacationers.

Rev. Berndt said he will seek to lend to the "spiritual" needs of the survivors as well as helping out however, he can with the physical, human problems such as lack of housing, food shortage, medical attention, etc.

Rev. Berndt also will be conducting a series of six drive-in church services near Spearfish, S. D. The services will be held the last for Sun'ays in July and the first two Sun'ays in August, explained Rev. Berndt, who lives at 251 Highland in Hoffman Estates.

Church services mark the first time the Black Hills region of South Dakota has offered the service.

HIGH WINDS during Monday night's storm toppled the Circus Internationale tent and damaged part of the grandstands. No one was reported injured, though damage was estimated at almost $80,000. The performance that had been scheduled for later that night was cancelled. The circus opened last Friday on Rte. 83 just south of Golf Road in Mount Prospect. Despite the mishap, the show was scheduled to go on last night.

Lions Plan 4th Of July Celebration

Bingo, beer, drum-and-bugle corps competition and a variety of carnival rides will be in store for residents at this year's Fourth of July celebration in Mount Prospect.

THE FAIR WILL also feature two nights of fireworks. On June 30 the Lions will host a fireworks display while the Mount Prospect Park District will sponsor the exhibit on July 4.

Proceeds from the fair will be used for Lions club projects, including donations to the blind. Hours for the carnival are 7 p.m. to 11 p.m., June 30; 3 p.m. to 11 p.m., July 1 and 2; 7 p.m. to 11 p.m. on July 3; and 3 p.m. to 11 p.m. on July 4.

"Spirit of Mount Prospect — It's the Real Thing" is the theme of this year's parade which will begin at 2 p.m. on July 4. At least 40 groups are expected to participate, according to George Lindholm, parade committee chairman. The parade will assemble at North Emerson and Gregory streets, for the march through town to Lions Park.

Following the parade, the top six Mid-West drum and bugle corps will compete at Lions Park. Groups in the parade include the Guardsmen Cadettes from Mount Prospect, the Ambassadors from Racine, Wis., the Flint Guardsmen from Flint, Mich., the Crusader Gladiators from Milwaukee, and the Colt 45 Cadettes from Dubuque, Iowa.

Village Drying Out After Heavy Rains

It Was Long, Wet Night For Public Works Employees

By Tuesday afternoon Buffalo Grove was beginning to dry out after heavy rains drenched the village Monday afternoon and early Tuesday.

Gene Boland, public works foreman, said the village storm sewer system was again functioning normally. Boland directed flood operations in the absence of vacationing public works director Bill Davis.

"All five lift stations in the village are operating, trying to catch up," Boland said. "They should be down to their normal levels by mid-afternoon," he added.

Public works employees labored through the night Monday, pumping water out of homes where basements were inundated. Boland said the department was pumping basements with the most damage first.

POLICE, FIREMEN and Civil Defense volunteers were on the job Monday night also, rerouting traffic around flooded areas and downed power lines.

Residents in the Cambridge area and a portion of Lake County were without power for about one hour when lightning struck the transformer at the corner of Buffalo Grove Road and Dundee Road. Power was lost on Arlington Heights Road north of Lake Cook Road for about three hours. Lightning also hit the transformer supplying power to the Golf View lift station, knocking it out of operation from 6 p.m. to 1 a.m.

Police drove around the village throughout the storm warning parents to get their children out of the streets. Many of the children played in the storm-flooded streets and, according to police, presented a safety as well as a possible health problem.

Buffalo Grove and Long Grove firemen responded to seven calls during the storm, all between 4:30 and 6 p.m.

IN ALL CASES lightning was the cause. There were no major fires.

One incident in the northern section of the village was reported when lightning hit a television antenna and sent the electric current into the television set, causing a small fire.

Long Grove firemen also reported that houses along Denham Lane were reporting over-loaded circuits throughout the storm.

The Buffalo Grove Fire Department stationed one of its trucks at the intersection of Bernard Drive and Cherrywood Drive during the downpour.

The truck was removed from the fire station because officials feared the flooding on Bernard Drive, St. Mary's Parkway and Lake-Cook Road would slow down fire vehicles getting to the Vernard-Cherrywood area.

VILLAGE STREETS closed sometime during the storm included Hiawatha Drive, Bernard Drive, St. Mary's Parkway, Arlington Heights Road, Dundee Road and Lake-Cook Road.

Neither the Buffalo Grove nor the Long Grove fire departments reported any injuries during the storm. Police also reported no injuries.

Unofficial reports said Buffalo Grove had between four and six inches of rain during the entire storm. The U.S. Weather Bureau in Chicago does not have a measuring station in Buffalo Grove and therefore could not give an official total on the rainfall.

Some Buffalo Grove residents said it was equal to or worse than any storm that has hit the village in the last 10 years.

A PUZZLED HOMEOWNER seems to be trying to decide whether a car, a boat or a bicycle is the best mode of transportation to brave the water in his driveway at 149 Wolf Rd. Wheeling firemen and Civil Defense workers used the boat to rescue people who were stranded in homes surrounded by water.

Immediate Evaluation Of Flood Control Demanded

The basement of the Buffalo Grove Village Hall, along with the basements of at least 50 village residents, was flooded Monday.

Following the sudden downpour that dumped four to six inches of rain on the village in a few hours, the village board Monday night asked for an immediate evaluation of existing and proposed flood control measures.

Calling the storm's damage the worst in seven years, Village Mgr. Dan Larson outlined the destruction. He said at the time of the meeting that several power lines were down, six roads were at least partially or completely impassable and the Long Grove and Buffalo Grove fire departments had already responded to 10 alarms, turned in by residents whose homes were struck by lightning.

Larson also said he had received calls from 50 village residents complaining of water in their basements. He said public works employees had begun making the rounds to these homes to pump out the water. Police and Civil Defense volunteers also worked much of the night controlling traffic and cleaning up.

Citing several flood control projects undertaken by Buffalo Grove in recent years, Larson said, "We're trying to catch up to problems that were created when the village was first developed."

TRUSTEE RANDALL Rathjen, irate because his own basement was also flooded, called Larson's estimate of the effectiveness of flood control measures in the village "a lot of pure fiction."

"It seems rather illogical to me," Rathjen said, "that on the one hand, we're going to install flood control operations we say will prevent this kind of thing in the future, and on the other hand, we're still going to ask for flood insurance."

Rathjen was referring to a Housing and Urban Development (HUD) program which provides federal flood insurance in urban areas. Ironically, the topic was one of the items on the meeting's agenda.

Rathjen agreed with two Lincoln Terrace homeowners present who said they'd like to see Larson and the Village Engineer Arnold Seaberg go out right then to survey the flooded areas and come up with some new answers that night.

"We've had water in our basements every time there has been a heavy rain for the past five years," one man said.

He added the problems began when the Ballantrae subdivision was developed.

The man claimed the source of Lincoln Terrace flooding problems was at the corner of St. Mary's Parkway and Bernard Drive where the sanitary sewers join at a 90-degree angle.

LARSON SAID a storm sewer improvement program to be instituted immediately should eliminate the flooding of basements in the village in the future. He said the sanitary sewer system will be routed to prevent ground water from infiltrating into the sewers and all home down spouts, sump pumps and window well drains in the village will be disconnected from the sanitary sewers.

"We're starting next week to go from house to house checking for illegal sewer hook-ups," said Village Pres. Gary Armstrong. Anyone with an illegal sewer connection is only contributing to his own flood problems, he added.

Seaberg told the trustees there is no basic flaw in the village storm sewer system that could have caused the flooding.

"No sanitary system is designed to carry sanitary effluent and storm water," Seaberg explained, "Our problem was compounded in that the rain came down too fast and the ground was still saturated from last week's five inches of precipitation. The water had no place to go."

Larson further defended the village's efforts to minimize rain damage saying, "We have a more extensive flood control program than any other northwestern community. We have proposed solutions to our regional problems, and the storm sewer improvement program should solve the isolated neighborhood problems in the village," he said.

Al Frankel suggested the immediate purchase of emergency generators at each of the five lift stations in the village. Armstrong told Seaberg to investigate the cost of the equipment and report back to the board at the June 26 workshop.

Police, Fire Officials Try To Form Emergency Phone System

Buffalo Grove police and fire officials were planning to meet with Village Mgr. Dan Larson late yesterday afternoon to try to form an emergency phone system so police and fire department phones would not become tied up as they were Monday night during the storms.

Police and fire phones were tied up for more than two hours Monday, and officials feared that if an emergency had occurred during the storm victims would have been unable to contact the proper authorities.

According to Fire Chief Wayne Winter, the fire department was receiving calls of flooding, downed trees and numerous other items that were directly related to the public works department.

"IF SOMEONE had a heart attack or there was a fire it could have taken 15 minutes before we got the call," said Winter. "What made it worse was when we would direct calls to the public works department and the caller would call back and tell us no one was there."

"We can't afford to jeopardize the safety of our residents," he concluded.

Police Chief Harold Smith said his department had the same problem.

"We need to get a common number that people can call during a situation like Monday night. You can't blame the people for calling us. They had nowhere else to turn," he said.

Both chiefs agreed that a phone number should be given to all village residents, and all calls, other than fire or police, can be channeled through that number.

Winter said the fire department does not have enough equipment to pump water out of residents' basements. "We have a few pumps but they are not to be used for individual flood problems."

"IF WE PUMP one basement we have to pump them all, and we just don't have the manpower or equipment to do that, so we turn the problem over to public works," said the fire chief.

The police department also asked residents not to call with routine questions when an emergency situation, such as a storm, exists.

"We got a call from one person Monday night asking where the village permits the driving of mini bikes," said Chief Smith. "That was at the height of the storm."

Both chiefs also suggested that residents with emergency problems who are unable to reach fire or police by direct dialing, should go through the telephone operator.

"They have been instructed to break routine calls with emergency calls if they must," said Smith.

'Crest' Residents Rap Zoning Plan; Fear Tax Boost

Eighteen residents of Arlington Crest in eastern Palatine last night brought their objections to a suggested zoning change for their subdivision to the Palatine Plan Commission.

Miss E. Stenzel, president of the Arlington Crest Civic Association, which she said represents about half of its residents, said a change in zoning from R-1 to R-2 would bring about a "substantial" tax increase.

The Palatine Village Board had suggested the rezoning mainly to avert individual requests for variances from property owners because their lot width falls short of the requirements for building under the present R-1 zoning.

Both R-1 and R-2 zoning classifications are for single-family residential districts, but differ in the minimum lot and width sizes requirements.

Miss Stenzel said the 66-foot-wide lots in Arlington Crest would still be less than the 75 feet required under R-2 zoning.

R-1 requires a 100-foot width for building, but acting Plan Commission Chairman Conrad Hansen said he believed property owners could build on 80-foot-wide lots.

MISS STENZEL said she had been told by the Cook County Assessor's office and the county taxpayers' information office that homeowners' taxes would go up if their property were rezoned R-2 because their average 19,800-square-foot lots would be more than double the minimum amount of square footage required under R-2 zoning.

The plan commission asked Miss Stenzel to obtain that opinion in writing from the county prior to the plan commission's consideration of the suggested rezoning at its July 18 meeting.

Other reasons cited by Miss Stenzel for the homeowners' opposition to rezoning included:

—"Resentment" that the village "is not willing to take the time" to hear individual requests for variances. "If they don't want to take the time, why do they seek election?" she asked.

—"The belief that the village is attempting to accommodate a minority of property owners in the subdivision, specifically owners of 20 vacant lots belonging to persons who do not live in Arlington Crest.

MISS STENZEL recommended that the village adopt a new zoning classification, R-1C, to specifically apply to lots such as those in Arlington Crest.

By allowing building on lots more than 19,500 square feet with 66-foot widths, property owners would not have to approach the village for variances and present homeowners would not have to pay higher taxes, she said.

Hansen said that because about one-quarter of the approximately 160 lots in Arlington Crest are not developed, "good planning" would dictate zoning provisions to avoid 45 separate hearings for variances as the property owners decide to build.

He did not indicate, however, what type of provisions the plan commission would recommend to the village board, which is to take final action in the matter.

Phone Service May Be Subpar Until Thursday

Telephone service may be slightly below par in many Palatine homes until Thursday, but service has been restored to most phones affected by Monday's storm.

Cook County Criminal Court Judge Richard J. Fitzgerald continued the trial of three men indicted for the murder of Inverness Horseman George Jayne until July 12.

The judge continued the case yesterday morning when a hearing to suppress evidence found in the home of Joseph LaPlaca of Elgin was to have been held.

LaPlaca, Silas Jayne of Elgin and Julius Barnes of Chicago are all being held on charges of murder and conspiracy to commit murder in the 1970 death of George Jayne.

An Illinois Bell Telephone Co. spokesman said yesterday 70 phones in the Palatine and Barrington area remain inoperative because of damage to cables during the storm.

Some 3,758 phones were reported without service initially.

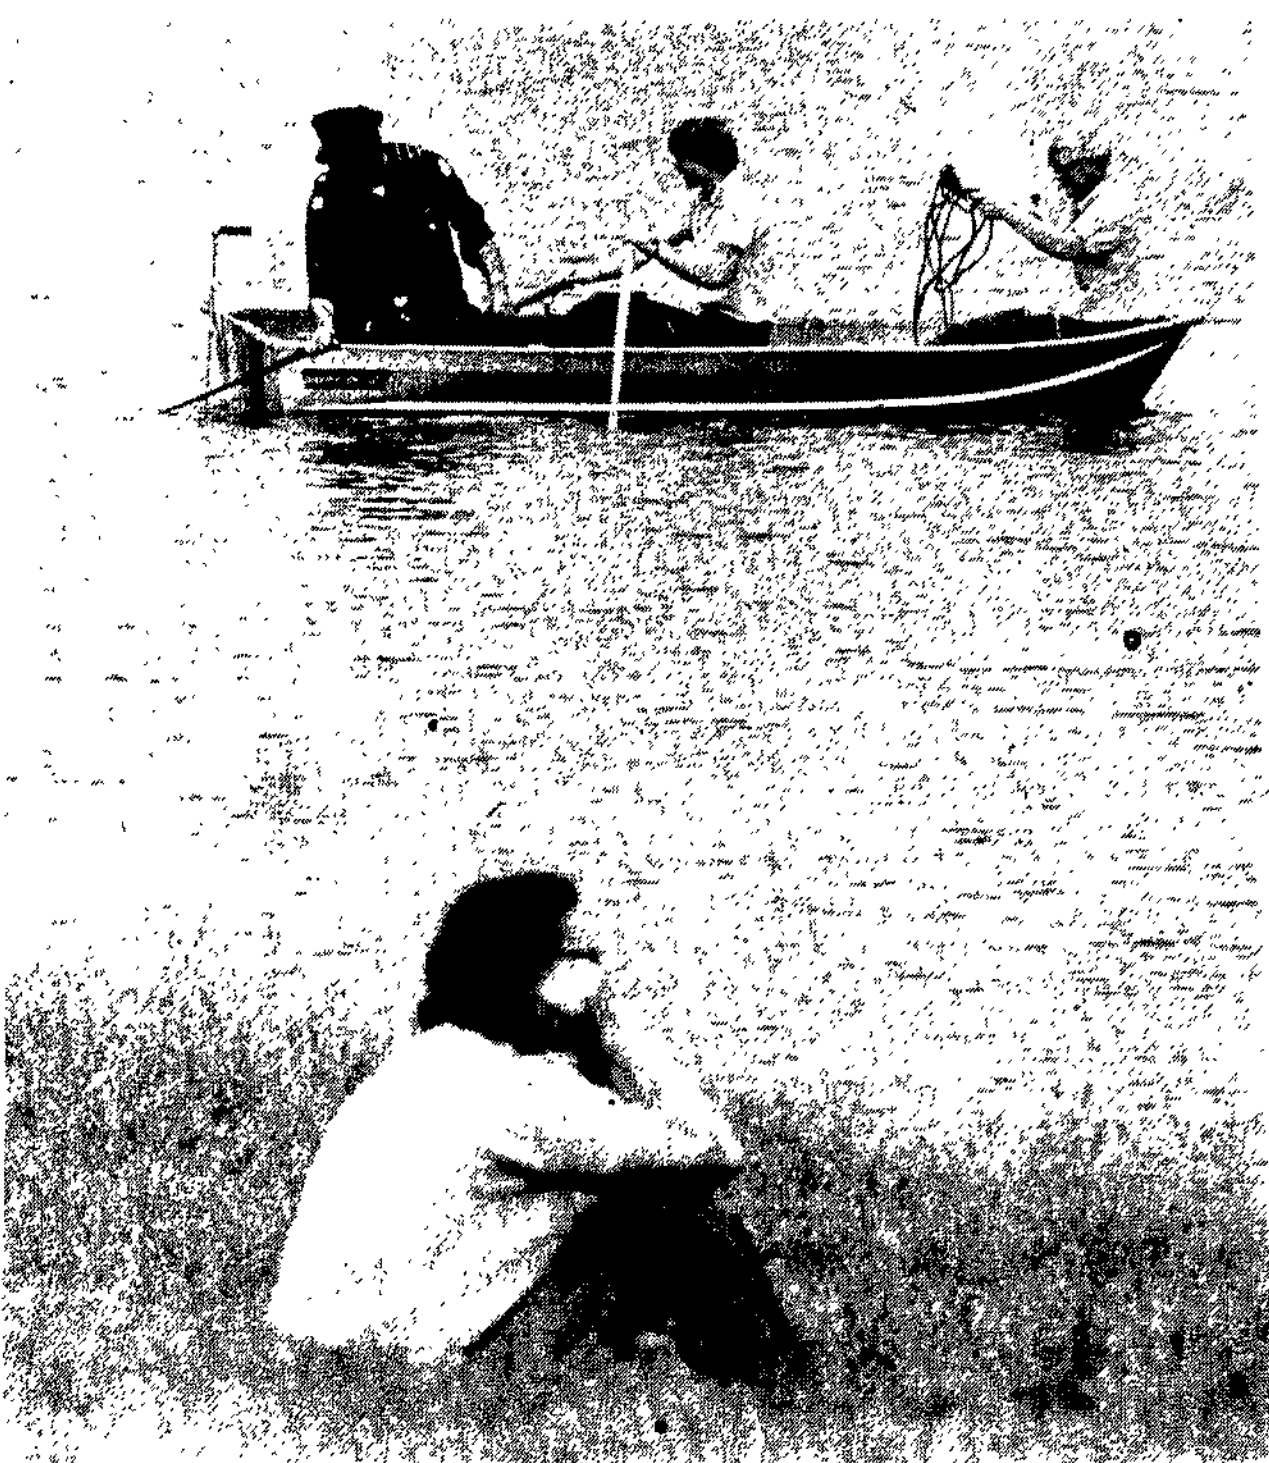

Hank Siefkin of the phone company said that service may be poor until cables are repaired Thursday, but that most phones will be usable.

Some 200 homes were without power for parts of the evening Monday, but a Commonwealth Edison Co. spokesman said power was restored by midnight.

Jack Stephens, district superintendent, attributed the power loss to six service wires having been struck by lightning.

Meanwhile, most Palatine roads which were reported flooded early Monday evening, were passable later in the evening or Tuesday morning.

A village spokesman said not as many streets were flooded as had been anticipated, and urged residents not to block storm sewers with grass clippings or other material which would hinder drainage.

A PALATINE fireman drags a hose line toward a blaze that leveled an abandoned barn yesterday afternoon in Wheeling Township. Both Arlington Heights and Palatine Rural fire fighters responded to the fire that rapidly destroyed the wooden structure. There were no injuries.

Chosen From A Large Field

Edwin Frank Opposes Crane

Democrats in the 12th Congressional District have named Edwin L. Frank, 42, of Hoffman Estates, to carry the fight against the reelection of Republican U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane.

Frank was selected from among six applicants for the job by the 12th Congressional District Democratic Committee composed of township committeemen in Cook County and Herbert L. (Hub) Stern of Waukegan, Lake County Democratic chairman.

State Rep. Daniel Pierce, D-Highland Park, state central committeeman and chairman of the district committee, said the committee selected Frank largely on the basis of his past political experience.

Frank has been active in Schaumburg Township party affairs and is currently treasurer and parliamentarian of the township Democratic organization.

He has played an active part in campaigns for state Rep. Eugenia S. Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, and in the two campaigns by former state Rep. Ed Warman if Skokie against Crane.

PIERCE SAID Frank demonstrated a wide acquaintance among Democratic committeemen and "appeared quite knowledgeable" about issues in the coming election.

Others who sought the job of running against Crane included Mrs. Betty Spence of Buffalo Grove, Mrs. Irene Pitke of Hoffman Estates, Julian Kahn of Highland Park, James Frankel of Highland Park, and Marshall Rothman of Barrington, an unsuccessful candidate for the Democratic nomination for the state senate in the March primary.

All but Mrs. Pitke and Frank appeared before the committee to present their credentials, Pierce said. Mrs. Pitke is currently in Europe. Frank's qualifications were presented by Stern.

The committee began its search for a candidate following the withdrawal last month of Charles W. Houchins, who attracted some 18,000 votes as an unopposed candidate for the Democratic nomination in March.

Frank is a former Hoffman Estates park commissioner and is executive vice president of an Aurora advertising agency. He holds a marketing degree from Rutgers University and formerly taught at the State University of New York in Orange County and worked as a part-time reporter for Pioneer Press.

Ralph Morris Resigns From Library Panel

Dr. Ralph W. Morris resigned from the Palatine Library Board yesterday because of "academic pressure." He starts a sabbatical leave from the University of Illinois in September and is scheduled to complete a book on drug interaction by December 31.

Morris is a former president of the library board and the North Suburban Library System. On the Palatine board of directors since 1967, Morris' current term would have ended next April.

A successor to Morris will be appointed by September 1. The library board will accept applications from any Palatine citizen to fill the vacancy.

MORRIS RECEIVED his bachelor of arts degree at Ohio University, his master's degree in physiology at Iowa University, and his Ph.D. in pharmacology at Iowa.

A resident of Palatine for nearly 15 years, Morris lives at 901 Arrowhead Dr. with his wife, Virginia Lynn, and their five children. He is a professor of pharmacy at the University of Illinois Circle Campus in Chicago.

He served as president of the North Suburban Library System in 1970-71. His other library activities included officer and committee positions on the Illinois Library Trustee Association, the Illinois Library Trustee Association, the Illinois Library Association.

Morris' resignation leaves three positions to be filled in the library board election next April.

Fire Destroys Vacant Barn; 2 Trucks Saved

Fire destroyed a vacant barn yesterday north of Arlington Heights Road and Maude Avenue in unincorporated Wheeling Township. Cause of the fire was undetermined.

The barn had stood vacant for more than five years and Palatine Fire Chief Orville Helms said the owner of the building was not immediately known. It had once been used as a garden supply store.

The Arlington Heights Fire department responded to the alarm shortly after 12:30 p.m., then called in the Palatine Rural Fire Department. The building burned rapidly, and fire trucks began leaving by 1:45.

Two large semi-trailers were parked in the alley next to the building when the fire broke out. They were filled with oats waiting to be transferred to Guenther Brothers Feed at the end of the alley. Firemen watered down the trucks until they could be moved.

The fire scene was a tangle of kids and bicycles. Police did not clear the area around the burning building until the fire was nearly extinguished. No injuries were reported at the scene.

Chief Helms said the building was a total loss. A garage near the barn did not catch fire. Most damage was restricted to the building, which bordered on an open field.

Chicago newspapers reported that five Chicago policemen — all black — have been linked with the execution-style slayings of at least six black men. Authorities refused to confirm the reports.

The Illinois Racing Board voted to ban all types of betting combinations not approved when Illinois tracks applied for their licenses last November.

Residents File To Disannex

'Contiguity' Key To Inverness Suit

"Contiguity" is the key to the suit filed by the village of Inverness to block a disannexation attempt by Inverness residents Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lonz, 1120 S. Roselle Rd.

The legal definition of contiguous may make the difference in how Cook County Circuit Court Judge Helen McGillicuddy rules when she announces her decision next Tuesday. The two sides presented their cases before Judge McGillicuddy yesterday.

Disannexation, or disconnection as it is legally called, must meet eight state requirements before it is allowed. One condition is that property for disconnection cannot be contiguous to two or more municipalities.

Lonz's 40 acres border Inverness along the north side of his plot, and overlaps into Palatine along 33 feet of Roselle Road in the southeastern corner of his land.

Palatine's boundary extends to the center of Roselle Road, while the Inverness border overlaps to the west side of Roselle. Technically, this half-road overlap is a common boundary.

No specific definition defining how much common land represents a "contiguous" border in Illinois.

Inverness, represented by Atty. J. William Braithwaite, argued that disannexation is forbidden if the territory is contiguous in part to any other municipality.

Lonz's attorney, William J. Moore, countered with examples of court decisions on annexation suits. In such cases, common borders of 20 feet, 50 feet, and 83 feet were insufficient to make them legally contiguous.

OTHER DECISIONS had ruled borders of 300 feet and 400 feet did constitute contiguity.

"As far as we can determine, there are no recorded cases that determine the width of overlap that equals contiguity in disconnection cases," Braithwaite said. He argued that annexation precedents did not apply to the Inverness situation.

Annexation rulings do apply to disconnection, Moore said, he called the Inverness-Palatine overlap as "the very minutest of touchings."

Lonz was put on the stand at Moore's request to officially make yesterday's meeting a hearing. Whatever decision is reached next week will probably be appealed by the losing party.

A proposed plan for Inverness would allow development of offices and research activities on Lonz's land. Although Lonz has not indicated his plans for the site, it could be used for apartment complexes or a shopping center if the disannexation petition is successful. The 40-acre parcel is near Harper College.

Bowling Lane May Get OK

Palatine residents who like to bowl won't have to travel far to get to a lane if a proposed development is annexed to the village and given proper zoning.

The site of the 40-lane bowling alley would be on the southwest corner of Northwest Highway-Baldwin Road and Smith Street, extending west along Northwest Highway to the Commonwealth Edison right-of-way.

Besides the bowling alley, developer Onorio Gutilla, 516 Willow Wood Dr., Palatine, proposes a restaurant, new car dealership and "various other commercial uses" be included on the property.

Current owners of the property are Karl and Elizabeth Oesterle, 202 W. Baldwin Rd., Palatine.

A bowling alley had been operated in Palatine for 18 years at Northwest Highway and Rohlwing Road, but the building was sold and later converted to a motorcycle shop in 1965.

Schools Plan To Avoid Overcrowding At Ridge

About 60 incoming kindergarten students from the Winston Knolls subdivision in Hoffman Estates will be assigned to Marion Jordan School this fall to avoid anticipated overcrowding at Hunting Ridge School.

Paul Jung, director of personnel and information services for Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 said the move was dictated by a greater than expected kindergarten registration for Hunting Ridge in May.

Jung said 170 children were enrolled at Hunting Ridge, and the district decided the kindergarten program there should be held to four classes of 30 students each, or 120 children total.

"The enrollment of 170 kids for kindergarten (at Hunting Ridge) was just too many kids," Jung said. No other District 15 schools are being affected the same way, he said. The transfer of enrollment from Hunting Ridge to Marion Jordan will be limited to the kindergarten level only.

ALL INCOMING kindergartners from the Hunting Ridge subdivision of Palatine will still attend Hunting Ridge school. Parents in Winston Knolls subdivision of Hoffman Estates who presently have an older child in an upper level at Hunting Ridge will be allowed to enroll their kindergarten age children there.

Parents from Winston Knolls with no older children at Hunting Ridge will have to enroll kindergartners at Marion Jordan.

Jung said Marion Jordan was selected as the transfer school because kindergarten enrollment is expected to be comparatively low there in fall. The school is at Palatine Road and Harrison Avenue in Palatine.

Parents are being informed of the change by letters sent out by the district, Jung said.

Quentin Road To Be Rerouted

Quentin Road traffic near Colfax Street and Northwest Highway in Palatine Township will be rerouted for two months this summer as Quentin is repaved.

The Cook County Board of Commissioners this week awarded a $98,425.77 contract to Greco Contractors, Inc., Rosemont, for resurfacing of some 1,600 feet on Quentin Road.

The resurfacing will begin at Colfax and extend north on Quentin to some 778 feet north of Northwest Highway.

The project includes widening the road to four lanes at the Colfax Street intersection to allow for turn-only lanes.

A spokesman for the Greco company said work probably would begin within 30 days and last approximately 60 days. Quentin Road will be blocked off in both directions for the duration of the work, he said.

For Second Time In Less Than A Week

Heavy Rainfall Triggers New Flooding, Power Failures

Heavy rain on Monday triggered flooding and power failures in Rolling Meadows for the second time in less than a week.

An estimated four inches of rain fell when the storm swept the area flooding several streets and basements in the traditional storm trouble spots in the city.

Flooding problems were also reported at Rolling Meadows High School, Plum Grove Junior High School, Central Road School, Rolling Meadows Sports Complex and all of the playgrounds in the city.

Lightning and high winds knocked out electrical power leaving some homes without power until 10:30 a.m. yesterday.

Jack Stephens, spokesman for Commonwealth Edison, estimated 10 per cent of the homes in Rolling Meadows were affected by the blackout. The blackout was scattered throughout the city but concentrated mainly in the western and southwestern area.

THE POWER failures occurred between 3:30 and 6 p.m. and 90 per cent of the power was restored by the evening, according to Stephens. Monday's storm caused an estimated blackout in 8,000 homes in the northwest suburbs compared with 3,000 last Wednesday.

A power line servicing the Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights was knocked out but an automatic switching device switched the power pattern to another line so there was no interruption in service. Steve Person, park director, said there was a two-hour power failure at the sports complex.

Electrical power lines were down at Golf and Meacham Roads, Roselle and Algonquin Roads and along Plum Grove Road, according to Stephens.

Rolling Meadows High School, which was closed last December because of flooding, had sections of the school under as much as eight inches of water. The flooding was concentrated in the gymnasium area, locker rooms and fieldhouse. A custodian at the school said the only possible damage was to the green asphalt in the fieldhouse. The fieldhouse had been dried by yesterday afternoon and the custodial crews were working to clear the water out of the other areas.

Plum Grove School had approximately two inches of water in a basement classroom. William Tremelling, director of building and grounds for Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15, said the flooding apparently occurred when a drain in the area could no longer hold the water and the water ran down a ramp into the basement classroom. No damage was caused by the flooding.

THE PLAYGROUND at Central Road School was flooded when Salt Creek overflowed. Tremelling said it had been six or seven years since he had seen Salt Creek overflow that much in the area of Central Road School. No flooding of the school was reported.

At the Rolling Meadows Sports Complex the gymnasium, two meeting rooms, furnace room and pool filter room were under four to six inches of water. Person said the flooding was caused by the sewers backing up. Salt Creek did not overflow in the area of the sports complex. The water had all been cleaned up by yesterday and programs continued on schedule.

All of the parks in the city are under water. Person said Waverly Park was hit hardest where there were reports of the water being so deep children were out "swimming" in it.

City Public Works Supt. James McFeggan said he had received several calls on flooded basements and streets. Streets in several areas had to be closed due to excessive water. Among those were School Drive near Campbell, the 2200 block of St. James, Wilson and Vermont.

"Two things need to be done to improve the flooding situation," said McFeggan. He cited construction of the Busse Woods Retention Basin and for the Metropolitan Sanitary District to complete its sewer work in the area.

"The first storm had just not passed long enough for the drains to be cleared up," said McFeggan.

BOATS WERE the only feasible transportation on storm a youthful biker capsizes in the waves throughout the city had to be closed to traffic several Rolling Meadows streets Monday night affected by a car plodding through. Several streets because of high waters.

Cook County Criminal Court Judge Richard J. Fitzgerald continued the trial of three men indicted for the murder of Inverness Horseman George Jayne until July 12.

The judge continued the case yesterday morning when a hearing to suppress evidence found in the home of Joseph LaPlaca of Elgin was to have been held.

LaPlaca, Silas Jayne of Elgin and Julius Barnes of Chicago are all being held on charges of murder and conspiracy to commit murder in the 1970 death of George Jayne.

Edwin Frank Will Oppose Crane In Congressional Race

Democrats in the 12th Congressional District have named Edwin L. Frank, 42, of Hoffman Estates, to carry the fight against the reelection of Republican U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane.

Frank was selected from among six applicants for the job by the 12th Congressional District Democratic Committee composed of township committee members in Cook County and Herbert L. (Hub) Stern of Waukegan, Lake County Democratic chairman.

State Rep. Daniel Pierce, D-Highland Park, state central committeeman and chairman of the district committee, said the committee selected Frank largely on the basis of his past political experience.

Frank has been active in Schaumburg Township party affairs and is currently treasurer and parliamentarian of the township Democratic organization.

He has played an active part in campaigns for state Rep. Eugene S. Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, and in the two campaigns by former state Rep. Ed Warman if Skokie against Crane.

PIERCE SAID Frank demonstrated a wide acquaintance among Democratic committeemen and "appeared quite knowledgeable" about issues in the coming election.

Others who sought the job of running against Crane included Mrs. Betty Spence of Buffalo Grove, Mrs. Irene Pitke of Hoffman Estates, Julian Kahn of Highland Park, James Frankel of Highland Park, and Marshall Rothman of Barrington, an unsuccessful candidate for the Democratic nomination for the state senate in the March primary.

All but Mrs. Pitke and Frankel appeared before the committee to present their credentials, Pierce said. Mrs. Pitke is currently in Europe. Frank's qualifications were presented by Stern.

The committee began its search for a candidate following the withdrawal last month of Charles W. Houchins, who attracted some 18,000 votes as an unopposed candidate for the Democratic nomination in March.

Frank is a former Hoffman Estates park commissioner and is executive vice president of an Aurora advertising agency. He holds a marketing degree from Rutgers University and formerly taught at the State University of New York in Orange County and worked as a part-time reporter for Pioneer Press.

Motorcycle 'Gold Cup' Race Is Denied By Board

There will be no replay this fall of the Yamaha Gold Cup motorcycle race held last year at Arlington Park that stirred up many Rolling Meadows and Arlington Heights residents.

The Arlington Heights Village Board Monday night voted 6-0 to deny a request by Chicago Thoroughbred Enterprises (CTE) to sponsor the race Sept. 9 at the track.

It was the second time in three weeks that CTE took a beating on the race proposal. The Arlington Heights plan commission, acting only in an advisory ca-capacity, turned the plan down 10-2 on May 31. A representative of the Rolling Meadows City Council opposed the race at that hearing.

CTE officials told the board during a lengthy and detailed presentation Monday that the race track company did not plan to file suit against the village in an attempt to reverse the decision.

About 20 residents appeared before the board to testify for and against the race.

In making the motion to deny the special-use request, Trustee Dwight Walton said he felt this was a "rather extreme request" and one that boiled down to the issue of noise.

CTE SECRETARY Newton Mandel told the board in his opinion a special use permit was not legally required under provisions of the 1969 annexation agreement between the village and the race track.

He likened that agreement to a "marriage contract" in which he said there is "always a lot of give and take."

Tom Rivera, publicity director for the race track, reiterated the race track's willingness to modify the operation of this year's race in an effort to minimize the lights, dust, noise and length that were sources of complaints last year.

Rivera told the board CTE had "absolutely no plans to initiate any other event of this type," or to run the motorcycle race at Arlington Park more than once a year.

In stating he felt Arlington Park had a legal right to the special-use permit, Mandel said that in no way had it been demonstrated that the race would be injurious to the "health, safety, morals or general welfare" of residents.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

Democratic National Chairman Lawrence O'Brien announced a $1 million damage suit against the Committee to Reelect the President and five men accused of breaking into Democratic Party headquarters.

The Selective Service System announced it will call up men born in 1952 with draft lottery numbers through 75 to supply the Army with 8,900 draftees in August.

Gen. Creighton Abrams was named to be the new Army Chief of Staff, succeeding Gen. William Westmoreland who is retiring.

Airline passengers jammed the nation's airports seeking to resume journeys interrupted by the 24-hour pilots' strike protesting hijackings.

Defense Secretary Harold Laird testified Congress should reject the missile agreement signed with Moscow unless it is willing to pay $1.3 billion more for new U.S. bombers and submarines.

Sen. George S. McGovern picked up 41 unopposed delegates in the New York primary, last in the nation. He hoped for 180 when the votes were counted. Ballot counting was slow because of many names and voting machine problems.

Seek Rezoning Near Harper

Plan Objections To Development

Rolling Meadows City Council will hear objections from Palatine homeowners Tuesday at a public hearing on the rezoning of land near Harper College.

Hunting Ridge residents are upset about the proposed annexation and rezoning of a 55-acre tract south of their subdivision near Harper College.

A Rolling Meadows Special Zoning Commission has recommended approval of a request to rezone, upon annexation, the property for apartments and a small shopping center.

The property is known as the Beery property after Eugene Beery of Palatine, one of the principals of the proposed development. Current proposals for development call for eight apartment buildings including two 13-story units and six three-story units on 47 acres and a small shopping center on the remaining five acres.

THE LAND, located between Quentin Road on the east, Harper College on the west, Euclid Avenue on the north and 1000 feet north of Old Plum Grove Road on the south is presently unincorporated.

No showdown is planned, the Hunting Ridge residents merely have several questions they want to raise at the council meeting, said William McQueen, a director of the Hunting Ridge Homeowners Association.

"From a practical standpoint no one can be opposed to the development of the land, our (Hunting Ridge residents') main concern is the high density," said McQueen.

"One has to ask why Schaumburg officially turned down the annexation and rezoning because of the high density and Palatine unofficially turned it down and then Rolling Meadows might approve it," said McQueen.

Most of the residential area of Rolling Meadows is far removed from the proposed development and therefore the council would not receive a lot of flack if it approved the annexation and rezoning, said McQueen.

"This (the rezoning and annexation) will create a Palatine backyard problem rather than a Rolling Meadows frontyard problem," said McQueen.

THERE ARE also questions about ingress and egress, according to McQueen. At the present time access to the proposed development is planned from Quentin Road. Residents in the area feel this would cause a heavy traffic flow on Quentin.

Another concern is the hardship such a development would cause on the schools in the area. At the special zoning commission hearing, Beery indicated he planned to contact Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15, Supt. Frank Whiteley said the district has not been contacted by Beery to date. Whiteley indicated a member of the Dist. 15 staff would be present at Tuesday's public hearing.

"The project is planned to house students from Harper College. I am not convinced there are that many requests for this kind of facility from non-residents and non-commuters attending Harper," said McQueen.

In order to annex the Beery property Rolling Meadows will also have to annex a 150-foot wide corridor 1,700 feet long to make the land contiguous to the city. "They will actually be creating a little peninsula or island," according to McQueen.

IN ORDER to further accommodate Beery's development plans, the Rolling Meadows Council would have to substantially alter its current height limitation of three stories for apartment buildings. "This would literally open up their (Rolling Meadows) zoning without any limitations," said McQueen.

Residents of Hunting Ridge are also concerned because the two 13-story buildings are presently planned for the west portion of the land but this property might be within the flood control project being undertaken on Salt Creek by the Metropolitan Sanitary District (MSD) and the U. S. Department of Conservation. If the land is taken over by the MSD, residents are afraid the high-rises will be moved closer to Quentin Road.

"This is not a call to arms, we just wanted to call the proposed development to the attention of our homeowners," said McQueen. "We feel the density in this area should be in line with proper density rules and guidelines."

Drive-In Evangelist Will Aid S.D. Flood Victims

by BOB ANDERSEN

An evangelistic desire to spread the gospel plus an unexpected and devastating tragedy propelled the Rev. Jim Berndt and his wife, Marlene, to South Dakota this week.

The tragedy, of course, is the recent flood in Rapid City, S. D., that claimed the lives of more than 200 people, both natives and vacationers.

Rev. Berndt said he will seek to lend to the "spiritual" needs of the survivors as well as helping out however he can with the physical, human problems such as lack of housing, food shortage, medical attention, etc.

Rev. Berndt also will be conducting a series of six drive-in church services near Spearfish, S. D. The services will be held the last four Sundays in July and the first two Sundays in August, explained the evangelist who lives at 251 Highland Blvd., Hoffman Estates.

THE DRIVE-IN church services mark a first for the Black Hills region of South Dakota. Though certain other areas of the country, mostly the warmer regions, have drive-in churches, the Black Hills region never has offered the service.

Himself a native of South Dakota, Rev. Berndt noticed during previous visits to churches near the Black Hills that many of the tourists, who attended church "felt out of place" because of their casual, vacation attire. He theorized there must be many vacationers who though desiring to attend church didn't because of the formal clothing requirements.

In the drive-in services the participants can stay in their cars. The sermon will be broadcast via outdoor speakers on poles similar to the speakers used at drive-in meetings, Rev. Berndt said.

Rev. Berndt said participants in the drive-in services also will be allowed to respond to the gospel message. There will be a response by honking horns and blinking car lights, he said.

The services, he emphasized, are inter-denominational.

Rev. Berndt, a graduate of Bob Jones University in South Carolina, describes himself as a "free lance" evangelist with no denominational affiliations.

"NOBODY supports us," he said. He is assisted in his evangelistic endeavors by his wife. The couple also operate a local music school and much of their financial support comes from music lessons, mostly on the instruments such as the piano, the organ and the guitar, Rev. Berndt said.

Rev. Berndt who conducts evangelistic services across the nation on request, is not sure how the flooding incident will affect the Rapid City flood survivors in a religious sense.

Some undoubtedly will be "bitter" and turn away from religion, he said. Others will put the pieces of their lives back together, deriving strength from their religious beliefs, he added.

Whatever, he conceded, the spiritual needs of the survivors are secondary now. First the practical, physical and financial problems of the survivors will have to be solved, he said.

Membership Decline Plagues American Legion

by DOUG RAY

Something has happened to the American Legion in Cook County which has been thinning its ranks over the past two decades.

The decline in membership began after the Korean War. Veterans of that conflict trudged home, secured jobs, got married but unlike their predecessors most didn't join the legion. In the last 18 years, the legion roll call in Cook County has dwindled from 90,000 to 54,000, leaving some of the organization's officials a little concerned.

And the Vietnam era veteran, in whose hands the future of the organization seems to rest, thus far has been reluctant to enlist in the military-fraternal group like his father had done.

James Kissner, a drill sergeant during the second World War and now the division commander for Cook County's 324 Legion posts, attributes much of the decline to the "changing complexion of the county itself."

Veterans are leaving the city for the suburbs, he said, "and those who belonged in Chicago haven't re-upped" (re-enlisted) at suburban chapters.

Kissner himself "didn't know anything about the Palatine post until eight years after he was discharged from the service.

"I guess I drove by there (the Palatine Legion Hall) for a long time before I knew it existed," he said.

BUT KISSNER also acknowledged the "type of war" (Vietnam) may have something to do with the decline in the once burgeoning American Legion ranks.

"When we came home, we didn't worry whether it was a moral war or not. Everyone was close then... today most of the veterans don't care much for the war and the attitude is different."

John Helmer, a 25-year-old sergeant at arms of the Arlington Heights Merle Guild Post 208, voices optimism about the Vietnam veterans pulling the Cook County posts back to full membership.

"It is going to be a slow process and we have to let people know that it's run differently," Helmer said. "With new blood comes new ideas."

World War II.

Don Bondi, post commander, said the recently discharged veteran "has too many other things to do besides worrying about joining. Getting established is more important for the younger man."

IN AN ATTEMPT to lure additional legionnaires and hold its present total, the Arlington Heights post has begun several community programs "to let people know what we're doing," said Bondi. The Merle Guild 208 is involved in a boys' baseball team and will start a hockey club soon.

Other activities include the boy's state program held yearly in Springfield for outstanding high school students, and a drum and bugle corps and Coronets girls drill team.

As Cook County's rolls are dwindling, downstate legion halls are prospering," said Kissner. "When they return to the smaller communities, they become a part of the town... Look at Springfield and Kankakee, they are doing well."

Cook County is one of the five American Legion divisions in Illinois. In the entire county only seven to eight per cent of eligible veterans belong, Kissner added.

He said there have been attempts to "open the membership" to all veterans, but the decision to do that rests with Congress which establishes dates for servicemen who are eligible. The American Legion was opened for membership Aug. 5, 1964 and all servicemen with an honorable discharge serving from that date until the end of the Vietnam War are eligible. "We have a Congressional charter and they will decide," Kissner said.

NORTHWEST SUBURBAN American Legion posts have few recruitment drives and obtain new members "by word of mouth" according to Kissner.

"We use personal contact to get people," he said.

The newest area American Legion chapter is in Wheeling and has a membership of 56. An employee at the legion hall called it "an all time high." But only four of that number are Vietnam veterans.

Wheeling Post 1938, named in honor of a Wheeling man, Richard Blanchfield, who was killed in Vietnam, has been plagued by transfers. About 10 persons were transferred through their work last year and are no longer members.

Commander of Des Plaines Post 36,

Ralph Geils, said only 15 or 20 of the 423 members in that chapter are Vietnam Veterans and added that present membership drives are being held to "get our old members back. We're working on renewals and we don't have the manpower to really recruit," he said.

The American Legion office for veteran affairs and rehabilitation in Chicago helps returning veterans secure jobs among its other veteran services, but there is "no follow up to recruit men into the legion," according to an employee there.

"There's no coercion at all. If they want to join, then they join... we don't push them," she said.

Push On For Flood Appropriations

State Rep. Eugene Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, said yesterday after touring flooded areas in Prospect Heights and Wheeling that he would push harder for a state flood improvements appropriations bill now in the Illinois General Assembly.

Schlickman, along with John Guillou, chief engineer of the Illinois Division of Waterways, toured the area yesterday afternoon following Monday night's rain which left areas along McDonald Creek flooded.

Much of the flooding was blamed on the Soo Line Rwy. culvert at McDonald Creek. Funds from the bill would pay for a new culvert system that would increase the capacity of the creek.

The present culvert consists of a series of 5 pipes through which runoff from the creek flows into a tributary of the Des Plaines River.

THE FLOODING which completely covered the intersection of Wolf and Euclid roads in Prospect Heights was the apparent result of inadequate drainage at the culvert.

The Schlickman-sponsored bill calls for improvement of the culvert area at a cost of $170,000 including enlargement of the culvert mouth and replacement of the pipes.

"The culvert is obviously inefficient," said Schlickman. "The pipes are too small to do the job and they've got to be replaced."

Money for the bill which passed the legislature last year was received too late for work to start this spring, according to Guillou.

"THE PROJECT is in cooperation with the Soo Line because the culvert runs under their tracks," he said. "But the money was not only received too late, but Soo Line wanted a higher quality structure than we were going to build on their property."

Schlickman said he will work for passage of the appropriations bill when he returns to the General Assembly.

Another area of the creek along Ill. Rte. 83 had risen as high as six feet from the flooding but the waters began to subside early yesterday.

The officials also paid a visit to a flooded residential area surrounding Buffalo Creek in Wheeling.

Schlickman added he will also work for passage of a bill calling for construction of retention basins around Buffalo Creek.

Schlickman could not say whether the troubled area will receive any emergency relief funding, but added that residents may be able to secure federally funded insurance loans through the Small Business Administration (SBA). The area would have to be declared in a state of emergency first, he said.

IN PROSPECT HEIGHTS, water had risen to five feet in the Country Gardens and Patricia Lanes areas. Area sump pump rental and repair services were reported busy Monday answering calls to pump water out of flooded basements.

Flooding was also reported severe on Edward Road where residents said one family had been evacuated early yesterday morning. Water was reported almost to the first floor in one home. The street and surrounding was under about 2 1/2 feet of water.

Residents there reported similar flooding problems during heavy rains more than a week ago.

Worst Flooding Here Since '67; Tent Blown Over

Mount Prospect residents began cleaning up yesterday in the wake of the worst flooding since 1967.

About four inches of rain fell in the Mount Prospect area between 4 p.m. Monday and 2 a.m. yesterday. The areas hardest hit by the storm were along McDonald Creek in the northeast section of the village and areas in the southwest part of Mount Prospect.

Near the intersection of Golf and Elm-hurst roads, crewmen worked to clean up the performance area at the Circus Internationale so last night's show could go on as planned.

Shortly before 7 p.m. Monday high winds blew down the circus tent and damaged a section of the seats. No one was hurt. The next show was due to start at 8 p.m.

Circus manager L. N. Fleckles said the damage could run as high as $80,000. He said the tent canvas and the damaged seats would have to be replaced. Steel supports for some of the seats were bent "like wire around a pole," he said.

Strong winds also bent an antenna on top of the nearby Countryside Bank, on Route 83.

SOME RESIDENTS in the northeast area, who are served by Citizen's Utility Co., also found themselves without drinking water this morning. Marvin Collins of Citizen's said the low pressure resulted when lightning struck their well pump on Euclid Avenue.

The pump he said, stopped working but booster pumps continued to drain their reservoir. Other wells are being used to correct the situation, Collins said.

More than two feet of water stood in the intersection of Wolf Road and Euclid Avenue just before noon yesterday, the result of McDonald Creek overflowing its banks. State highway department crews blocked off all access to the flooded intersection.

Along Burning Bush Lane where it crosses the creek the water was almost at street level. Patricia Lane, just off Camp McDonald Road was flooded as was most of the Simonsen Nursery Inc. property on the east side of Wolf Road.

SEVERE FLOODING was also reported in the southwestern part of Mount Prospect. Monday night village public works crews erected two earthen dams to contain the water there.

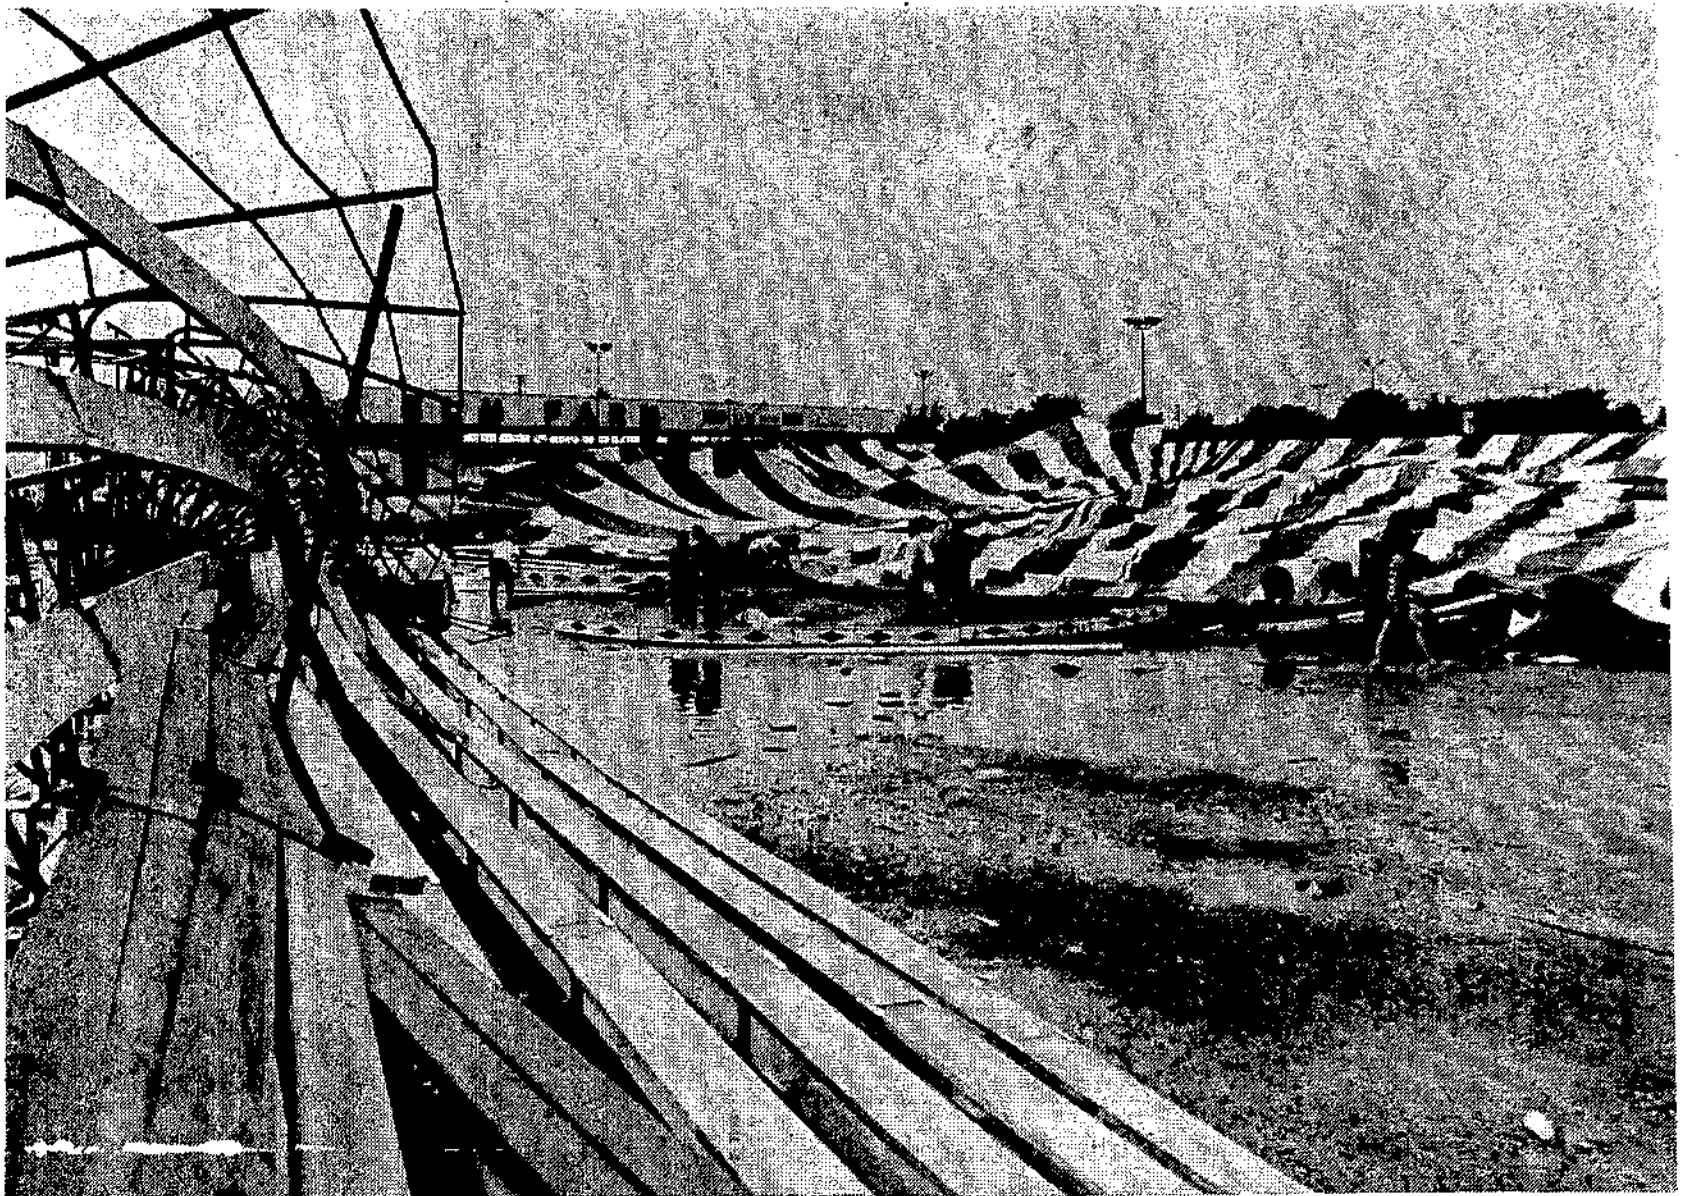

Along Lawrence Lane a bulldozer was brought in to build a dirt barrier. Despite the dam, by yesterday afternoon the water had receded only to the street level.

In the area just north of the West Park retention basin, Golf and Busse roads, a dam was erected to contain water spilling over the banks of the overloaded basin. Receding floodwaters left parts of Lonnquist Boulevard covered with mud.

Flooding was also reported in the Windsor Estates and Diamond Point developments and along Linneman Road. According to police the intersection of Golf and Busse roads was completely under water Monday night.

Parts of the Hatlen Heights area also reported flooding. Plans for a $634,000 sewer project to alleviate flooding in that area were jeopardized when the assessments for the project were successfully

HIGH WINDS during Monday night's storm toppled the Circus Internationale tent and damaged $80,000. The performance that had been scheduled for later that night was cancelled. The circus opened last Friday on Rte. 83 just south of Golf Road in Mount Prospect. Despite the mishap, the show was scheduled to go on last night.

Storm Sewer Extension OK'd

The Mount Prospect Village Board last night approved a storm sewer line extension for the southwest portion of the village.

The 12-inch line is seen as a temporary effort to prevent the serious flooding that has plagued the Forest View West area. Up to four feet of water collected in this area during Monday's torrential rain-storm.

The line will start on Meier Road, proceed east along Mark Terrace and then link with the Colonial Heights storm sewer system.

The board also voted to study the possibility of a retention basin along Meier Road north of Lincoln Street.

More than 100 angry residents of the area appeared at the meeting to ask the board to act immediately.

Push On For Flood Appropriations

State Rep. Eugene Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, said yesterday after touring flooded areas in Prospect Heights and Wheeling that he would push harder for a state flood improvements appropriations bill now in the Illinois General Assembly.

Much of the flooding was blamed on the Soo Line Rwy. culvert at McDonald Creek. Funds from the bill would pay for a new culvert system that would increase the capacity of the creek.

The present culvert consists of a series of 8 pipes through which runoff from the creek flows into a tributary of the Des Plaines River.

THE FLOODING which completely covered the intersection of Wolf and Euclid roads in Prospect Heights was the apparent result of inadequate drainage at the culvert.

The Schlickman-sponsored bill calls for improvement of the culvert area at a cost of $170,000 including enlargement of the culvert mouth and replacement of the pipes.

"The culvert is obviously inefficient," said Schlickman. "The pipes are too small to do the job and they've got to be replaced."

Money for the bill which passed the legislature last year was received too late for work to start this spring, according to Guillou.

"THE PROJECT is in cooperation with the Soo Line because the culvert runs under their tracks," he said. "But the money was not only received too late, but Soo Line wanted a higher quality structure than we were going to build on their property."

Schlickman said he will work for passage of the appropriations bill when he returns to the General Assembly.

Another area of the creek along Ill. Rte. 83 had risen as high as six feet from the flooding but the waters began to subside early yesterday.

The officials also paid a visit to a flooded residential area surrounding Buffalo Creek in Wheeling.

Schlickman added he will also work for passage of a bill calling for construction of retention basins around Buffalo Creek.

Schlickman could not say whether the troubled area will receive any emergency relief funding, but added that residents may be able to secure federally funded insurance loans through the Small Business Administration (SBA). The area would have to be declared in a state of emergency first, he said.

Flooding was also reported severe on Edward Road where residents said one family had been evacuated early yesterday morning. Water was reported almost to the first floor in one home. The street and surrounding was under about 2 1/2 feet of water.

Financial Projection Changes Hike Anticipated Budget Deficit

Changes in financial projections made by the Mount Prospect Dist. 57 school board Monday have increased the anticipated 1972-73 budget deficit to $329,000. The budget was tentatively adopted Monday.

The board decided to eliminate an anticipated $97,000 increase in state aid receipts and to retain a $150,000 expenditure at Fairview School. Supt. Eric Sahlberg estimated earlier this month the deficit could be reduced to about $56,000 by including the aid increase and eliminating the money for the Fairview project.

The state aid increase was eliminated from budget receipts at the suggestion of board member Peter Olesen. "We can't count on it," he said, referring to recent action in the Illinois legislature.

Two bills that would increase state aid to public schools are still in committee. One, supported by State Supt. of Public Schools Michael Bakalis, was sent back to committee after indications the bill would fail by two votes on the Senate floor. However, some legislators believe one of the bills will pass before the legislative session ends this month.

The $150,000 for Fairview was retained after a board committee was appointed to find a way to fund the project.

BOARD MEMBERS also decided to lower the $6,500 sum set aside for a negotiator to $3,500. An attempt by board member Michael Ward to drop the fund to $1,500 was opposed by other board members.

The board also decided to increase the public relations account by $1,400. Approximately $400 of the increase would be used to print the "Board-o-gram," a bulletin informing residents about board meetings.

The other $1,000 of the increase would be used for a program to decrease vandalism. Board member Edith Freund suggested a program where a school would get 10 per cent of the amount by which vandalism is decreased. The money would be put into the student fund at the school. Vandalism costs for the last 11 months is $8,500.

Other budget changes include addition of $5,000 into the principal's salary account; $4,000 into other salary accounts; $8,000 for special education for three more district students; and $5,000 for legal fees in case the Gregory School land should be sold.

THE ADDITION of $30,000 for a special education program for pre-schoolers was also approved. The state legislature requires a school district to draw up such a program. Dist. 57 is waiting for state guidelines before formulating a program.

Board members stressed budget figures are only tentative. Final approval of the budget must be made in September. Board members Monday indicated changes probably would be made before that time.

BAREFOOT BICYCLISTS found the going easy, if a bit wet, yesterday on flooded Alton Road in Prospect Heights. Monday's torrential rains left streets and inter-opposed earlier this year by more than 100 of the 300 property owners who were assessed.

FLOODING WAS reported on Deborah Lane, Lincoln Street, Meier Road and Scott Terrace. Sections of Jody Court were also under water yesterday. Garages along South Hatlen Avenue were reported flooded Monday night.

Lightning strikes were reported at 902 Hemlock Ln. and 1803 Almond Ct., but with little damage. Numerous electric wires were reported down, but again caused no damage.

Very little damage was reported at schools in River Trails Dist. 26 and Mount Prospect Dist. 57. However, rising water caused an old oil tank at the Fairview School, 300 N. Fairview Ave., to spring a leak. The oil was quickly cleaned up.

Well Owners Are Urged To Boil Water

Mount Prospect residents who get their water from wells, an estimated 100 homes, are urged to boil their water or chlorinate it if they suspect contamination due to Monday's flooding in the area.

All water used for drinking, cooking or dishwashing should be treated, according to Majorie Boswell, the village health officer. Also food that is fresh, in bags, cardboard containers, bottles or jars and meats should be destroyed if damp with flood water, she said.

Drilled wells can be disinfected by running the pump until water is clear and pouring a pint of Clorox into the well. Once the pump has been run enough that the Clorox can be smelled in the water, it should be left to stand for several hours and then run to clear the Clorox.

For those who have doubts about the safety of their water supply, sterile bottles for water samples will be available this afternoon at the village hall, 112 E. Northwest Hwy. These bottles can either be sent or brought to the Cook County Health Department, 1401 Oakton St., Des Plaines, for analysis. Results take about five days and water should be boiled throughout the waiting period.

School Negotiators Walk Away

Negotiating teams in River Trails School District 26 walked away from the bargaining table Monday — still far from a 1972-73 contract settlement. They are not scheduled to meet again until August.

Representatives of both teachers and the school board agreed the meeting was "not very productive and rather negative." Before the three-hour closed session started, school officials had hoped for a settled, school month.

The two sides did agree to some language changes in the contract. However, no agreement was reached on monetary items.

The board offered teachers an average 3.7 per cent raise. It's original proposal had been a cent freeze.

RICHARD ZWIEBACK, the board's negotiator, said the raise would be in the form of an increment, a raise based on experience and education. The amount of the increment would be the same as that in last year's salary schedule. Zwieback said that most mean an average $350 hike for most teachers, and would cost the district $52,000.

Jan White, chairman of the bargaining team for the River Trails Education Association (RTEA), said teachers expected the increment and at least a cost-of-living increase. She estimated the cost-of-living hike at 3.2 per cent. "They're not even willing to give us that," she said.

Zwieback said that cost-of-living figures, according to government standards, would not apply to most teachers since many do not have children and both husband and wife are working in many cases.

"Besides, the 3.7 per cent increment is a raise and more than the cost of living," he said.

"Teachers feel they can get a large increase and the board feels there is no way they can," Zwieback said. "The board did want to settle Monday but it is obvious anything we might consider a fair settlement would not be in the ball park as far as teachers are concerned."

Zwieback said the board might be willing to make another salary offer.

MRS. WHITE said teachers agreed not to meet again until August since some members of the RTEA negotiating team would be away during the summer.

"Besides, they (the board) simply are not in the mood to do anything. We get nowhere. Zwieback tells us that unless we show movement the board is not interested in talking about these things." She said the RTEA would be willing to negotiate during the summer "if something starts to happen."

Zwieback said he would be available to meet with teachers sooner than August if they have new proposals to make.

Mrs. White said the board has not yet responded to the RTEA's other proposals, including a sick leave bank and re-evaluation of duty pay. Zwieback said the board "felt it didn't have enough money to give anything other than salary."

The two teams are still far apart on some language items, including articles involving impasse and negotiations procedures, according to Mrs. White. Zwieback said he originally anticipated no problems in this area.

"Teachers seem to be in disagreement simply because we want to propose something," he said.

Mrs. White said teachers would probably wait until the August meeting before considering mediation. No date has been set.

Carbona Case Set 1972 Auto Stolen Over To July 12

The Carbona homicide case has been set over to July 12 to give the defense a chance to reply to pretrial motions made by the state's attorney's office.

The case of Ruth Carbona, 1206 Euclid Ave., Mount Prospect, charged with the shooting death of her husband, Lt. Joseph Carbona of the Cook County Sheriff's Police, went before Circuit Court Judge Arthur Dunn at the Chicago Civic Center for the first time yesterday.

Carbona's body was found Dec. 22 on the stairs of the couple's home. He had been shot once with his service revolver, according to sheriff's police.

1972 Auto Stolen

A 1972 Ford Mustang, valued at $3,000, was stolen Friday night from the driveway at 1429 Burning Bush Ln., Mount Prospect. Police said the car belonged to Paul D. Johnson of that address. The car is red with a black top.

Vandals Hit Schools

The Mount Prospect schools were vandalized last weekend with many windows broken.

At least seven windows, valued at $132 were broken at Busse School, 101 N. Owen St. Some door vents also were broken, police said. Vandalism totaling $200 also was done to St. Paul Lutheran School, 18 S. School St.

Charge Man With Sexual Assault

A 36-year-old Arlington Heights man was arrested Monday night for sexual assault and unlawful restraint of a 16-year-old Arlington Heights boy.

Mount Prospect police said Ronald Delzer, 1900 W. Algonquin Rd., was arrested about 8 p.m. Monday on Elmhurst Road. The alleged assault had occurred about a half hour earlier in the Jewel foodstore parking lot, 208 W. Northwest Hwy. in Mount Prospect.

According to police the youth was hitchhiking when the driver of a red pickup truck picked him up. The driver stopped at a liquor store, bought some beer and drove to the Jewel lot.

There police said, the boy was threatened with a knife and then sexually assaulted. Later the boy escaped and called police from a nearby store.

Delzer will appear Aug. 4 in Mount Prospect court.

From The Library

by LAURIE ROSSI
With the wedding season here, many people are giving bridal showers, and everyone wants the one she gives to be unique. If you're planning a shower, the Mount Prospect library has books that can help you.

When I gave a shower a couple of weeks ago, I checked out two books from the library that I used to plan my refreshments. The helpful outlines and specific plans and recipes ideated in the two books made my party run smoothly with a minimum amount of preparation.

I got ideas for dips, spreads, pastries, and hot hors d'oeuvres from the "Snack and Party Cook Book." Every year you have a lot of time, crepes are tremendous and can be served with a choice of fillings, included in this book. You can also make up your own. For weight watchers, (and what group of women isn't?) there's a section of low calorie hors d'oeuvres.

For snacks you can serve garlic almonds or different butters on canapés, like mustard, curry, or cress butter.

You'll also find what food goes better with different types of alcoholic beverages.

"The Sandwich Book" is another book with great ideas for showers and it's just as useful for summer patio parties. This book covers all types of sandwiches — party picnics, lunchbox, and barbeque.

On the subject of weddings, the library has "The Jewish Wedding Book." This comprehensive book explains the rituals of a Jewish wedding, the engagement, special situations, and includes a guide for guests and a glossary of Jewish terms.

The library's summer hours are 9-5 weekdays and 9-5 Saturday.

Earns Scholarship

Patricia Hemmis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hemmis of 202 N. Pine St., Mount Prospect, has won a scholarship award from the United-Greenfield Foundation Scholarship Fund.

Miss Hemmis was graduated from the Sacred Heart of Mary High School and plans to enter the University of Illinois in the fall.

Committee Is Formed

Probe School Expansion

A Dist. 57 School Board committee has been formed to study a proposed $150,000 expansion at Fairview School in Mount Prospect.

The committee will "find ways to carry out what has already been committed," according to Board Pres. Robert Novy. The board last summer approved the expansion on the recommendation of a committee formed to study the need for the project.

The board decided Monday night to leave the $150,000 for the project in the 1972-73 budget which it tentatively adopted. In the past few months board members have been talking about removing the amount from this year's budget because of shortage of funds.

The board originally approved the expansion, contingent upon sale of land known as Sunrise Park. The Village of Mount Prospect has purchased the land, and some of the money has been included in 1972-73 anticipated receipts.

BOARD MEMBERS named to the new committee are Peter Olesen, chairman; Michael Ward, William Holloway and Edith Freund. Mrs. Freund said the committee "should not be a community-wide effort this time." Last year's committee included board members, Fairview parents, teachers and PTA members.

Last summer's committee was formed after Fairview parents complained that the school's multi-purpose room was substandard compared to the district's other schools.

Novy pointed out Monday that parents have written to the board recently urging board members not to postpone the expansion.

The plan includes enlarging the multi-purpose room, used for physical education, and building a stage, equipment storage area and nurses' office. Based on last year's estimates, construction would cost $110,000 while $40,000 would be used for equipment and architect's fees.

Home Burglarized

Over $750 in cash and goods were stolen Sunday from the Arthur Wiebe home, 707 Elderberry Ln. in Mount Prospect.

Police said that $75 in cash, two televisions, a cassette tape recorder, tapes, three radios, an adding machine and a set of gold cuff links were taken. Also two check books and a bank savings account book were taken.

If Police Get Longevity, All City Workers Will

If longevity pay raises are given to Mount Prospect policemen, they will be given to all village employees.

This was the feeling Monday night of a majority of the village's finance committee. Members also said such pay raises would probably be flat amounts rather than the percentages asked by policemen.

Policemen have asked for 2 per cent longevity increases at the end of their fifth, 10th, 15th, 19th and 25th year of service. At a finance committee meeting earlier this month, the concept of longevity pay was endorsed by five of the six trustees. Trustee Donald B. Furst remains the only dissenter to longevity pay.

TRUSTEES INDICATED agreement that longevity raises would be a token amount given to all village employees but probably not starting until next year.

Furst said he would be against this.

Village Mgr. Robert J. Eppley was instructed to search the budget and the village's financial position so that by August he could tell the board what funds might be available this year for the raises.

Eppley appeared doubtful the necessary funds could be found.

"It is not in the cards for this year, even on a token basis," he said. "But I will look hard and conscientiously for the money."

Committee Chairman Bud Richardson, Furst and Trustee Daniel J. Ahern adopted a policy that the finance committee would no longer negotiate directly with the police and firemen but rather leave that duty to Eppley.

Eppley, in a letter with village employees' paychecks, said he favors longevity for all employees.

Motorcycle 'Gold Cup' Race Is Denied By Board

There will be no replay this fall of the Yamaha Gold Cup motorcycle race held last year at Arlington Park that stirred up many Rolling Meadows and Arlington Heights residents.

The Arlington Heights Village Board Monday night voted 6-0 to deny a request by Chicago Thoroughbred Enterprises (CTE) to sponsor the race Sept. 9 at the track.

It was the second time in three weeks that CTE took a beating on the race proposal. The Arlington Heights plan commission, acting only in an advisory ca-capacity, turned the plan down 10-2 on May 31. A representative of the Rolling Meadows City Council opposed the race at that hearing.

CTE officials told the board during a lengthy and detailed presentation Monday that the race track company did not plan to file suit against the village in an attempt to reverse the decision.

About 20 residents appeared before the board to testify for and against the race.

In making the motion to deny the special-use request, Trustee Dwight Walton said he felt this was a "rather extreme request" and one that boiled down to the issue of noise.

CTE SECRETARY Newton Mandel told the board in his opinion a special use permit was not legally required under provisions of the 1969 annexation agreement between the village and the race track.

He likened that agreement to a "marriage contract" in which he said there is "always a lot of give and take."

this year's race in an effort to minimize the lights, dust, noise and length that were sources of complaints last year.

Rivera told the board CTE had "absolutely no plans to initiate any other event of this type," or to run the motorcycle race at Arlington Park more than once a year.

In stating he felt Arlington Park had a legal right to the special-use permit, Mandel said that in no way had it been demonstrated that the race would be injurious to the "health, safety, morals or general welfare" of residents.

You'll Be Getting Details Of Indoor Tennis Facility

Many Arlington Heights Park District residents will receive letters during the coming week informing them about an indoor tennis facility that soon will be built at Forest View High School.

The letter also will ask if residents are interested in purchasing revenue bonds, which will be sold to finance the facility in $1,000 units over a 15-year period. The district is planning to sell about $725,000 worth of bonds, to an underwriter who in turn will sell the bonds to anyone who wants to buy them.

"The letters will be sent to members of local tennis clubs and other professional people in the village who may be interested in purchasing the bonds," said Thomas Thornton, director of parks and recreation.

According to Thornton, the revenue bond ordinance should be ready for the board to pass in the next few weeks. The ordinance will be in effect, and bonds will be sold, 10 days following its publication.

ARCHITECT Joe Bennett, who does not have a contract for his work yet, said plans and specifications for the facility should be completed by mid-July, bids should be open by early August, and contracts for construction should be approved at the end of August.

Bennett is expected to receive about $80,000 for his work on both the indoor tennis and indoor ice skating facilities. Thus far, he has completed an estimated 50 per cent of his work on the tennis facility on good faith of the park board.

While the ice skating facility requires a referendum since it will affect the park district tax rates, the tennis facility will not require a referendum since it will be paid off with revenue generated by the facility and will not affect the tax rate.

The $1.7 million Arlington Heights Park District referendum to include park improvements and an indoor ice skating rink will be held in late September or early October.

In the meantime, public meetings will be held during July and citizens committees will be formed in an attempt to inform the park district residents and help pass the referendum.

While a list of park district improvements totaling more than $300,000 already has been suggested by the park district administration, additions and subtractions will be made to the list.

Included in additions suggested by Thornton are: adding and landscaping land adjacent to Dryden School; lighting two of the proposed four softball diamonds to be constructed in the Wilke-Kirchoff Road Retention Basin; lighting of walkways in Volz and Fleni Parks; climbing apparatus to be added to Schaag Memorial Park and the development of three baseball diamonds on property at Prindle Avenue and Miner Street, which is leased by the district.

So far, there have been no subtractions from the list which includes nearly all parks and recreation centers in the district. Improvements mostly include walk lighting, paving of walks and multi-use areas and adding play apparatus.

Major items in the park improvement list are the renovation of Recreation Park Swimming pool, athletic field lighting and adding two tennis courts to Dryden Park.

Edwin Frank Will Oppose Crane In Congressional Race

Democrats in the 12th Congressional District have named Edwin L. Frank, 42, of Hoffman Estates, to carry the fight against the reelection of Republican U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane.

Frank was selected from among six applicants for the job by the 12th Congressional District Democratic Committee composed of township committeemen in Cook County and Herbert L. (Hub) Stern of Waukegan, Lake County Democratic chairman.

State Rep. Daniel Pierce, D-Highland Park, state central committeeman and chairman of the district committee, said the committee selected Frank largely on the basis of his past political experience.

Frank has been active in Schaumburg Township party affairs and is currently treasurer and parliamentarian of the township Democratic organization.

He has played an active part in campaigns for state Rep. Eugenia S. Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, and in the two campaigns by former state Rep. Ed Warman if Skokie against Crane.

PIERCE SAID Frank demonstrated a wide acquaintance among Democratic committeemen and "appeared quite knowledgeable" about issues in the coming election.

Others who sought the job of running against Crane included Mrs. Betty Spence of Buffalo Grove, Mrs. Irene Pitke of Hoffman Estates, Julian Kahn of Highland Park, James Frankel of Highland Park, and Marshall Rothman of Barrington, an unsuccessful candidate for the Democratic nomination for the state senate in the March primary.

All but Mrs. Pitke and Frankel appeared before the committee to present their credentials, Pierce said. Mrs. Pitke is currently in Europe. Frankel's qualifications were presented by Stern.

The committee began its search for a candidate following the withdrawal last month of Charles W. Flouchins, who attracted some 18,000 votes as an unopposed candidate for the Democratic nomination in March.

Frank is a former Hoffman Estates park commissioner and is executive vice president of an Aurora advertising agency. He holds a marketing degree from Rutgers University and formerly taught at the State University of New York in Orange County and worked as a part-time reporter for Pioneer Press.

A PALATINE fireman drags a hose line toward a blaze that leveled an abandoned barn yesterday afternoon in Wheeling Township. Both Arlington Heights and Palatine Rural fire fighters responded to the fire that rapidly destroyed the wooden structure. There were no injuries.

Fire Destroys Vacant Barn; 2 Trucks Saved

Fire destroyed a vacant barn yesterday north of Arlington Heights Road and Maude Avenue in unincorporated Wheeling Township. Cause of the fire was undetermined.

The barn had stood vacant for more than five years and Palatine Fire Chief Orville Helms said the owner of the building was not immediately known. It had once been used as a garden supply store.

The Arlington Heights Fire department responded to the alarm shortly after 12:30 p.m., then called in the Palatine Rural Fire Department. The building burned rapidly, and fire trucks began leaving by 1:45.

Two large semi-trailers were parked in the alley next to the building when the fire broke out. They were filled with oats waiting to be transferred to Guenther Brothers Feed at the end of the alley. Firemen watered down the trucks until they could be moved.

The fire scene was a tangle of kids and bicycles. Police did not clear the area around the burning building until the fire was nearly extinguished. No injuries were reported at the scene.

Chief Helms said the building was a total loss. A garage near the barn did not catch fire. Most damage was restricted to the building, which bordered on an open field.

8,000 Lose Electrical Power

Village Hit Hard By Torrential Rains

Arlington Heights was one of five Northwest suburban communities hardest hit by Monday night's torrential rain.

More than 8,000 customers were without electrical power after 4 p.m. Monday, a spokesman for the Commonwealth Edison Co. said yesterday.

From 75 to 100 electrical repairmen worked to repair downed wires and flooded transformers and by 8 a.m. yesterday power had been restored to all but 400 customers.

Arlington Heights Public Works Director Gene Willroth reported flooding at numerous intersections throughout the village Monday night.

"At one point the water was four inches over the running boards on our pick-up truck," he said.

HEAVY FLOODING occurred along Northwest Highway, Euclid Avenue, Thomas Street and Douglas Avenue.

Portions of the Surrey Ridge West subdivision were still flooded yesterday.

Illinois Bell telephone reported 14 cables down in the area during the storm and telephone service to some Palatine residents was interrupted.

A spokesman for Northwest Community Hospital said the medical center experienced no serious electrical problems during the storm.

The hospital's construction area did collect a lot of water and workmen yesterday were digging mud away from the construction site, the spokesman said.

An inch of water was reported at Has-brook Park yesterday morning but Angelo Capulli, park district recreation supervisor, said there was no damage to any park building.

"If it rains any more, however, it will be a different story," Capulli said yesterday.

James Monroe, director of buildings and grounds for Dist. 25, said that a wing of Wilson School was flooded with six inches of water and an electrical transformer burned out at Miner Junior High School as a result of the storm.

Flooding at Arlington Park Race Track forced more than 60 horses out of their stalls Monday night and early Tuesday.

Rain reportedly filled most of the track's west parking lot which borders on the backstretch stable area.

John Gantz, racing secretary at Arlington Park, said there was some difficulty in filling yesterday's racing card because of the wet conditions.

"Several of the horses we have counted on were standing in water all night or had to be moved, both of which led to decisions to hold them out," Gantz said.

Four inches of rain fell in the northwest suburban area Monday night. Other communities hard-hit by the storm included Hoffman Estates, Buffalo Grove, Palatine, Wheeling, Mount Prospect, and Prospect Heights.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

Democratic National Chairman Lawrence O'Brien announced a $1 million damage suit against the Committee to Reelect the President and five men accused of breaking into Democratic Party headquarters.

The Selective Service System announced it will call up men born in 1952 with draft lottery numbers through 75 to supply the Army with 8,000 draftees in August.

Gen. Creighton Abrams was named to be the new Army Chief of Staff, succeeding Gen. William Westmoreland who is retiring.

Airline passengers jammed the nation's airports seeking to resume journeys interrupted by the 24-hour pilots' strike protesting hijackings.

Defense Secretary Melvin Laird testified Congress should reject the missile agreement signed with Moscow unless it is willing to pay $1.3 billion more for new U.S. bombers and submarines.

Sen. George S. McGovern picked up 41 unopposed delegates in the New York primary, last in the nation. He hoped for 180 when the votes were counted. Ballot counting was slow because of many names and voting machine problems.

The State

Chicago newspapers reported that five Chicago policemen — all black — have been linked with the execution-style slayings of at least six black men. Authorities refused to confirm the reports.

The Illinois Racing Board voted to ban all types of betting combinations not approved when Illinois tracks applied for their licenses last November.

The World

Arab guerrillas fired bazooka rockets into a busload of Israeli vacationers and exploded a mine on the Lebanese frontier in the first such action in four months, Israeli military spokesmen said.

HIGH WINDS during Monday night's storm toppled the Circus Internationale tent and damaged $80,000. The performance that had been scheduled for later that night was cancelled. Teachers Get 6.8% Pay Hike Pact

The Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 Board of Education unanimously approved a new contract for teachers Monday which would mean an average 6.8 per cent salary increase next year for the more than 425 teachers.

Harry Peterson, board president, said the new agreement called for a 2.8 per cent increase in the base pay. According to the current pay scale formula, teachers also will receive an average 4 per cent increase based on education and years of experience.

Following the Board of Teachers' Council overwhelmingly accepted the contract with 290 teachers voting to approve the agreement, six voting no and one abstaining.

In a joint statement by the Teachers' Council and the school board issued previously, the increase in the base teacher pay was labeled a cost-of-living increase.

The contract for next fall pegs top teacher pay at $16,942 with experience and education that includes a master's degree plus 30 additional hours of graduate work and 15 years of experience. Starting teacher pay with a bachelor's degree and no experience was set at $8,047.

This year starting pay for a teacher with a bachelor's degree and no experience was $7,828. The top pay was set at $16,400.

OTHER BENEFITS of the contract include a duty-free lunch period and changes in maternity and insurance benefits.

Tom Dresser, chief negotiator for the teachers, said last week the settlement was reasonable, but he was not overjoyed with it. "Considering the economic times, I'm pleased with it (contract)," he said. "The nonmoney portion of the agreement is very good to excellent. Concerning the money, it is difficult to expect much more considering the financial difficulties of the district."

Seven members from each negotiating team arrived at a tentative agreement June 9 after working four months on the contract.

Push On For Flood Appropriations

State Rep. Eugene Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, said yesterday after touring flooded areas in Prospect Heights and Wheeling that he would push harder for a state flood improvements appropriations bill now in the Illinois General Assembly.

Schlickman, along with John Guillou, chief engineer of the Illinois Division of Waterways, toured the area yesterday afternoon following Monday night's rain which left areas along McDonald Creek flooded.

Much of the flooding was blamed on the Soo Line Rwy. culvert at McDonald Creek. Funds from the bill would pay for a new culvert system that would increase the capacity of the creek.

The present culvert consists of a series of S pipes through which runoff from the creek flows into a tributary of the Des Plaines River.

THE FLOODING which completely covered the intersection of Wolf and Euclid roads in Prospect Heights was the apparent result of inadequate drainage at the culvert.

The Schlickman-sponsored bill calls for improvement of the culvert area at a cost of $170,000 including enlargement of the culvert mouth and replacement of the pipes.

"The culvert is obviously inefficient," said Schlickman. "The pipes are too small to do the job and they've got to be replaced."

Money for the bill which passed the legislature last year was received too late for work to start this spring, according to Guillou.

"THE PROJECT is in cooperation with the Soo Line because the culvert runs under their tracks," he said. "But the money was not only received too late, but Soo Line wanted a higher quality structure than we were going to build on their property."

Schlickman said he will work for passage of the appropriations bill when he returns to the General Assembly.

Another area of the creek along Ill. Rte. 83 had risen as high as six feet from the flooding but the waters began to subside early yesterday.

The officials also paid a visit to a flooded residential area surrounding Buffalo Creek in Wheeling.

Schlickman added he will also work for passage of a bill calling for construction of retention basins around Buffalo Creek.

Schlickman could not say whether the troubled area will receive any emergency relief funding, but added that residents may be able to secure federally funded insurance loans through the Small Business Administration (SBA). The area would have to be declared in a state of emergency first, he said.

IN PROSPECT HEIGHTS, water had risen to five feet in the Country Gardens and Patricia Lanes areas. Area sump pump rental and repair services were reported busy Monday answering calls to pump water out of flooded basements.

Flooding was also reported severe on Edward Road where residents said one family had been evacuated early yesterday morning. Water was reported almost to the first floor in one home. The street and surrounding was under about 2 1/2 feet of water.

New School 75 Days Behind

Poor weather was blamed for construction delays which may postpone the completion of Friendship Junior High School on Algonquin Road near Elmhurst Road in Des Plaines by about 75 days, according to architect Scott Kelley.

Kelley told members of the Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 school board Monday that the $2.1 million building scheduled for completion in December probably will not be finished until March 1973.

"Construction isn't progressing as fast as we may have wished, but we're not too disappointed," he said. "The weather was a major problem and cost us about 90 days."

Kelley added that unstable soil conditions accounted for another 20 days and problems with a subcontractor delayed work 15 days.

He said that soil compaction on the site is 85 per cent complete and the steel beams were going up every day.

When Friendship School opens in the fall of 1973, it will be the fifth junior high school in Elk Grove Township Dist. 59. The building was approved in a 1971 bond referendum, and construction started early this year.

Membership Decline Plagues American Legion

by DOUG RAY
Something has happened to the American Legion in Cook County which has been thinning its ranks over the past two decades.

The decline in membership began after the Korean War. Veterans of that conflict trudged home, secured jobs, got married but unlike their predecessors most didn't join the legion. In the last 10 years, the legion roll call in Cook County has dwindled from 90,000 to 54,000, leaving some of the organization's officials a little concerned.

And the Vietnam era veteran, in whose hands the future of the organization seems to rest, thus far has been reluctant to enlist in the military-fraternal group like his father had done.

James Kissner, a drill sergeant during the second World War and now the division commander for Cook County's 324 Legion posts, attributes much of the decline to the "changing complexion of the county itself."

Veterans are leaving the city for the suburbs, he said, "and those who belonged in Chicago haven't re-upped" (re-enlisted) at suburban chapters.

Kissner himself "didn't know anything about the Palatine post until eight years after he was discharged from the service.

"I guess I drove by there (the Palatine Legion Hall) for a long time before I knew it existed," he said.

BUT KISSNER also acknowledged the "type of war" (Vietnam) may have something to do with the decline in the once burgeoning American Legion ranks.

"When we came home, we didn't worry whether it was a moral war or not. Everyone was close then... today most of the veterans don't care much for the war and the attitude is different."

John Helmer, a 25-year-old sergeant at arms of the Arlington Heights Merle Guild Post 208, voices optimism about the Vietnam veterans pulling the Cook County posts back to full membership.

"It is going to be a slow process and we have to let people know that it's run differently," Helmer said. "With new blood comes new ideas."

World War II.

Don Bondi, post commander, said the recently discharged veteran "has too many other things to do besides worrying about joining. Getting established is more important for the younger man."

IN AN ATTEMPT to lure additional legionnaires and hold its present total, the Arlington Heights post has begun several community programs "to let people know what we're doing," said Bondi. The Merle Guild 208 is involved in a boys' baseball team and will start a hockey club soon.

Other activities include the boy's state program held yearly in Springfield for outstanding high school students, and a drum and bugle corps and Coronets girls drill team.

As Cook County's rolls are dwindling, downstate legion halls are prospering, said Kissner. "When they return to the smaller communities, they become a part of the town... Look at Springfield and Kankakee, they are doing well."

Cook County is one of the five American Legion divisions in Illinois. In the entire county only seven to eight per cent of eligible veterans belong, Kissner added.

He said there have been attempts to "open the membership" to all veterans, but the decision to do that rests with Congress which establishes dates for servicemen who are eligible. The American Legion was opened for membership Aug. 5, 1964 and all servicemen with an honorable discharge serving from that date until the end of the Vietnam War are eligible. "We have a Congressional charter and they will decide," Kissner said.

NORTHWEST SUBURBAN American Legion posts have few recruitment drives and obtain new members "by word of mouth" according to Kissner.

"We use personal contact to get people," he said.

The newest area American Legion chapter is in Wheeling and has a membership of 56. An employee at the legion hall called it "an all time high." But only four of that number are Vietnam veterans.

Wheeling Post 1968, named in honor of a Wheeling man, Richard Blanchfield, who was killed in Vietnam, has been plagued by transfers. About 10 persons were transferred through their work last year and are no longer members.

Commander of Des Plaines Post 36,

Ralph Geils, said only 15 or 20 of the 428 members in that chapter are Vietnam Veterans and added that present membership drives are being held to "get our old members back. We're working on renewals and we don't have the manpower to really recruit," he said.

The American Legion office for veteran affairs and rehabilitation in Chicago helps returning veterans secure jobs among its other veteran services, but there is "no follow up to recruit men into the legion," according to an employee there. "There's no coercion at all. If they want to join, then they join... we don't push them," she said.

Drive-In Evangelist Will Aid S.D. Flood Victims

by BOB ANDERSEN
An evangelistic desire to spread the gospel plus an unexpected and devastating tragedy propelled the Rev. Jim Berndt and his wife, Marlene, to South Dakota this week.

The tragedy, of course, is the recent flood in Rapid City, S. D., that claimed the lives of more than 200 people, both natives and vacationers.

Rev. Berndt said he will seek to tend to the "spiritual" needs of the survivors as well as helping out however, he can with the physical, human problems such as lack of housing, food shortage, medical attention, etc.

Rev. Berndt also will be conducting a series of six drive-in church services near Spearfish, S. D. The services will be held the last four Sundays in July and the first two Sundays in August, explained the evangelist, who lives at 251 Highland Blvd., Hoffman Estates.

THE DRIVE-IN church services mark a first for the Black Hills region of South Dakota. Though certain other areas of the country, mostly the warmer regions, have drive-in churches, the Black Hills region never has offered the service.

Himself a native of South Dakota, Rev. Berndt noticed during previous visits to

will be a response by honking horns and blinking car lights, he said.

The services, he emphasized, are inter-denominational.

Rev. Berndt, a graduate of Bob Jones University in South Carolina, describes himself as a "free-lance" evangelist with no denominational affiliations.

"NOBODY supports us," he said. He is assisted in his evangelistic endeavors by his wife. The couple also operate a local music school and much of their financial support comes from music lessons, mostly on the instruments such as the piano, the organ and the guitar, Rev. Berndt said.

churches near the Black Hills that many of the tourists, who attended church "felt out of place" because of their casual, vacation attire. He theorized there must be many vacationers who, though desiring to attend church, didn't because of the formal clothing requirements.

In the drive-in services, the participants can stay in their cars. The sermon will be broadcast via outdoor speakers on poles similar to the speakers used at drive-in meetings, Rev. Berndt said.

Rev. Berndt said participants in the drive-in services also will be allowed to respond to the gospel message. There

Rev. Berndt, who conducts evangelistic services across the nation on request, is not sure how the flooding incident will affect the Rapid City flood survivors in a religious sense.

Some undoubtedly will be "bitter" and turn away from religion, he said. Others will put the pieces of their lives back together, deriving strength from their religious beliefs, he added.

Whatever, he conceded, the spiritual needs of the survivors are secondary now. First the practical, physical and financial problems of the survivors will have to be solved, he said.

Swim Team Tryouts Start

Tryouts for Arlington Heights Park District swim teams now are being held at park district pools.

Teams will be formed for competition in two conference teams as well as an intra-village team at each of the five neighborhood pools. Diving competition is included in all swim meets.

There will be two teams in the Northern Illinois Swimming Conference, the Arlington Reds and Arlington Whites. The Reds were undefeated in six dual meets last year. The Arlington White team is made up primarily of beginning competitive swimmers.

Recreation Park is the village title holder among the intra-village swim teams. Anyone who has passed beginner swimming is eligible to join the village teams.

Divers, Firemen, Police To Continue Beck Lake Probe Today

Weather Delays Search For Boy Feared Drowned

The search for a missing 16-year-old Glenview boy, presumed drowned in Beck Lake north of Des Plaines, was called off late yesterday due to bad weather.

Divers from 10 suburban fire and police departments plan to continue the search today.

William Schultz reportedly drowned Monday afternoon in the forest preserve lake, at E. River and Central roads, while attempting to swim alone to shore from an island in the middle of the lake.

According to Cook County Sheriff's Police, the boy swam out to the island with a friend Monday. Police said young Schultz's companion had to leave to go to work and asked Schultz to swim back from the island with him.

The companion, whose name was not released, told police Schultz said he was too tired to make the return swim about 100 yards to shore. The boy's companion said he then swam alone back to the edge of the lake.

Police said Schultz still was on the island when his friend left the area. He has been missing since, according to police.

THE SEARCH began at 4 p.m. Monday, ending at 9 p.m. that evening. It continued at 9 a.m. yesterday, with more than 15 divers taking part from fire and police departments in Des Plaines, Mount Prospect, Niles, Glenview, Palatine, Wheeling, Highland Park, Grayslake, Streamwood and North Maine.

A helicopter from the U.S. Coast Guard station in Chicago assisted in the search yesterday, circling the lake in hopes that crew members would be able to spot the youth's body from above. After about 20 minutes, the helicopter crew radioed police that they were unable to see anything on the bottom of the lake.

Several of the scuba divers told the Herald that the lake's water is extremely murky, with underwater visibility ranging from six feet to two inches. Because no one saw Schultz try to swim to shore, the searchers had no indication of the boy's location.

The search concentrated yesterday in areas where the distance between shore and the island is shortest. Searchers speculated that the boy was tired and probably would have tried to swim the shortest possible distance to shore.

The boy's shoes were found on the edge of the lake yesterday and identified by his parents, police said. Divers, who were aided by a sonar device able to detect objects under water, found no sign of the youth in the part of the lake between where the shoes were found and the island. The lake is up to 35 feet deep at some points, the divers said.

WITNESSES reportedly told police they spotted what appeared to be a floating body 30 yards from shore late Monday afternoon. But a concentrated search in the area where the body was reported also was unsuccessful.

The search consisted primarily of efforts by four-man scuba diving teams, following in tandem behind a small boat while they probed the bottom of the lake. The teams worked during the day, alternating one hour shifts in the water.

The lake, which is about 200 yards in diameter, has been closed to the public during the search. As with other forest preserve lakes, swimming is prohibited at Beck Lake and "No Swimming" signs are posted nearby.

The apparent drowning follows by less than a week the drowning of a 16-year-old Palatine youth at a private lake in that village. He died rescuing two other children, police said. A 13-year-old Des Plaines boy drowned in May in a West Side lake on property owned by the Metropolitan Sanitary District at Elmhurst Road and Oakton Street.

THREE PALATINE FIREMEN use a dragline in their boat while searching for the missing body of a 16 year old Glenview boy yesterday on Beck Lake at East River Road and Central Road in unincorporated Des Plaines. More than 15 divers from nine suburban police and fire departments searched for the body Monday evening and all day yesterday. A Coast Guard helicopter also assisted in the search.

Criticize Library Addition

Des Plaines aldermen Monday night criticized proposals for a tax increase to provide funds for an $800,000 library addition, and deferred a vote on the proposals until the city council's July 3 meeting.

Members of the council, acting after Herald press time, put off the vote after Ald. Charles Bolek (3rd) said the library board is "asking for a blank check." He and other aldermen said they want to see building plans and financing alternatives before promising to raise library taxes in 1973.

Ald. Robert Sherwood (2nd) said the library board was trying to "come through the back door" by building an addition, with tax money, something voters had refused to authorize in two defeated bond issue referendums, the latest in 1969.

Several aldermen were also critical of a library board proposal for the council to amend the library ordinance, so that the maximum tax rate ceiling could be raised from 12 cents per $100 assessed valuation to 20 cents. Ald. Alan Abrams (8th) said the maximum tax rate shouldn't be raised until the council decides that the present library tax, now at the 12 cent maximum, really needs to be increased.

BOARD OFFICIALS said this increase in the tax rate maximum would assure the library board that future tax rates will be higher. With this assurance, the library board can begin planning for the addition, according to Paul Batdorf, library board chairman.

Defending the library board requests,

Ald. Spencer Chase (3rd), chairman of the council's library committee, said the library addition is "badly needed," and that voters would now realize the necessity of providing more library facilities.

Chase said the Des Plaines library contains less space and fewer books than what is considered adequate by state library associations. The city's proposed comprehensive plan, now under council discussion, recommends that library facilities be almost tripled in size by 1990, including a library addition and two branch libraries, Chase said.

The proposed addition, would bring the library system in Des Plaines up to an "adequate level," Chase said.

If voters knew of the need for more library facilities they would agree that more funds should be allotted, he said. The library currently receives about $240,000 a year, at the past state maximum of 12 cents per $100 assessed valuation. The new state constitution allows the city to raise this tax ceiling, Chase said.

THE LIBRARY board wants the council to agree to an eight cent raise in the tax ceiling even though the board is sure it will not have to ask the council for permission to assess that level of taxes, Chase said.

The assurance that more funds will be provided through higher taxes, after the 1973 budget is approved by the council, is needed before the library board can begin plans to finance the $800,000 addition with a mortgage on the present library building, at Graceland Avenue and Thacker Street, Chase said.

According to City Atty. Robert DiLeonardi, the council could change the library ordinance which contains a 12 cents ceiling on the library tax. The city council would not be legally committed to raise the tax unless it decided that it approves of the building addition plans.

Condemns Conduct Of School Bargaining Session

A Teachers' Association official Monday night condemned the conduct of a final bargaining session held with negotiators from Maine Township High School Dist. 207 and said teachers "are fearful negotiations will deteriorate" in the future.

Jerrol Windbigler, a member of the association's executive board, said the teacher group wanted to "condemn negotiation procedures followed during the final negotiation session."

He also criticized the final 2.25 per cent wage hike agreement, repeating the association position that teachers are bearing the major burden of Dist. 207's austerity program.

The teachers June 7 adopted the 2.25 per cent agreement after earlier voting down an almost identical wage package. The agreement, which raises starting teacher salaries from $8,400 to $8,590, was in addition to normal step increments.

At the final negotiating session before

June 7, Windbigler said, the association took the position that an impasse had been reached with the school board, as defined under bargaining procedures adopted previously by both sides.

THOSE PROCEDURES list four conditions that must exist for an impasse to occur, he said, and all four conditions were present after the teachers had once turned down the wage proposal. If an impasse is declared, the procedures provide for outside fact finding and mediation.

In a session where "emotions were high," Windbigler said, the school board's attorney rejected the impasse claim and the teachers were prevented from seeking outside mediators. Windbigler said the association hopes next year's wage negotiations will be conducted with "mutual respect."

The association president, Karl Miller, said after the June 7 vote that next year's salary package will have to be (continued on page 2)

Oakton Offers Course In Medic Records

Medical record technology, one of the new career programs offered by Oakton Community College, is a two-year degree course designed to prepare students for positions in keeping medical records.

According to Kathleen Comeford, a member of Oakton's curriculum advisory committee, medical record technicians are needed in hospitals, nursing homes, extended care facilities, and by large companies that provide medical care.

Students will be prepared to assist in keeping, analyzing and preserving health records, said Mrs. Comeford, who is medical records administrator at Skokie Valley Community Hospital.

Successful completion of the studies qualifies students to take the accreditation exam given annually by the American Association of Medical Record Librarians.

Prerequisites for the course are typing proficiency of 40 words per minute, two units of high school laboratory science, two units of mathematics and an interview with the program coordinator.

Interested students can apply immediately for the fall semester which begins Aug. 21, through the director of admissions and records. Oakton is located at 7900 Nagle Ave., Morton Grove.

The Nation

Democratic National Chairman Lawrence O'Brien announced a $1 million damage suit against the Committee to Reelect the President and five men accused of breaking into Democratic Party headquarters.

The Selective Service System announced it will call up men born in 1952 with draft lottery numbers through 75 to supply the Army with 8,900 draftees in August.

The State

Chicago newspapers reported that five Chicago policemen — all black — have been linked with the execution-style slayings of at least six black men. Authorities refused to confirm the reports.

The Illinois Racing Board voted to ban all types of betting combinations not approved when Illinois tracks applied for their licenses last November.

The World

Arab guerrillas fired bazooka rockets into a busload of Israeli vacationers and exploded a mine on the Lebanese frontier in the first such action in four months, Israeli military spokesmen said.

HIGH WINDS during Monday night's storm top-pled the Circus Internationale tent and damaged $80,000. The performance that had been scheduled for later that night was cancelled. Teachers Get 6.8% Pay Hike Pact

The Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 Board of Education unanimously approved a new contract for teachers Monday which would mean an average 6.8 per cent salary increase next year for the more than 325 teachers.

Harry Peterson, board president, said the new agreement called for a 2.8 per cent increase in the base pay. According to the current pay scale formula, teachers also will receive an average 4 per cent increment based on education and years of experience.

Last week the Dist. 59 Teachers' Council overwhelmingly accepted the contract with 290 teachers voting to approve the agreement, six voting no and one abstaining.

In a joint statement by the Teachers' Council and the school board issued previously, the increase in the base teacher pay was labeled a cost-of-living increase.

The contract for next fall pegs top teacher pay at $16,942 with experience and education that includes a master's degree plus 30 additional hours of graduate work and 15 years of experience. Starting teacher pay with a bachelor's degree and no experience was set at $8,047.

This year starting pay for a teacher with a bachelor's degree and no experience was $7,828. The top pay was set at

OTHER BENEFITS of the contract include a duty-free lunch period and changes in maternity and insurance benefits.

Tom Dresser, chief negotiator for the teachers, said last week the settlement was reasonable, but he was not overjoyed with it: "Considering the economic times, I'm pleased with it (contract)," he said. "The nonmoney portion of the agreement is very good to excellent. Concerning the money, it is difficult to expect much more considering the financial difficulties of the district."

Seven members from each negotiating team arrived at a tentative agreement June 9 after working four months on the contract.

The only other area elementary district with a new contract for next year is

New School 75 Days Behind

Poor weather was blamed for construction delays which may postpone the completion of Friendship Junior High School on Algonquin Road near Elmhurst Road in Des Plaines by about 75 days, according to architect Scott Kelley.

Kelley told members of the Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 school board Monday that the $2.4 million building scheduled for completion in December probably will not be finished until March 1973.

"Construction isn't progressing as fast as we may have wished, but we're not too disappointed," he said. "The weather was a major problem and cost us about 90 days."

Kelley added that unstable soil conditions accounted for another 20 days and problems with a subcontractor delayed work 15 days.

He said that soil compaction on the site is 85 per cent complete and the steel beams were going up every day.

When Friendship School opens in the fall of 1973, it will be the fifth junior high school in Elk Grove Township Dist. 59. The building was approved in a 1971 bond referendum, and construction started early this year.

Bargaining Session Hit

School officials, who say the district faces a deficit of more than $3 million, have eliminated 27 teachers jobs as part of a district-wide austerity program. Monday night, Board President William Wehrmann said the final bargaining session was a "very difficult negotiation because there was no point to bargain from. We didn't have any money."

THE BOARD of education officially adopted the accepted salary schedule and authorized the inclusion of diagnostic testing in the health insurance portion of the package.

In other action the board hired 11 teachers and accepted the resignations of 13 teachers for the 1972-73 school year. In March of this year, the district failed to rehire 27 teachers due to a cutback in the school budget. Ralph J. Frost, assistant superintendent, announced at Monday night's meeting that 16 of the 27 teachers have been reassigned, five have left the area and three have found other positions. Frost said he is confident that the administration will be able to place the nine remaining teachers before the fall term.

According to Michael J. Myers, Dist. 207 administrative assistant, the 11 teachers hired Monday night could not have been replaced by the nine teachers remaining on the waiting list, because they were not qualified in academic areas where positions were vacant. The nine remaining teachers will be considered first if positions in their academic area become available, said Myers.

This year's tax anticipation warrants for Maine Twp. Dist. 207 have been redeemed and the interest paid, Harold Markworth, business manager, told the board.

BOARD MEMBER Michael Bartos said, "We could have educated 10 students for what we paid in interest." The district had borrowed about $2.5 million on anticipated tax revenue at an interest rate of 2 1/2 per cent to meet expenses incurred before taxes could be collected. Interest for the 109-day loan was $26,387.

Roy O. Makela, board member, said the district does not plan to issue tax anticipation warrants next year.

The board also awarded a transportation contract for special education students to the United Motor Coach Co. for the 1972-73 school year. A representative from Davidsmeyer Bus Co., an unsuccessful bidder, protested the action.

Davidsmeyer's bid was $3.20 per day per pupil and United Motor Coach bid $3 and gave the board the option of extending the contract to three years. If the board had authorized bids for a three-year contract, Davidsmeyer would have been able to submit a much lower bid, according to the company spokesman.

Bugged by mosquitoes? Officials of the Northwest Mosquito Abatement District say that so far the summer is shaping up as an average season for the parasitic pests.

"Last year mosquitoes were very light because of the lack of moisture," Wilbur Mitchell, director of the abatement district, said yesterday.

"This year I'd say it's been about medium. But if we get a couple more heavy rains like the one we had last week there will be a lot more (mosquitoes) to worry about," he said.

"Last year was our worst year, though it was probably your best year for not being bothered with mosquitoes," said Jim McDaniel, president of the International Exterminator Company in Elk Grove Village.

McDaniel said this year's crop of mosquitoes "really hasn't hit yet" but he predicted after last week's rain they would be out in force by the July 4th weekend.

What could have been defeat for Peace Corps volunteer Linda C. Petkus of Des Plaines has turned into a kind of victory, and renewed hope for her next year in Peru.

Miss Polkus, 24, was assigned by the Peace Corps to teach the "methodology of math-science teaching" to students at the Normal School of Iquitos, according to a press statement released by the Peace Corps. The city of 80,000, lies on a fork in the Amazon River in the steamy jungle region of northeastern Peru.

For the first six months of her tour of duty, Miss Petkus felt she was not getting through to her students, she said. They were slow to respond, and they found her North American ways strange and somewhat hard to understand.

Jim Sedlack, son of Mr. and Mrs. James E. Sedlack, 1155 Prospect Ln., Des Plaines has been appointed associate member of the Chicago Civic Orchestra, the training orchestra for the Chicago Symphony.

As a freshman last year at Northern Illinois University, Seidlack studied trumpet with Ronald Modell, and will study this summer with Charles Geyer, a member of the Chicago Symphony. His musical activities in his freshman year at Northern Illinois University included concert orchestra, concert band, marching band, brass ensemble, and several musical productions.

He has been selected counselor for the Northern Illinois University Summer High School Music Program and has been asked to be a guest conductor for the Maine West Summer Band.

lages of Palatine and Schaumburg.

Those two communities have gone to court charging that the chemical used by the abatement district, a compound called Malathion, is harmful to other insects and that spraying is not an effective means of mosquito control.

Both Palatine and Schaumburg have passed local ordinances prohibiting the Northwest Mosquito Abatement District and everybody else from spraying Malathion within their borders.

The abatement district has countered with its own suit charging that the village's interference hinders the effectiveness of an area wide abatement campaign.

The conflicting charges will be the subject of a court hearing Monday.

"As far as we've been able to determine from the evidence presented to us, it (Malathion) is one of the safest chemicals we could be using," Mitchell said.

McDaniel, whose company also uses Malathion, said he agreed with Mitchell that it is one of the safest abatement chemicals available to exterminators today.

"IN THAT MOMENT," Miss Pelkus relates, "I felt a great sense of accomplishment."

The 300 Peruvian young women at the Normal School will be assigned, upon graduation, to teach various subjects in elementary schools throughout eastern Peru.

Before entering the Peace Corps in August 1959, Miss Pelkus spent a summer as a VISTA recreational leader. She graduated in 1960 from Purdue University where she was assistant director of the International Student Government. Her major was mathematics.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander G. Petkus of 210 Cornell, Des Plaines.

Miss Pelkus extended her Peace Corps service for another year in Iquitos. Her original tour of duty was completed last December.

THERE ARE 170 volunteers in Peru, working in such programs as education, agriculture, road-building, school-building, engineering and agricultural and consumer cooperatives, the Peace Corps said.

The Peace Corps is part of ACTION, the citizens service corps established by President Nixon last July to coordinate federal volunteer programs at home and overseas. Other ACTION programs are Volunteers in Service to America (VISTA), Foster Grandparent Program, Service Corps of Retired Executives (SCORE), Active Corps of Executives (ACE), Retired Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP) and University Year for ACTION.

The city of Des Plaines will try to block construction of a $4.5 million apartment complex at the southeast corner of East River and Central roads northeast of the city.

Acting after Herald press time Monday night, the city council authorized City Atty. Robert DeLeonardi to file petitions with the Cook County Zoning Board opposing the rezoning, which would allow construction of 12 apartment buildings on the 8½ east River-Central site.

Several alderman and DiLeonardi said the city should take action because residents near the site want to keep the area zoned for single-family homes, because the area may be annexed to Des Plaines in the future, and because apartment construction may affect schools, sewer systems, and other municipal services in the Des Plaines area.

The council ordered DiLeonardi to submit petitions to the county within 20 days.

County zoning board officials have told the Herald they will submit a recommendation this August to the county board, which will make a final decision on the rezoning request. A zoning board hearing on the proposal was held June 14 in Des Plaines.

In a report of the zoning hearing, DiLeonardi stated that the property owner plans to construct 216-two bedroom apartments. The 12 buildings would be three or four stories high, with 17 apartments in each building.

THE PROPERTY owner wants the site, which is zoned R-3 for single family homes to be rezoned R-6 for a planned apartment development, DiLeonardi reported.

The property owner, and others speaking for him, told the board that the site should be rezoned because its "best use" would be for apartments. Because the site is adjacent to the Tri-State Tollway and land to the northeast may be used for industrial purposes, the site is unfit and undesirable for single family homes, the owner indicated.

The owner also stated that the apartments would not lower property values of nearby single-family homes, and yearly taxes on the apartment complex would be about $190,000.

A letter of opposition to the proposed rezoning was submitted by the Ballarat Gardens Civic Association, which said that the apartments would lower surrounding property values according to DiLeonardi. "No real evidence" was presented to show that a nearby sanitary sewer and a water main would be "adequate to serve the project," DiLeonardi stated.

PROPERTIES SOUTH and west of the site are zoned for single family houses, and most of the houses in that area were constructed within the last five to 15 years, DiLeonardi said. East of the site, property is zoned for manufacturing use and property north of the site is owned by the Cook County Forest Preserve district.

A statement by a witness for the property owner — that only about 80 school-age children would live in the apartments — was found to be based, under cross-examination, upon no "study, survey or other standard," according to DiLeonardi.

School District Consolidation Is Urged

by BETSY BROOKER

Consolidation of local dual school districts into two unit districts could mean an annual gain of $14.5 million in state aid, according to a Northwest Educational Cooperative (NEC) consultant.

Consultant Oscar Chute urged the nine NEC member districts to study the feasibility of unit district consolidation in a report issued Saturday, culminating a six-month study. The NEC members have taken Chute's proposal under advisement.

Chute was hired by the school district cooperative to streamline NEC's management structure and to assist the districts in future planning. Chute is dean of academic affairs at the National College of Education in Evanston.

If unit district consolidation takes place, Chute said, "the size and resources of the new districts would make NEC, as now constituted, unnecessary."

NEC was organized in 1969 by 10 school districts to develop areawide programs and solve mutual problems. The cooperative's major function is to administer private and government-supported programs such as the Northwest Suburban Special Education Organization and the data processing program. Current members include school districts 15, 21, 23, 25, 26, 57, 59, 211 and 214.

ALL OF THE NEC members have a dual district organization, or separation of elementary and high school grades. However, more than 90 per cent of the school districts in the nation have a unit district organization, or combination of elementary and high school grades.

In an attempt to establish statewide solidarity, the Illinois legislature has encouraged unit district consolidation since 1947 with a money bonus for all unit districts. Before World War II, Illinois had more school board members than school teachers in its more than 12,000 school districts. Since then, through local initiative and state encouragement, consolidation has taken place until now there are fewer than 1,100 districts in the state.

Dual districts have fought the state aid disparity, rewarding unit districts, in the legislature and now in the courts. Only one local district, Elk Grove Village Dist. 59, has taken a public stand for consolidation. The Dist. 59 school board has budgeted for a feasibility study of consolidation of its elementary schools with one or more high schools.

The remaining NEC districts have not committed themselves for or against unit district consolidation. According to Chute the major deterrents to consolidation have been, "a deeply ingrained belief in home rule; the high valued concept of the neighborhood school; the possible wounded egos of school board members and the loss of jobs of some superintendents."

SCHOOL OFFICIALS attribute their caution in part to pending legislation. Some say they want to wait until the courts rule on the state aid disparity and the constitutionality of district reliance on property taxes.

Chute pointed out the dual district litigation may change the entire tax base system for the support of schools. However he added, "there is enough promise in a careful examination of unit districts, that NEC should not postpone a study of the advantages of unit district consolidation."

The main advantage of consolidation, says Chute, is financial. This year High School Dist. 214 and its feeder districts (15, 21, 23, 25, 26, 57 and 59) received a total of $16,383,909 in state aid. As a unit district, he claims, these districts would have received $25,555,703 in state aid.

High School Dist. 211, continued Chute, and its feeder districts (15 and 54) received a total of $10,584,318 in state aid this year. As a unit district, the same districts would have received $13,578,063.

In addition to the dollar benefit, Chute said consolidation would do away with present tax base inequalities. "Among the eight elementary districts the assessed valuation back of each child ranges from $11,022 in Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 to $26,360 in Dist. 59. It takes a $2.71 tax rate in Dist. 54 to produce a per pupil expenditure of $672, while a $2.41 tax rate in Dist. 59 enables it to spend $899 on each child's education."

"CONSOLIDATION would permit the distribution of quality programs to all classrooms of the area," said Chute. "And additional income from the state would enable the schools not only to maintain what they now afford, but in many instances to strengthen their offerings. It is not beyond the realm of possibility that school property taxes would go down."

Another area of inequality cited by Chute is teachers' salaries. Salary settlements for the 1971-72 year, for example, range in total average salary increases between 3.9 (Dist. 57) and 6.8 (Dist. 59) per cent over last year's rates. In addition, elementary school teachers are paid on a lower salary scale than high school teachers. This split in salary scales is found in only 10 per cent of the nation's school districts, said Chute.

Other advantages of the unit system listed by Chute include: uniform board policies; single curriculum organization from kindergarten through grade 12; one central administration and a uniform tax rate.

Chute disputed the theory that consolidation would save money in administrative costs, pointing out the present number of administrators would probably have to be maintained.

Urge Reorganization Of NEC

Reorganization of the Northwest Educational Cooperative (NEC) has been proposed by consultant Oscar Chute after a six-month study of the nine-school district operation.

Chute was hired by the cooperative to streamline what school officials said was, at times, an unwieldy and inefficient organization. Chute, dean of academic affairs at the National College of Education in Evanston, was paid $2,500 for the project.

Richard Schlott, NEC governing board president, said part of the cooperative's problem was "operational minutiae which consumes too much of our time and attention." He predicted the dissolution of NEC unless "we end our self-generated doubt and faking purpose."

NEC WAS ORGANIZED in 1969 by 10 school districts to develop areawide problems and solve mutual problems. Current members include school districts 15, 21, 23, 25, 26, 57, 59, 211 and 214.

In order to operate more effectively, Chute proposed that the cooperative "seek legislation that would give the governing board decision-making power and make it a legal and fiscal agent of members districts for certain programs." Currently all board actions are subject to the approval of NEC's administering district, Dist. 214.

Board membership should be expanded, added Chute, to include superintendents, teaching staff and other lay community leaders. "The superintendents are the most powerful men in their community," said Chute, "so why kid yourselves that all your decisions are made by lay people." He advocated including teachers also because "so many board decisions are directly related to the teaching staff."

Administration of the cooperative should be headed by one director, said Chute. Currently both the NEC director and the Northwest Suburban Special Education Organization director are more or less on a lateral level.

CHUTE ALSO proposed the cooperative create a new position for a business manager to centralize and organize NEC's financial responsibilities. Currently all NEC financial transactions pass through a series of steps including approval from both NEC and Dist. 214 boards.

Radio Operator Licenses For Pupils

Maine East High School students John Cicero of Niles, and Dave Wittlock of Morton Grove, recently received radio telephone operator licenses through the school's electronics program.

The Federal Communications Commission (FCC) first class license opens the door to many job opportunities, said Theron Whitfield, industrial education instructor. Anyone who works in aviation communications, such as control tower work, or operates radio and television broadcasting equipment is required to have the FCC license, he said.

Both students are active as operating engineers and technicians in the Maine East radio station WMTH-FM, the first non-commercial station in Illinois operated by a high school.

Cicero, a senior at Maine East, has an interest in noise pollution, said Whitfield, and as a class project he constructed a decibel meter for the physics department. Wittlock, a junior, plans to build a recording amplifier for the radio station's sound studio next year.

"I think we have something in our industrial arts program for everyone," said Whitfield. "Everyone who is interested in the technical world should take a sequence of these courses."

Honorable Mention

Conflict In Army Leave Makes Close Wedding Timing

A conflict in the groom's Army leave brought about a frantic few days preceding the wedding, for he didn't arrive home until Thursday night for the Saturday nuptials.

Patrick A. Arnold, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry W. Arnold of Mount Prospect, and Cheryl Lynn Konishi, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George S. Konishi of Des Plaines, were wed May 27 at Trinity United Methodist Church, Mount Prospect, in an 11 a.m. ceremony performed by Dr. Robert Matthews.

Cheryl's wedding gown and veil were made by her mother. Of bridal satin with front lace trim, the A-line gown featured a detachable train flowing from the Empire waist. Her fingertip veil was secured by a Juliet cap. She carried a cascade of orchids.

The bridal attendants were dressed identically in flocked organza gowns and picture hats, and carried yellow daisies. Each gown was a different color: Judith Retzke of Des Plaines, the maid of honor, wore blue; Christine Barry of Des Plaines wore lavender; and Lori Arnold, the groom's sister, wore yellow.

Also carrying yellow daisies was the bride's little 4-year-old cousin, Kristin Nishimura of Carol Stream, who served as flower girl in her long pink lace dress.

The groom's party consisted of Martin Jakubek of Des Plaines, best man; David Hess of Des Plaines; and Bernard Bos of Little Rock, Iowa. The reception following the wedding was held at the Carmel Restaurant.

Cheryl and Patrick met each other when both were working at a Jewel Food Store in Des Plaines. The bride is a 1970 graduate of Elk Grove High School; the groom, a 1970 graduate of Forest View High School. He attended the University of Iowa at Iowa City where he was enrolled in the College of Pharmacy.

Patrick returned to the U. S. Army following his leave and has just arrived in Panama where he will be stationed for 18 months. Cheryl remained behind to complete her junior year in secondary education at Western Illinois University in Muncie. She will join her husband in Panama in September.

The Home Line

by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: String beans are my favorite vegetable but I can't get my family to eat them in any way. Have you run into a good string bean recipe that I can try on them? — Genevieve M.

'This string bean casserole that Nancy Senturia produced should go over big not only with your family but as a company dish. It sounds complicated but really isn't.

Saute 1 tablespoon grated onion in 2 tablespoons butter for about 10 minutes. Then add 2 tablespoons flour, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon black pepper and 1 teaspoon sugar. Add 1 cup sour cream slowly to this mixture and bring to the start of a gentle boil but don't boil. Pour into a casserole and fold in 2 packages of cooked, frozen string beans. Grate ¼ pound Swiss cheese and sprinkle on top. Also sprinkle on ¼ cups of finely crushed cornflakes. Last, drizzle on 1 tablespoon melted butter. Bake at 375 degrees for 20 minutes.

Finally got to try a remedy recommended by readers for getting out a ball point ink stain. Waving my hand with a pen in it wasn't the smartest thing in the world, especially as it was right over the gold corduroy bed rest his nubs likes to use when reading. Used hair spray, then rubbed with a piece of toweling. Repeated it several times. Maybe it's because the treatment was done so quickly, but the stain did disappear.

Dear Dorothy: Can coffee grounds be flushed down the kitchen drain? — Amelia M.

It's not a good idea, ordinarily. If there should be any kind of a grease buildup, the coffee grounds will really compound the situation and you're in for trouble.

THE 'HALF' WEDGE SHOT

FEW SHOTS IN GOLF COME TOUGHER THAN THE SHORT, OR HALF, WEDGE FROM ABOUT 50 YARDS. ALONG WITH PLenty OF PRACTICE IT REQUIRES CONSISTENCY OF STROKE.

WHETHER YOU HIT THEM HARD OR EASY, YOU SHOULD HIT THEM THE SAME WAY EVERY TIME. YOU'LL NEVER GET THE PROPER 'FEEL' WITH A SWING THAT VARIES.
